A RUSH OF BUSINESS.

It Came Just at the Time He Wanted to Sell His Place.

One of the leading men of Louisville, reported to be one of the richest, got a bad start in business. He began by being a photographer, but found that the business didn't come up to expectations. He therefore wisely decided to sell out and start at something else. He finally interested some people in the proposition and appointed a time when they should come and look things over.

He now has the reputation of being shrewd, and that this is not a complimentary designation only is indicated by what happened then. He inserted an advertisement in the daily papers in small enough type not to attract everybody's attention and yet conspicuously enough to win consideration from those who make a point of looking for bargains, announcing that on a certain day he would take pictures free of charge. By a coincidence the day he set was the day when the prospective purchasers of his business were to be there.

The ad., as usual, paid, and that afternoon his gallery was crowded with visitors. They thronged in and out, and he could not take care of them rapidly enough, even with the aid of several assistants. When the folks he intended to do business with came he greeted them with a crown of disappointment, explaining that he was simply so busy that he couldn't see them then and asked them to come back in the morning, when things would likely have slackened up. They agreed and went away duly impressed.

He sold out to them next day, and it is perhaps superfluous to add that he got more for his outfit than he would have done if it hadn't been for the modest little advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW INSECTS BREATHE.

System of Tubes That Run the Length of Their Bodies.

Landlubber animals have lungs, and sea creatures have gills. But insects have neither one nor the other. They have a complex system of tubes running throughout the whole length of the body by means of which air is conveyed to every part of the system. As they are destined to contain nothing but air, they are strongly supported to guard against collapse from pressure.

This support is furnished by means of a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, much in the same way that a garden hose is protected with wire. There are generally two of these tubes which run the whole length of the insect's body.

Many flies, as larvae, live in the water. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates act and absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three feather-like protections. By means of these the larva causes currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

The gnat also lives in the water as a larva. But it has no gills; therefore it cannot breathe the oxygen in the water, but must breathe air. This is done by means of a spiracle situated at the tip of its tail. Indeed, the tail is prolonged into a little tube. The larva floats along head downward in the water with this tube just above the surface to enable it to breathe. After some time it is provided with two little tubes, which act in the same manner.—Chicago Tribune.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly, "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wollahra Point, which is now one of the choice harborside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru careened their galleon on the beach at Woollahra Point.

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coattails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was buried, disbevelled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Yah," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again."—Sketchy Bits.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions,must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for the economies and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business like selling it always considered the best way, for investors hold always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. Part this reason, and other useful considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

The company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and simply distributes the market price, and the high prices prevailing proves the inability of the manufacturers to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other competitors, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 20 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in no case of that amount, will normally, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

JUST A HEADACHE.

You all know the woman who seems to think that she acquires merit by having a headache.

A headache is her constant companion, and, what's more, if she doesn't actually pride herself in it she cherishes much the same feeling toward it that a martyr does toward her martyr's crown. Martyrdom is not without its compensation of glory, you know, unless it chances to be a self imposed martyrdom or at least a martyrdom to an empty cause.

And there are such among the headache martyrs. The headache martyr is the one who has had headaches so often that she has a headache smile.

"It's just a headache," she says, with a wan smile, as if headaches with her were as much a part of the program as her meals."

If that is the case with this poor sufferer she is greatly to be pitied. There are numberless cases on record where people have had persistent headaches the cause of which has stubbornly baffled the physicians. Such a state of affairs is highly regrettable. But how many women have taken the pains to assure themselves that their headaches are inevitable? This spirit of meek submission to the inevitable, it must be remembered, is only commendable when the inevitable is actually not to be avoided, and a lot of things are called inevitable that have simply never been questioned.

Dr. Wonda Hutchinson, writing in the Delineator, says:

"Pain wherever found is nature's abrupt command 'Halt!'—her imperative order to stop. When you have taken that step you have taken the most important single step toward a cure.

"A headache always means something"—now mark some of the things he says it may mean—"overwork, underventilation, eye strain, underfeeding. Some error," he adds, "is being committed; some bad physical habit is being dropped into."

So what's the use of pitying the woman with the headache smile if she hasn't at least gone over this simple list of causes and made an effort to adjust the trouble?

"There are a dozen different remedies that will stop pain," says this author, "from opium and chloroform down to the coal tar remedies, but not one of them cures in the sense of doing anything toward removing the cause."

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys, is surely wrong! Dr. Sheop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak, or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discuss and recommend Dr. Sheop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

WISE MAN UNDERSTOOD.

A wise man once went to the market place of a town, where a lot of people were buying and selling things, and he called out in a loud voice: "Ho, ho, listen to me, all you people! I have been ordered by the king to collect all the clever people and take them to him, because he wishes to reward them."

All that heard him said they were clever, and they all gathered round, when he called out in a loud voice:

"Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! The king has just sent me word that he means to reward only those who are fools, so only those who are not clever must go with me to the palace."

All the people of the town looked at the wise man, and then one by one they joined him again because, so they said, they were fools.

The wise man shook his head sadly, and he sighed as he said: "Ah, the world goes as the wind blows! Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! You can all go back to the market place as quick as you can, for you first said you were clever and then you said you were not, and you can't be both."

The wise man knew quite well that the people only wanted the reward.

How Sarah Bernhardt Rests.

In a letter to a friend Sarah Bernhardt tells how she spends the days of her vacation in Belle-Isle-en-Mer. The actress says she "rests" by tiring herself. There is a daily schedule. At 5 in the morning she is awakened. After a cup of coffee she takes her gun and goes hunting for birds. At 8 she returns to the house, has a light breakfast and goes to the shore to fish for shrimps. This occupies two hours. At 11 she takes her bath, makes her toilet and is ready for luncheon at 12:30. After luncheon comes the hour for the siesta. This, she observes, is a sacred institution in the routine of her household. One need not necessarily sleep, but the command is to keep still for two hours. At 2:30 she goes to her studio, where she reads manuscripts, looks over her parts or works at her sculpture. The tennis hour is 5 o'clock. Dinner follows the game. After dinner there is music, and by 9 o'clock every one is in bed. In ending her letter Mme. Bernhardt says: "Thus pass my days in Belle Isle. They all are alike. They are charming and splendid. I have a divine sensation of being alive these days more than all the rest of the days of the year."

"Is that so?"

BEGGARS AND TRAMPS.

More Numerous Now Than Ever Before In World's History.

The beggar and the tramp are more numerous now than probably ever before in the history of the civilized world, and in the United States the increase in their number has been so rapid in the last two decades as to raise serious questions in the minds of thoughtful persons as to what the outcome will be if this rate of increase continues, and if no better methods than those at present in operation are discovered to check the growth of this undesirable body of citizens. That there has been a remarkable increase in the number of these men scarcely needs demonstration.

A study has recently been made of the cases of 1,000 homeless men who applied to the Chicago bureau of charities for some form of charitable aid. These men were of the class so often referred to as "tramps," although only about one-fourth of them were found to be rightly so-called.

A number of interesting things were discovered about the group, as, for instance, that 50 of them were insane and almost as many more feebleminded or epileptic; that nearly 100 were tuberculous and that 263 were either temporarily or permanently crippled or maimed. The facts in relation to character in this latter group of men are of special interest. Less than two per cent. of these men had been crippled from birth; 34 per cent. were crippled by illness; almost all of the remaining 64 per cent. owed their handicaps to the railroads, to injuries while at work, or to some of the innumerable forms of accident which are of daily occurrence in great cities.

A little deeper study of the cases showed that a large proportion of the illness which crippled the men had been caused by drink or gross immorality; that more than half of the men who claimed industrial injuries had not received them, but were crippled from other causes; that the injuries of those who had met with industrial accidents were in many cases slight and the vagrancy of the men was due to entirely other causes; that several of the men who had met with general accidents had been drunk when they occurred, and, lastly, that a number of the men who were injured on the railroads had been tramps and vagrants long before they were hurt and had not been forced into vagrancy on account of their injuries. Three men who were in the main self-supporting and applied to the bureau of charities only for work or for very trifling assistance had lost both legs. Five men, who were crippled only by the loss of from one to three fingers, were chronic dependents and confirmed beggars.

What was found true of the crippled and maimed among the thousand was equally true of the remainder. Very rarely were industrial and social causes alone responsible for vagrancy, but equally rarely were individual causes alone responsible. In some cases one could say with fairness that the causes of vagrancy were mainly social; in others, that they were mainly individual, but in the great majority of instances social and individual causes had apparently acted and reacted upon each other until it was impossible to separate them or to decide which was the more responsible for the final vagrancy of the man. Moreover, what was clearly cause in one case was as clearly effect in another. One man took to tramping because he was crippled, the next was crippled because he took to tramping. One man became a beggar because he was diseased and unable to work; another was diseased and unable to work because of his unhygienic mode of life as a beggar. Insanity was the cause of vagrancy in some cases; vagrancy caused insanity in others. No generalization as to the causes of vagrancy can possibly be made which will apply to all the vagrant [illegible] road or even to any [illegible] on of them. For differ[illegible] of age, nationality, inheritance, education, training, temperament, health, efficiency and morale exist among tramps and vagrants as among self-supporting business men, lawyers and farmers.

Santos-Dumont.

For some time Santos-Dumont has been out of the public eye. He was among the first to win fame as an aeronaut, but the Wrights, Curtiss, Bleriot and other aviators eclipsed him. Once more he is a bidder for public attention. During his retirement he has perfected a machine which occupies much less space than that of any of his rivals and which promises to be a great success. Recently he won a wager with another aeronaut as to which would first visit the other by the air route. Santos-Dumont made the flight from Saint Cyr to Buc, a distance of five miles, in five minutes. His aeroplane has only nine square yards of surface and weighs with the operator only 260 pounds.

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a becafico, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

A Nice Country.

England is a nice country to live in. The women, or the so-called women suffragettes, are going insane, and a poor man hardly dare stick his nose outside the door. York County Loan Cheques.

The Bank of Ottawa have now received the cheques in payment of the first dividend to those parties who left their books with that bank. There are over one thousand cheques and a large number of the claims have been transferred to third parties, which entails a lot of work for the bank officials. They hope, however, to have matters in such a position that they will be able to give these cheques out to the public on Tuesday. In reference to the amount of dividend represented by the cheques, the liquidators have published a statement in the newspapers as to how the amounts were arrived at, which no doubt everybody has read. It will be impossible for the bank to explain to each depositor just how the amount represented by each cheque was arrived at, and the public should take this into consideration and not take up the time of the bank officials by asking for special explanations in regard to their individual claims. A copy of the statement made by the liquidators is hung up in a prominent place in the bank and can be read by any person who desires.

Fixed Assessment is Extended in Two Cases

While Peterborough is out after more new industries the Manufacturers' Committee is also looking after the factories already here and doing business. From time to time these factories are being enlarged and the number of hands are being increased and it is at such times that many factories consider the advisability of changing their location. Such is not the case here, however, for the City Council is always willing to do the fair thing with a factory. Two firms have applied to the Manufacturers' Committee for consideration and their cases were dealt with as below:

The Hamilton Manufacturing Company made an application before the Manufacturers' Committee last night to have their fixed assessment extended from three to ten years. They also asked for several other concessions, but the committee did not think it advisable to grant them for the time being. They will, however, recommend the council to grant the extension of the fixed assessment.

Messrs. B.F. Ackerman & Son, are contemplating the erection of a large addition to their factory and applied to the Manufacturers' Committee for a fixed assessment for 10 years at $20,000. If the enlargement is gone on with the company agrees to increase its permanent staff to 120 hands the year round. They propose to manufacture one or more new lines for which there is a large and increasing demand. The committee will recommend that this request be granted.

The municipal elections on January 3rd next, that being the first Monday of the new year, will be registered among the most important in the city's history. The polls, for the first time, will be opened from 9 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock in the evening and the deputy returning officers and his assistants will be kept busy all the time. After the vote is closed it will be a long time before the complete results are known for the following reasons:—

There are four by-laws:—

2.—To return to the Ward system for electing aldermen.

3.—To grant a 30 year franchise to the Peterborough Light and Power Co.

A Mayor is to be elected.

Six aldermen are to be elected for a term of two years.

One member to be elected to the Water Commission for three years.

Altogether there will be seventeen ballots to mark, and may be more. As there is talk of a couple of the aldermen who were elected for two years, retiring to run for the Mayors' chair, in that case other aldermen would have to be elected to finish out the term.

Those whose term expires with this year are:—

Mayor—H. Rush.

Water Commission—Mr. W. H. Moore.

Board of Education—Messrs Dumble, Nelson, Dr. Burnham, Hill and Crane

In the case of the by-laws a bare majority will carry them, except the local option and a three-fifths majority of the votes cast is necessary.

Startling Charges Made Against Sugar Trust--Sensations Coming

Underweighing, Burglary, and Controlling Civil Service are Among Alleged Offences.

Involves Men "Higher Up" in World and That Arouses Public Interest in Case.

New York, Nov. 16.—Indications are that the investigations into the methods of the Sugar Trust, charged with defrauding the United States Treasury by means of "short-weighing" and other methods, will be more far-reaching than was at first imagined. It is now considered likely that the government will try to obtain payment of back duties in Boston, Philadelphia, and other cities.

Sensations are coming rapidly on one another's heels here. According to Deputy-Surveyor Parr, who conducted the investigation which resulted in the exposure of the "short-weighing" scandals, and the recovery of $2,000,000 in back dues from the American Sugar Refining Company, the methods used by the trust to block investigation, included control of the civil service and burglary. By means of the former any employes of the Treasury Department, who began to look into weighing matters was dismissed, while by the latter method evidence which Mr. Parr had collected was stolen away from his desk. Then, Mr. Parr says, the farther he proceeded with his work, the more difficulties he experienced, with the very authorities who were supposed to be aiding him.

A SONG BY VICTOR HERBERT

A musical treat is in store for every one who is fortunate enough to secure a copy of the Victor Herbert song to be given with next Sunday's New York World. It is one of Mr. Herbert's best songs from his wonderfully successful opera, "The Rose of Algeria." The words are by Mr. Glen MacDonough, a famous writer of songs and operas. Music by arrangement with the well known music house of Charles K. Harris & Co. Words and music complete with next Sunday's World.

$50 for Loss of Whiskers

Sandwich, Ont., Nov. 17.—In deciding a suit between Dennis Sullivan and T. Ballard of Harrow, Justice Magee awarded Sullivan $50 for the loss of a bunch of whiskers, which he claimed were pulled out by Ballard in a row at the defendant's hotel on October 24.

Ballard claimed Sullivan was drunk and had to be ejected, but Sullivan claimed that he was roughly handled, and sued for one thousand dollars damages for the loss of his whiskers.

One of the exhibits in the case was a photo showing his appearance a day or two after the tuft of beard was plucked out.

City Hockey League is Organized for Season

There will be six teams in the City Hockey League this year. The annual meeting was held in the Oriental Hotel last night and the league has got off to a good start. All the teams were represented and the greatest harmony prevailed. There was not a kick of any kind registered. A great feature this year will be that all players in the City League are eligible for the O.H.A. teams. This makes it very much better for the O.H.A. teams and will guarantee the fastest kind of hockey in the City League. By this arrangement the latter body is also performing its proper function, viz., developing players for the big teams. The league also decided to change its night for playing games from Thursday to Friday night.

The teams represented were as follows:—

Keene—Dr. McWilliams and R. V. McDougall.

T.A.S.—Picard and Deamard.

Stratheonas—Wm. Metheral.

Chieftains—A. Hall and H. Munro.

West Ends—Jack Oldham.

Collegiate—Bill Gibson.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

Secretary F. D. Craig read the secretary's report. The total gate receipts were $220, and the report was satisfactory.

Norwood will not have a team in the league this year.

Dr. McWilliams moved that all City League players be allowed to play on O.H.A. teams. F. D. Craig seconded the motion and it carried.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The following officers were then elected:—

Patrons and Patronesses— Mayor and Mrs. Rush, Dr. and Mrs. Gibson Lakefield; Dr. and Mrs. Wightman, Mr. W. S. and Mrs. Merrell, Dr. and Mrs. McWilliams, Keene

Hon. President—Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Hon. Vice—Mr. R. A. Morrow.

President—C. G. Graham.

1st Vice—C. N. McWilliams.

2nd Vice—Jack Oldham.

Sec.-Treas.—F. D. Craig.

LETTER FROM SANTA CLAUS.

He Writes The Times Bookstore on Behalf of Children.

Dear Times Bookstore,— Kindly announce to my little children that I want them to call at The Times Bookstore, Hunter street, and choose what they would like and write me a letter very soon. I have left lots of good things this year—Great big assortment of presents, larger stock and better toys (because most of them are dolls that sleep and sit up) musical and mechanical) lovely dolls and dolls' chairs, beds, cradles, child's tea sets, horns, trains, drums, horses, cows, cats, rabbits, banks, games of every description, pistols, little cooking stoves, picture books. Oh such lovely illustrated books! Cups and saucers, lovely Xmas tree decorations, stockings full of things that boys and girls like, and so many things, I have not time to tell you all as you know I am very busy, but I don't want to forget one of my children, as I have something for you all.

Yours, with love to all,

Bell Telephone Co. Not in Big Merger

Montreal, Nov. 17.—Mr. Chas. F. Sise, president of the Bell Telephone Company, of Canada this morning, gave positive denial to the statement that the Canadian Company is included in the merger of telephone and telegraph companies, which was effected yesterday in New York, when the control of the Western Union Telegraph Company passed to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

"The Bell Telephone Company of Canada is not in the merger," declared Mr. Sise. "Our company is entirely independent of any of the big companies across the line, and have no intention of joing in with them."

POULTRY CELEBRATED.

The Anniversary of the President's Birthday Yesterday.

A prominent citizen told The Times representative yesterday that he was awakened by a most unusual crowing of roosters and cackling of hens. So demonstrative was the evident general rejoicing of Peterborough's feathery denizens that he thought for sure the poultry show must be in full swing. On enquiry, however, he learned that yesterday was the birthday of the president of Peterborough's Poultry Association, and consequently concluded that congratulations were the order of the day in poultryland.

CLUB ROOM WANTED.

Hockey Boys Are Anxious for Proper Training Quarters.

A number of the hockey boys have fallen heartily in line with the club room idea and they think it the best thing that could be secured for them By club room is not meant a luxuriously furnished apartment where lounging and idleness are the main features. The boys want one of the rooms in the rink which they can turn into a training club. That is, put in a shower bath or two, for use after practice and after matches. A shower bath makes them feel fine and does a great deal to get them in the best of shape. Then a number of hang around for a half an hour after their bath. This is a great deal better than hanging around the streets for half an hour or an hour after a game and while they are warm and prosperin

AGE LIMIT.

For Juniors Will Likely Be Reduced by the O.H.A.

Dr. A. W. McPherson expects to go to Toronto Friday night to attend the meeting of the O.H.A. executive as he is one of the members. He will also attend the annual meeting of the O.H.A., as a representative from Peterborough on Saturday. One of the most important amendments to be considered is the age limit for juniors. It is proposed to reduce the limit one year, making it 19 years instead of 20 years. This will be a good thing for the Peterborough juniors as well as a great many other clubs, and the Peterborough representative will support it. A lower age limit permits a club to use more of the younger players and get them into shape soon for intermediate company. Peterborough has a lot of pretty fair youngsters, and they will have a better chance against the younger players of other towns. Men should be debarred from playing in the junior series any way.

Advisory Board.

The Advisory Board in St. John's church met last night and adjourned until next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock sharp, when it is hoped all the members will be present as important business is under consideration.

Late Despatches from Cherry, Ill., About the Mine Holocaust

Explosion Threatens Mine--Troops on Scene Fire Burns Fiercely

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 17.—An explosion today threatens the St. Paul mine, as burning of coal and the action of fire and water may cause gas to form in large quantities. In an effort to rid the mine of this gas, the air shaft will be opened, and the big fan will be started. Upon the success of this action will depend the plans of the men trying to bring the interior fire under control, and effect an entrance.

The water has been forced to the bottom in quantities sufficient to have filled the "sump" or drainage basin, and overflow the lower galleries. It is possible the fire pumps will resume action later in the day.

The fire is now hotter than it has been any time before.

The inquest over the death of the rescuers who perished Saturday was not continued today.

Threats have been made against Rosenjack, the cager, who is said to have deserted his post the first day of the disaster, to keep back women and impatient relatives.

Capt. Hall, in command of the militia now on the ground, found no evidence of trouble when he arose today.

"I can't see any need for troops here," he said. "The soldiers were scattered about the mine. Their presence caused no demonstration from the miners.

Women are Driven to Desperation

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 17.—State troops were on the ground today when the sun rose on the scene of Saturday's disaster, in the St. Paul coal mine, where 300 men are still entombed. Before dawn the daily pilgrimage of women to the mine began. The faithful vigil of the women has been relaxed only a few hours each day, though little hope is entertained that a living man or boy will be found when the mine is opened.

The delay in recovering the bodies has driven scores of women almost to desperation. Hints of a possible demonstration against the state officials reached the ears of State's Attorney Eckhart yesterday, and the troops were sent for. All night they did sentinel duty about the mine and railroad cars containing mine inspectors and nurses and the private coach of President Earling of the St. Paul road.

During the night tons of water were forced down in the burning mine through the hoist shaft. Faire Chief Horan and Capt. Kenney, with engine 40 and a squad of Chicago firemen are in charge of this work.

The thoroughness of the persons directing the relief will make physical hardship and suffering improbable if sufficient funds are received. The following cases are typical; Louis Galletto, 49, his two brothers, and his oldest son, John, 18, were among the victims. Louis Galletto leaves a widow, who is a chronic invalid and six dependent children, the youngest five years old.

Joe Zeukcia, 35, perished. He leaves a widow and seven children, oldest of whom is Annie, aged 13.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 16.—Dawn today brought increased anxiety to the families of the 300 miners who are still entombed in the St. Paul coal mine as a result of last Saturday's disaster.

Despite the belief expressed by the State and Government officials that there is little or no possibility of any of the men ever being brought to the surface alive, scores of grief-stricken wives gather about the mouth of the hoisting shaft, which late yesterday had to be sealed on account of renewal of fire in the interior.

Haggard and almost wore into exhaustion by the terror of three sleepless nights, the women approached the officers imploring some glimmer of hope.

PITFUL PLEAS.

"There is still a chance, ain't there, Mister," they pleaded.

"Don't say they are dead for certain."

The mine officers, assisted by the State and Government authorities, who had remained on the premises all night, began early to ascertain whether it would be practical again to send rescuers down the shaft.

It was decided that if the fire had been sufficiently smothered by the closing of the mine during the night descent would be possible, and no time would be lost. A number of water tanks were brought here from La Salle on flat cars before daylight and run on a switch ready to be poured into the pit. At the same time a supply of fire extinguishing chemicals were on hand. Among them were chemicals intended to produce carbonic acid gas. If the fire is still raging in the timbers supports, it was proposed to bore holes through the lid, or seal at the mouth of the shaft, and by means of iron pipes force the gas to the bottom.

TWENTY-FOUR DEER.

Were Secured by the Chawanaga Hunt Club.

Twenty-four deer were secured by the Chawanaga Hunt Club, which has arrived home from a two weeks' trip in Parry Sound. Twelve of the deer weighed together over 1,400 pounds. This season has been an unusually successful and enjoyable one, and is one the members will remember for a long time to come. During the outing a large lumberman's shanty was occupied by the club, and Mr. Sam Long acted as cook. A special car was engaged to convey the party to Chawanaga station, which is only a short distance from the camp and the return trip home was made in the same manner Several fine heads were secured to be mounted and kept as souvenirs of the trip.

Those who made up the party were Messrs. Chas. Gladman, captain; Sam Ray, Judge Rogers, W. D. Best, secretary; Charles and Albert Curtis, Cohn Bradley, Gorman Bradley, Dr. Cole, Toronto; John Benner, North Monaghan; Wm. and Talbot Bothwell, D. Evans, Jas. H. Metheral, George Metcalfe, Peter Kerr, Martin McFadden, Arthur Morrow, Parry Sound.

English Church Lost Fine Chances by Neglecting Rural Districts

Bishop of London Says Even His Own Brother Went to Wesleyan Chapel.

London, Nov. 17.—Welcoming Principal Lloyd of Saskatchewan, the Bishop of London last night said he was sorry to say the church had not been in time in the country districts of Ontario, in which he stayed when in Canada. The church was well planted in the cities, but she had been forestalled in the country districts. His own brother's family had attended service in a little Wesleyan chapel because there was no church within eight or nine miles. They must not make the same mistake in the great North-West. What he longed and prayed for was that that great plain with its thousands of square miles with room enough for one hundred million people should be British.

Principal Lloyd announced that he required thirty cathechists by the spring. The church was not going to make the mistake feared by the bishop.

CHANGE THE LAW.

Governing Bonusing Factories Say Peterborough Aldermen.

Peterborough will have some private legislation before the Ontario Legislature next session, and it will be of the utmost importance to the city too. For instance the Purity Ware Bylaw which was carried by a majority of over a thousand must be confirmed by the legislature. The Manufacturers' Committee also expects to have several other propositions to submit.

A most important amendment to the law governing bonuses to factories will likely be introduced by the Peterborough member, Mr. T. E. Bradburn. At present to carry a bonus bylaw it is necessary to secure in favor of the bylaw a two thirds majority of all the names on the voters' list and this is utterly impossible in a city the size of Peterborough. The amendment will be that it be only necessary to secure two-thirds majority of the votes cast.

Art Association.

The Women's Art Association of Peterborough have completed arrangements for an illustrated art lecture to be given in the Collegiate Institute Hall on the evening of Friday, November 26th, by Fraulein Antoine Stolle. She is an artist who received her diploma from the Royal Art Academy of Berlin, and who subsequently spent much time in study in Italy, Paris and London. has gained a reputation in this country by her exceedingly interesting and instructive talks upon art and the use of lantern slides which reproduce noted pictures by great painters in their original colors.

Will Re-open in December.

Good progress is being made in connection with the remodelling of the Salvation Army barracks, and it is expected that the work will be finished so that services may be commenced again on the first Sunday in December.

The British government has just let contracts for two super-Dreadnoughts which are to have a tonnage of 26,350 each and a speed of 28 knots. This will make it necessary for Germany to immediately begin building a couple of super-super Dreadnoughts of about 30,000 tons each, with a speed of not less than 31 knots. Fortunately the size of the super-Dreadnoughts has not as yet made it necessary to enlarge the oceans.

Ship 122 Indians back to Canada

Washington, D.C., Nov. 17.—"Hoeky Boys," a band of Chippewa Indians, said to belong in Canada, have been rounded up in Montana, under the superintendent of the Blackfeet Indian Reservation, according to information received at the interior department. There are one hundred and twenty-two persons in the band, who have been roaming around the country living as best they could.

Next spring they will be taken back to their reservation in Canada.

Ionic is at the Sault

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 17.—The steamer Ionic arrived above the Canadian locks at 9.30 o'clock this morning, and is now waiting to go through. A blockade exists above the locks owing to the fact that the Poe lock on the Michigan side is out of commission The Ionic will, in all probability pass down today. This is the vessel which yesterday's despatch represented as probably wrecked on Lake Superior. The wrecked boat, however, was the Ottawa.

"FEEBLE STOMACH."

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all.'

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys and liver and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, in yellow boxes, 25c per box, from The Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Ont.

Sprained Wrist and Ankle

After Being Laid Up With Great Pain for Ten Days, Relief Was Gained Instantly by Applying

NERVILINE.

One of the most soul-distressing accidents that can befall one is a bad ankle or wrist sprain. "If I had only known of 'Nerviline' earlier, I could have saved myself an enormous amount of pain, and many agonizing nights of sleeplessness." Thus writes P. P. Quinn, a young farmer living near Brockville. "I tumbled from a hay loft to the barn floor and sprained my right ankle and left wrist. They swelled rapidly and caused excruciating pains. It was not convenient to go to the city, and the liniment in the house was useless. When I got Nerviline relief came quickly. It took down the swelling, relieved the pain, and gave me wonderful comfort.

TESTIMONIAL NO. 4266

"I can recommend Nerviline for strains, bruises, swellings, muscular pains, and sore back. I have proved it a sure cure in such cases."

Think what it might some day mean to you to have right in your home, ready for an accident or emergent sickness, a bottle or two of Nerviline. Get it today, 25c. or five for $1.00, all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

TIRED OF FASHION.

Tired of fashion and frivolity and eager to do something for others, the Duchess of Marlborough has joined the ranks of workers, and is preaching some good doctrine. She believes in work for everybody, the rich as well as the poor, and in this view she will be supported by the sober, sound judgment of experience. She has been addressing the Forest Gate and Stratford Amateur Chrysanthemum Society, and taking the love of flowers as emblematical of that striving after ideals which is somewhere in every nature, has declared that it is only by hard work in every one's garden, rooting up the weeds of envy, malice and distrust, and growing flowers of idealism, strength purpose and good will that the millennium of which so many talk can be brought about. As for reformation, she thinks that it is men themselves that will bring it about, and not politics. Presumably, she does not intend to ignore the necessity of politics entirely, which in its broad sense implies the science of government. She probably meant, as one critic suggests, that "politics will only be effective for good when the people behind it are in earnest for the people's good." Reflecting people will agree that the noisy, frothy type of politics does not accomplish much whatever views those who have such politics profess. It is only genuine deep-seated conviction that can accomplish anything in the realm of politics or any other.

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Cure Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. And Preventics are so safe and harmless. No Quinine, nothing harsh nor sickening. Fine for feverish restless children. Box of 48 at 25c. Sold by all dealers.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of repute? It used to be said that the hurry of most Americans made it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that his defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far away from the haunts of the strangers are more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American dressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to their own maids to have their neat fingers repair the damage that the first wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show him or her the poor sewing. There is the perfunctory expression of regret and surprise, and the dress is sent to the workroom to be repaired and is delivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment.

Wise women take them as they are, are thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her ambition is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to the outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The sirup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A saucerful of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Marah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging.

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse than futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. These leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself and see. Sold by all dealers.

IF SICK—WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Now you would not willingly pay for that that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I pay to all "don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No help, No pay" contract.

I gladly risk my name to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails. Let others do the same or else pass their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, try my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the stomach, heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not say this for I do not diagnosis the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. Years ago I cast away that mistaken idea in medicine. The books below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a tiny hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a silken thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its nerve-guiding desire or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys each have their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize those weak or failing inside nerves. All of these facts tell why I am able to say "it is free if it fails".

This is why I say take no chances on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer.

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to issue my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line please—and thus save disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some nerve confusion. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

THE JONESES' VACATION.

A game that children of any age will enjoy and which takes little preparation is the Jones' vacation. One of the girls is selected as Mrs. Jones and one of the boys as Mr. Jones. You have ready a suit case, and at a given signal Mr. and Mrs. Jones must unlock it and put on the things they find inside. It is a good idea to have a hat, a long coat, a veil, scarf, gloves and pocketbook for Mrs. Jones and a coat, hat, collar (a large one), necktie and gloves for Mr. Jones. They must dress in these as quickly as possible, for some one is timing them, and then they must lock the suit case and rush off with it to the train. That must be the farthest point you can select, usually the front door. After they have hit the front door a good hard thump they must rush back again, take off the things and pack them again. Now it is the turn of another couple to be Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and when they all have tried the couple who made the trip in the shortest time are judged the winners.

It is well to use coats and hats that you do not need to treat carefully, for naturally they are apt to get rumpled in the excitement of the game. Don't forget the collar, in which you should put a large stud, for it always is interesting to see any one in a hurry struggle with a collar button.

A Brave Answer.

There was sharp fighting between the English and French in the Windward Islands in 1778 when General Meadows conquered St. Lucia not, however, without himself being severely wounded at the very beginning of the engagement. The general, though wounded, would not leave the field for a moment, and when the action was over he visited every wounded officer and man before he would receive the surgeon's attention himself. His heart was greatly cheered by an answer given to him by a young subaltern Lieutenant Gomm of the Forty-sixth regiment, who in the heat of action was wounded in the eye.

"I hope you have not lost your eye, lieutenant," said the general.

"I believe I have, sir," replied Gomm "but with the other I shall see victorious this day."

The brave young fellow had his wish.—London Scraps.

A RUSH OF BUSINESS.

One of the leading men of Louisville, reported to be one of the richest, got a bad start in business. He began by being a photographer, but found that the business didn't come up to expectations. He therefore wisely decided to sell out and start at something else. He finally interested some people in the proposition and appointed a time when they should come and look things over.

He now has the reputation of being shrewd, and that this is not a complimentary designation only is indicated by what happened then. He inserted an advertisement in the daily papers in small enough type not to attract everybody's attention and yet conspicuously enough to win consideration from those who make a point of looking for bargains, announcing that on a certain day he would take pictures free of charge. By a coincidence the day he set was the day when the prospective purchasers of his business were to be there.

The ad., as usual, paid, and that afternoon his gallery was crowded with visitors. They thronged in and out, and he could not take care of them rapidly enough, even with the aid of several assistants. When the folks he intended to do business with came he greeted them with a crown of disappointment, explaining that he was simply so busy that he couldn't see them then and asked them to come back in the morning, when things would likely have slackened up. They agreed and went away duly impressed.

He sold out to them next day, and it is perhaps superfluous to add that he got more for his outfit than he would have done if it hadn't been for the modest little advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW INSECTS BREATHE.

System of Tubes That Run the Length of Their Bodies.

Landlubber animals have lungs, and sea creatures have gills. But insects have neither one nor the other. They have a complex system of tubes running throughout the whole length of the body by means of which air is conveyed to every part of the system. As they are destined to contain nothing but air, they are strongly supported to guard against collapse from pressure.

This support is furnished by means of a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, much in the same way that a garden hose is protected with wire. There are generally two of these tubes which run the whole length of the insect's body.

Many flies, as larvae, live in the water. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates act and absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three feather-like protections. By means of these the larva causes currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

The gnat also lives in the water as a larva. But it has no gills; therefore it cannot breathe the oxygen in the water, but must breathe air. This is done by means of a spicade situated at the tip of its tail. Indeed, the tail is prolonged into a little tube. The larva floats along head downward in the water with this tube just above the surface to enable it to breathe. After some time it is provided with two little tubes, which act in the same manner.—Chicago Tribune.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wellahra Point, which is now one of the choice harborside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru careened their galleon on the beech at Woollahra Point.

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coat-tails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was buried, dishevelled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Reh," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again."—Stretchy Bits.

AN ANGEL UNAWARES.

The Ring She Sold and the Happiness That Came to Her.

By JEROME SPRAGUE.

[Copyright, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.]

Mr. Kendall, building a bonfire on the back lot, grumbled, "What's the use?"

Mrs. Kendall came to the kitchen door. "Well, I don't see how we can help taking her in."

"One more mouth to feed," said Mr. Kendall as he piled boxes and papers on the flames.

"Well, I told her," said Mrs. Kendall anxiously, "that she'd have to take pot luck, and that you always had your chop or egg for breakfast because you worked so hard, and that the children and I ate the leftovers, and she said that was all right—that she'd eat the leftovers too."

"Humph!" said Mr. Kendall. "She'll get tired of that."

But she didn't get tired of it. She ate hash and warmed over potatoes and fried bread and mysterious culinary resurrections and said to Mrs. Kendall smilingly, "Everything tastes so good."

"I'm glad you think so, Miss Millicent," Sarah Kendall said. "You always have had everything so much nicer that I am almost ashamed to put these things before you."

Millicent looked thoughtful. She couldn't tell Sarah the story of the rigid economy that she had practiced during the last years of her residence in the old home. She couldn't tell how good the hot, substantial food tasted after the months of cold bread and coffee; of how Mrs. Kendall's savory Irish stews and ham and cabbage made her feel as if she had feasted royally when contrasted to the butterless bread and meatless hashes on which she had dined for over a year.

To be sure, there had been cut glass and silver on the table. But these Miss Millicent's mother would never have allowed sold, so that the two lonely women, the last cent of their income swallowed up by bad investments, had sewed a little for intimate friends, who would not tell, and had thus managed to keep up the appearance of gentility.

But when old Mrs. Estabrook died it all had to come out. Everybody in Twining Town knew at last that Miss Millicent, whose family had for generations lorded it over the surrounding country, was left without a penny and except for the kindness of her old servant, Sarah Kendall, would have had to be dependent upon the charity of the town.

Miss Millicent bore her misfortunes with seeming calmness. It was so good to be filled once more with food, to sit by Sarah's warm fireside instead of shivering over a few coals in the great bare drawing room, that the little lady forgot pride, forgot everything but that she was comfortable.

She sewed for Sarah's seven children and earned her place in the household.

But Mr. Kendall grumbled. It was an extra mouth, he kept insisting.

"It's an extra help, too," Sarah told him, with flashing eyes. "You don't think how much her sewing lifts off me."

Miss Millicent was not blind to Kendall's attitude. But she endured patiently, for Sarah's loyalty and the love of the little children made up for many things. But the time came when even Sarah could not protect her from Amos' crossness.

"It's hard enough to earn a living for your own," he flung out one Saturday night as he came in with a heaped up basket of provisions. "Seven mouths to feed and one extra—it's enough to make a man break down—and butter at 35 cents."

Sarah flashed an anxious glance at Miss Millicent, but the little lady went on sewing calmly, and the good woman sighed with relief.

But Miss Millicent had heard, and that night when she went to her little room, high up in the eaves, she took from its hiding place the one treasure left to her out of the wreck of her fortune.

It was the pearl ring that John Tremont had given her on their betrothal. When the engagement was broken later, because of her mother's stern decree, John had refused to take the ring back.

"I want you to keep it until you die, Millie," he had said. "I don't blame you. Your mother doesn't think I'm your social equal, and I guess she's right. If I were sure I could make you happy I'd run away with you. But I'm not sure. You are so fine above me, dearest."

So Miss Millicent through all the stress of poverty had kept the ring. But it seemed a sacrilege to sell it now. But the need was urgent. She must not take bread from the mouths of Sarah Kendall's children.

On Monday, therefore, Miss Millicent for the first time in her life entered a little secondhand jewelry shop, and when she came out there was a roll of bills tucked away in her small bag.

With a shrewd intuition she knew that she must not let Amos know that she had any money. He would not be satisfied until he had it in his possession, and he would spend it as recklessly as he did his wages.

So it happened that mysterious packages began to appear at the Kendall mansion. One week it would be a little pig ready for roasting, the next a leg of lamb with greens. Again it was a basket of groceries, a bucket of oysters, and on Thanksgiving appeared a turkey.

"There," Sarah said triumphantly as she showed the turkey to Amos, "you can't complain now that you've got too many to feed."

"It's no credit to her," Amos grumbled, "that we get the things."

"Well, I'll bet it is," Sarah said. "Some of her old friends are probably doing for her that way. They don't want to hurt her pride by offering it openly."

But if the Kendalls had observed closely they would have seen that Miss Millicent rarely partook of the luxuries that graced their table. To her sensitive soul it was blood money that she had taken for John Tremont's ring.

But Amos ate and bragged to his neighbors. "We had spring lamb yesterday," or "Not many people can eat strawberries at this season."

Miss Millicent spent recklessly. She wanted to make Amos good natured, and she had found a way.

But she was not happy. The possession of the ring had seemed to bind her to her old lover. She did not know where he was, whether living or dead, but he had seemed to be in her life until she had sold his ring.

Daily she went to the little jewel shop and looked in the window where the ring was displayed. Inside the golden circle were the words "To Dearest." She wondered if some other lover would buy it and use that inscription secondhand.

One day as she stood, a little fragile figure with faded curls falling in old fashioned style over her thin, white cheeks, a man stopped beside her.

"Millicent," he said softly.

She flashed up at him a startled glance. "Oh, John, John!" she gasped. "I had to sell it."

"Sell what?"

"My ring—the ring you gave me."

It all came out then—her story of poverty, his story of work and acquirement of wealth in the far west.

"And I guess I'm good enough to take care of you now, Millie," he said triumphantly as he finished.

"But I'm such a poor little old thing," she faltered.

"Don't," he said quickly. "You are young to me, and what's forty-five? Why, we've a long, long life ahead of us yet, dearest."

And with that he went in and purchased another ring and also one of plain gold, and in the morning they were married, with Sarah Kendall for matron of honor.

After that the Kendalls lived on a wave of prosperity, for John Tremont never forgot Sarah's kindness to Millicent.

And whenever Amos Kendall grumbled about his work or worries Sarah always stopped him. "You just remember how you used to fuss about Miss Millie," she would tell him, "and all the time she was an angel unawares."

Running Water Frozen.

Running water is usually the last thing to freeze solid, and when it does the cold must be extreme. J. Claude White in the Wide World Magazine gives the following description of this very rare occurrence—the freezing of a mountain torrent in a single night:

The phenomenon was one that I have never before experienced—a running river frozen solid in a night! When we arrived the waters of this stream, tumbling over the great bowlders and rushing through the tortuous channels, made a deafening roar. Gradually, but almost imperceptibly, the tumult decreased, while, worn out after a hard day, we fell asleep.

A few hours later, when we awoke, a deathly silence prevailed, and on looking out, to my intense surprise, I found that the rushing torrent of the previous night had been transformed into a solid mass of ice! In this region of extreme temperatures I had on other occasions seen torrents frozen, but never under such startling conditions. On looking round we found that everything we possessed was also frozen solid, including our saddle of mutton, which was merely a block of ice. We were ravenous, but we got no satisfaction from gnawing at lumps of rock which ought to have been a succulent joint, and so, despite our hunger, we had to content ourselves with a little tea—to make which we melted ice—and a few biscuits.

Worse.

"Does your wife put you on the carpet when you displease her?"

"Worse than that. We have hardwood floors."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

All Probable Future Events Arranged For in Advance.

On the appointed evening I arrived at the given time, and after an excellent dinner, at which all members of both families were present, we repaired to the great drawing room, where the chairs had been arranged in a semicircle about two small, round tables. Presently two grave old gentlemen, the family notaries, who had not been seen to smile during the whole dinner, took their seats in front of the tables, and when we were all assembled the elder commenced to read a long memoir, which he announced he had compiled with the help of his colleague. Then, to my utter amazement, he began to name all the possessions of the future bride and bridegroom—so many bonds and mortgages, so many houses, farms, woodlands, prairies, articles of personal adornment, furniture and jewels; the ways in which they might be used or disposed of, what would happen in case no children were born of the marriage, in case of death of one or the other of the parties. In fact, all the misfortunes, all the most terrible and saddest events, had been foreseen, and cold chills began running down my back as I heard each new case mentioned. I was indignant. I positively revolted. Why were miserable questions of business allowed to foreshadow the charming union of these two young people, who had known and loved each other since childhood and whose true and pure affection was innocent of all monetary interests? Could not all have been spared them?

The next day I frankly opened my heart to Jeanne and her mother, explaining the sensations I had experienced the previous evening and saying that in my country, when two persons were about to marry, as long as there was love on both sides and the man was able to support his wife all such questions were usually left undiscussed.

They both listened to me somewhat astonished, and then Mme. de R——, whose great good sense has always convinced me, replied smilingly:

"But, my dear, for us marriage is not only the joining of two young and loving hearts. We go further and consider the generations to come, the founding of a new family—a home. As every one knows, the first years are often the most difficult, and we therefore take precautions to smooth the paths of our children by settling in their presence all business matters, once and forever, and arranging things so that the new life may develop under the best of circumstances."—Scribner's Magazine.

THEY WERE STUBBORN.

Your Cornishman can be very "set" and stubborn. His determination of spirit is more remarkable than admirable at times, though it may be amusing.

Mr. Hook, the late royal academician, was once, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his book on the "Land's End," on the sands at Whitesand bay, working at a marine picture, when two natives came up and planted themselves just behind him. There was nothing the artist hated more than to be watched by strangers over his shoulders in this way, and pretty soon he wheeled around on them and angrily asked them how long they were going to stand there.

His manner served to arouse their spirit, and they replied brusquely that they were going to stay as long as they thought proper.

He insisted on knowing just how long they were going to stay there to his annoyance, and by and by, after some more loud and angry discussion, one of them incautiously declared they would stand at that very spot for an hour.

Yes, they returned, they would not stir one inch from that spot for an hour.

"Very well," he said and pulled up his easel; then, marching off to a distance of thirty yards, he set it up again and resumed his painting.

And there, within thirty yards of his back, the two men stood for one hour and a quarter, for, as they did not have a watch, they were afraid of going away before the hour had expired. Then they marched off.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its accumulation and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the men who have built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all its costs in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a maintenance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other special considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent favor the liability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits are consequently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient capacity on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 21 provides that a fixed 7 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, to an amount of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to office, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

THE LAWS OF CASTE.

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Bihar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and in other parts of Europe. In notifying this fact to the Kayastha Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas. Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever.

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas received in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayaschitta" as ordained by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without invoking the Supreme Being as inculcated by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the customs of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you will live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry, and shall have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

A HUNGRY TIGER.

Persistent Attack on a Camp Reported From India.

The Indian mail brings the story of an exciting adventure which befell a surveying party in Assam. They were attacked by a tiger. The party were working in the Lushai hills adjoining the Cachar district of Assam, and the tiger appeared at the camp of surveyor Gopal Singh. It sprang at the surveyor and one of his khalasis, but fortunately touched neither of them, and disappeared as suddenly as it had come. Three days later the tiger returned, and seized a khalasi, who was washing his cooking pots in a stream 20 yards from the camp. A native armed with a stick, rushed to the rescue, and tried to beat the tiger off. When other men arrived the brute dropped its prey and disappeared again. In a few minutes it was back again. In spite of the shouts of the natives it seized the plucky native who had gone to the rescue of the first man. Once more it was driven off, and again it returned, this time to seize a third khalasi.

Frightened away again, the beast left the camp, but the party sat up all night surrounded by a chain of fires. At daybreak they proceeded to a Lushai village. An armed party set off for the abandoned camp to collect the goods left behind. They found that the tents, bedding, blankets, and bags of rice had been dragged about by the tiger, and on a sight-rule and plane-table were marks of the brute's fangs. When Mr. Williams, the camp officer, met the party all the men were so profoundly affected that not one of them could speak above a whisper. They begged not to be sent back to the same locality, but to be allowed to work for the rest of the field season in the open cultivated country. The first man seized by the beast died four days afterwards.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Then bottle again up its controlling or "bottle nerve." When these nerves fail, then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discuss and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

"We have a strike in our factory every day, off and on."

For the Babies.

Although this advice is more directly for babies during the first year of life, the sense of it applies quite as well to other children.

Don't overfeed them and don't let them overfeed themselves.

Don't give them rich foods—meats, gravies, pastries, cake, etc.—nor a great variety. The simpler and plainer the better—plenty of milk, whole wheat bread, oatmeal, baked potatoes, baked apples and fresh fruits of all kinds, except bananas, in season, but be sure the fruit is ripe and fresh.

Keep up the daily bath until it becomes a fixed habit.

Keep them out in the open air as much as possible the whole year around and send them into the country whenever you can do so, but only to places where the water is pure.

Keep them cool.

Don't overdress them. The lighter and simpler the clothing the better.

Can't Be Cut Off With a Shilling.

French parents (or, at all events those with more than 2 shillings to dispose of by will) are precluded from the gratification of cutting a mutinous child off with a shilling. A reserve is established by law which no testator can bequeath away from his offspring. A Frenchman with one child can dispose of half his property according to his pleasure; the other half must inevitably pass to the child. Those with two children can dispose of only one-third of their property, those with three children of one-fourth, and so on according to the size of the family. Stern parents occasionally seek to evade the law by subterfuge, but the disposal of property in France is hedged round with so many restrictions that family black sheep are rarely mulcted of their legal inheritance.—London Mail.

Not the Same.

The new minister was making a duty call at the home of one of his flock, and, taking a little six-year-old miss upon his knee, he said, "Now, my dear, you want to be a Christian, like mamma, don't you?"

"No, sir," was the unexpected reply "I would rather sing in the choir."—Chicago News.

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars?" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting or personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to ask for information with the only thing I have to give in real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. S. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm, I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No motion was ever undertaken in the matter.

Adjusting the Claim.

The insurance men got busy yesterday adjusting the claim of the City Trust Commissioners as a result of the fire in the City Hall on Saturday night.

Fire, Water & Light.

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee is being arranged for next Friday night to look into several light matters.

Nurses Needed.

A number of local nurses were called recently to Belleville to take care of the inmates of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, who are suffering from measles and smallpox. Dr. Coughlin did not forget the girls at his old home when the occasion arose.

Snow Storm.

The first thing that looked like a snow storm this season hit the city yesterday and in places a little snow could actually be seen. That little, however, will help some, but a whole lot more is needed.

Gilmour Street Lights.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, said he was going to put new 40-candle power lamps on Gilmour street as an experiment and to demonstrate to the council their advantages. As yet, however, no lamps have been put up, although the committee have marked the place and given the order.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Aldermen to Meet.

A meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council will be held shortly for the purpose of receiving a deputation from the Board of Trade, which has a couple of important matters to place before the aldermen.

Wires Are Up.

Victoria Park will be open this winter and the Horticultural Society has decided not to put wires around the entire park. Instead they are stringing them along the walks in order to prevent people from crossing the grass.

Habeas Corpus.

Chief Justice Falconbridge granted a writ of habeas corpus, returnable tomorrow in the case of Angus Macdonald, sentenced by Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble of Peterborough, for a term of two years, less one day in the Central Prison, on a charge of theft and assault.

Industrial Commissioner.

There appears to be more talk about who is to be the Industrial Commissioner than who is to be the next mayor. The commissioner's salary is very much larger than the honorarium voted to his worship. There have already been several well known local men mentioned for the former position.

Shipments of Buffalo.

Advice was received today at the head office of the Advertising Department of the Grand Trunk that two more shipments of Buffalo had been received at Buffalo Park, Wainwright, Alta. One of these was from Ravalli, Montana, and the other from Banff Park, and were safely unloaded at Buffalo Park on October 28th. These shipments comprise sixty-eight head and the total now in the park aggregate 578.

Snow Plowing.

Arrangements are being made for tenders for snow plowing for the coming winter. The season is drawing near when the snow plows will be needed, but the Board of Works should get a pretty low tender this year as all indications point to a mild and short winter. The prices the past few years have been too high and it is time to cut them down.

Historic Posts of Hudson's Bay Co.

Many of the historic posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta and British Columbia will be distributed next year through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is even now conquering the passage of the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range.

One of the most notable of these old posts and which was used as a base for the supply of the posts in the interior of British Columbia is Jasper House, situated on the Athabasca River and about 200 miles along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

Jasper House was built about 1800 and the records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that it was established in the forest on the shore of a small lake surrounded by high rocks, except on the lake side.

In 1817 the Factor in charge was Jasper Hawes, It is his Christian name which gives the name to this post, which, however, in the early years of 1st establishment was popularly called the "Rocky Mountain House," although the post of that name was afterwards officially established at the junction of the North Saskatchewan River and the Clearwater River in Alberta.

Jasper Hawes was celebrated for the great shock of yellow hair that he wore and the Indian and Half Breed hunters referred to him as "Tete Jaune," thus Yellow Yellowhead Pass, at the portal of which Jasper House is located, and beyond the Yellowhead, Tete Jaune Cache where the parting of the ways came for many a party of Coureurs des bois of the Hudson's Bay Company, covering the rich fur country of the interior of British Columbia. Even as the Buffalo trails which deeply intented the prairie in every direction a few years since are being rapidly obliterated by the march of settlement and the building of railways, so will the land marks of early Canadian frontier history be only a cold record in the files of the fur trading companies.

Cameron—Connal.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Henderson Connal, only daughter of Mr. Peter Connal, and Mr. Wm. George Cameron of New York City was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 2.30 at the residence of the bride's father, 270 Brock street, Rev. Robert Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's church, officiating.

The ceremony took place in the beautifully decorated drawing room in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. To the strains of Lohrhengin's wedding march, played by Miss Gladys Cameron, and preceded by two little flower girls, the bride leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away, entered and took her place beside the groom The bride looked very charming in a gown of white liberty satin, with trimmings of bebe Irish lace, and wearing the convention bridal veil. She carried a sheath bouquet of roses and lillies of the valley. The little flower girls, Margaret and Janey Connal, nieces of the bride, looked winsome in dresses of white and carrying baskets of daisies. The bride and groom were unattended.

After the ceremony when hearty congratulations had been bestowed on the young couple the guests sat down to a dainty luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron left on the 4.38 train en route for New York City. Mrs. Cameron traveling in a suit of walnut lady's cloth, with an amathyst draped toque.

Greenlease—Hall.

St. Paul's church was the scene of a very pretty autumn wedding yesterday morning when Miss Helen Mary Hall, daughter of Mr. James A. Hall, sheriff of the County of Peterborough, was united in the sacred bonds of matrimony to Mr. Fuller Baird Greenlease, son of Mr. George W. Greenlease of Montreal. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robt. Pogue. The wedding was a very quiet one and was witnessed only by the bride's immediate relatives. To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the bride entered the church with her father, who gave her away. She looked quite charming in her traveling suit of amethyst and wearing a hat of amethyst marabou. The bride and groom were unattended. During the service Miss Helen Davies sang "O Fair! O Sweet O Holy. Mr. John Crane played the organ accompaniment. The bride's flowers were mauve chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Greenlease left on the 11.45 G.T.R. train for a trip through Quebec, and returning will reside in Montreal.

WATER GAUGE BURST.

C.P.R. Fireman Badly Scalded.

"It so happened," said Duffus to our representative, "that I had a box of Zam-Buk in my pocket, which I used for a sore on my lip, and when I had recovered from the first shock of the accident, I produced the balm and had it applied freely to the scalded parts. At the time I applied it I was suffering acute agony, but within a wonderfully short time Zam Buk gave me ease. I was able to continue my journey, and upon reaching home I obtained more Zam-Buk and continued the treatment. It acted wonderfully well, and in a few days had the wound nicely healing. I don't know anything so fine as a healer of burns, scalds, cuts, and similar injuries which workers are so liable to and in my opinion a box of Zam-Buk should be kept handy in every worker's home."

There is something different and superior about Zam-Buk. Time and again workers in all branches of trade have proved its vast superiority over the advertised ointments and salves of the day. No doubt the fact that Zam-Buk is made entirely from herbal essences and extracts, while ordinary ointments contain more or less animal fats and oils, goes a long way to explain Zam-Buk's superiority. However this may be, the fact remains that in four continents to which it has been introduced within ten years it has become the leading household balm!

For burns, cuts, scalds, bruisers, eczema, piles, ulcers, ring-worm, itch, salt-rheum, bad leg, festering sores, chapped places, cold-sores, frost-bites and all skin injuries and diseases Zam-Buk is beyond doubt a most mgrvellous cure.

Druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box and the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, will mail a boxi post free, upon receipt of price, to any of our readers who may have difficulty in obtaining a supply of the genuine Zam-Buk from their local stores.

A great treat is in store for you on Friday evening, November 26th, when Fraulein Stolle will give an illustrated lecture—"Old Friends and New in the Realms of Art," in the Collegiate Institute Hall, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association. Desperate Efforts will be Made to Remove Bodies from the Mine

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 18.—The cry of the desperate widows and orphans of Cherry: "Open the shaft, open the shaft," will be heeded today if human lives have to be sacrificed to reclaim the entombed dead.

"We are going down in that mine today. We will conquer it or it will conquer us. Unless we succeed we will never come out alive," said James Taylor, Illinois mining inspector today. Morning saw risen over the air shaft of the St. Paul mine a heavy structure of wooden beams which will support the burden of grappling tackle to be lowered into the depths.

Women—many of them almost insane from the grief that has consumed them for five days, reached the desolate scene before sunrise. "They are going down to get the poor fellows today," they were told. Under the direction of the mining inspectors of Illinois, the most hazardous efforts will be made to satisfy the demands of the breaved to remove the bodies.

After the preliminary exploration into the air shaft last night, the inspectors and mining experts reported an encouraging condition and it was determined to take advantage of the low temperature at the bottom of the emergency shaft.

It was proposed to lower two men armored with oxygen helmets. They will enter the galleries and penetrate as far toward the main shaft as they can. If bodies are encountered they will be fastened to the grappling tackle and raised.

Lumberman was Killed Heavy Tree Fell on Him

Mr. Harve Varty of Belmont township, was instantly killed at Martin Clarke's lumber camp Wednesday night by a falling tree. The camp is situated on Otter Creek several miles north of Burnt Dam where the Havelock electric light power house is situated. It was late in the evening and was becoming quite dark when the unfortunate accident occurred. Mr. Varty, with other men were cutting down a tree, and in some way Mr. Varty got in the way as it fell, and he was instantly killed. He was a middle-aged man and has three brothers residing in Belmont township, namely, George, Louis and German Varity. The lumber camp had just got nicely started when the accident occurred.

Candidates Shaping Up for Mayoralty Contest

The next six weeks will be anxious ones in municipal circles. There are no candidates out yet for the mayor's chair, although it is reported that seven and probably eight of the aldermen have serious intentions. Among them are, Aldermen Morgan, Phelan, Gillespie, Buller, Hicks, Morrow, McIntyre and Dufus. To this number may be added, from the outside, Dr. W. A. Morrison, E. F. Mason, R. F. McWilliams, and Jas. Kendry. If any one else knows of a more likely man than any of those mentioned above, the name should be handed in without delay. From the looks of things, however, there will be more mayors than aldermen. The above list will probably dwindle down to two or three within the next three weeks and then probably one or two more will get cold feet and stay with the big show.

Yesterday, however, it was quite commonly rumored that Aldermen Buller and Hicks would be the scratch men. They would make quite an interesting fight but "Oh, you price of coal." The big jewelary and fire sales wouldn't be in it with the coal and wood sale.

There will be automobiles and flying machines all over this city on January 3rd, and when you see a fellow smiling all over his face you can bet he wants something. Ald. Morgan says he has closed a contract with Wright Bros. for one of their fastest sky-scrapers. He will win the contest or bust—the machine. The automobile aldermen, however, are getting their machines polished up so that they will shine like diamonds. Ald. Gillespie spends two hours before breakfast every morning on his and he is putting a mirror in each seat so the ladies can see that their hats are on straight before they go to the polls. Ald. Morrow, however, figures on getting an even break with the men voters, and will win with the suffragettes. There is a lot of quiet canvassing to be done first before any of the prospects are closed.

Farmer and Wife and Mother-in-Law Burned to Death

Collingwood, Nov. 18. — James Dand, his wife, and mother-in-law, Mrs. Fowler, were burned to death this morning in their residence one mile south of the town. The fire was discovered at 7.30 a.m., by John Duffas and John Ziegel, two neighbors, who immediately ran over to the burning building. When they reached there the kitchen and roof were on fire. Not seeing anyone around they hammered the door, and took every other method of alarm without success, although they were sure that the persons were upstairs sleeping. Soon the fire was sweeping all through the house, and all hope of rescue was abandoned. As soon as the fire had burned itself out, a search was made forthe bodies, and one trunk, minus the members, was found. It is impossible, however, to say whose body it was. The other two are believed to be under the ruins in the cellar, and will probably be found before night. Mr. Dand has for some time been an invalid from rheumatism, and has been confined to his bed. He was 60 years of age.

CRYSTAL THEATER.

Barrie, Nov. 17.—A serious fire broke out at 10.30 tonight in a block just west of the G.T.R. station, on Dunlop street. The block contained the Crystal Theater, the gas works office, the C.P.R. ticket office, the G.N.W. Company's office, the Gazette printing office, and Armstrong's barber shop, which were all gutted.

The Crystal Theater was run by Mr. Guthrie, who it will be remembered had a suit against Mr. Edwards, proprietor of the Crystal Theater here. Mr. Guthrie was in Peterborough when the fire occurred.

HOCKEY BOYS.

Should Be Some Gym. Work at the Y.M.C.A. Now.

The Queen's University Hockey Club are doing some work in the gymn. in preparation for the hockey season. The Peterborough players could do nothing better than follow suit. The gym at the Y.M.C.A. is an ideal place for the preliminary work and it would do much to help Peterborough win two championships this year.

Pope Declares War Against Church is with Aim of Undermining basis of Christianity

Rome, Nov. 18.—Pope Pius in an address to the French pilgrims whom he received today declared that France was making war against the Church with an aim of undermining the basis of Christianity.

The pontiff said that Catholicism was suffering persecution by the French Government under the pretext of the separation of state and church.

All this, the pope said, instead of depressing must animate Catholics to defend their religious rights, and he concluded his address by urging the faithlul to cling to the Episcapacy. The papal words are accepted here as confirmation of the opinion that the vatican believes the struggle organized by the French government on the school question is intended to be a decisive battlement for the complete effacement of Christianity as a factor in the rearing of children, or in other words the suppression of Christianity in the France of tomorrow. It is asserted that the vatican is ready to fight on two questions, namely the denial of legal acknowledgement of the Catholic hierarchy and scholastic instruction.

HOCKEY CLUB ROOMS.

Suggested That Players be Presented With Y.M.C.A. Tickets.

As a result of the article in yesterday morning's Times in reference to the hockey boys' club rooms, the suggestion has been made, and it is a good one, too, that the Hockey Club furnish the players with membership tickets for the Y.M.C.A., where there is already all club room facilities, as well as excellent baths, gymnasium, etc. The Y.M.C.A. is very handy to the rink and the hockey boys will always be welcome. The expense of fitting up club rooms in the rink along with shower baths, etc., will be considerable and it would seem unnecessary with such splendid facilities so near at hand and where everything is looked after and provided. There are large, comfortable and well furnished rooms, where the players can rest in and spend an hour or two after the games, and where they can meet at any time. This is a suggestion for the hockey executive to consider.

HOW ALARMS ARE SOUNDED.

The number of the ward from which the alarm is sent in is always sounded on the bell, which also constitutes the first number of the box nearest to the fire, and when an alarm is sounded the ward number is given first, then a pause, and then the remaining numbers of the box.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

15 is the number of the box at the corner of Perry and George streets, in No. 1 Ward; the alarm is given by sounding 1, then a pause, then sounding 5 distinct strokes. Or take box 23, at the corner of George and Hunter streets, in No. 2 Ward; the alarm would sound 2 strokes, then a pause, then 3 distinct strokes, indicating the fire to be in No. 2 Ward, and in the vicinity of box 23.

When the fire is out 2 strokes of the bell are given.

SOUNDING AN ALARM.

To sound an alarm, break the glass, open the big door. Then wait at the box until the firemen arrive, so as to direct them where to go.

More Wharfage Needed by Peterborough City

The question of more wharfage for Peterborough has been on the minds of some of the aldermen as well as the members of the board of trade. Ald.—Morrow at the manufacturers' committee meeting the other night said that the city council might well take up the question of a wharf along the water front. Some two or three years ago the minister of public works had plans prepared for a wharf all along the water front that had been filled in with the dredging from the river and even an appropriation of $10,000 was placed in the estimates for the construction of the concrete wall. For some reason the money was never spent and Peterborough is still without a wharf, except the little piece at Wolfe street.

The time is not far off when the city will need the water front for shipping purposes. That is what the land was filled in for and apparently that is what the aldermen intend to use it for. Certainly the little landing place is only an excuse of a wharf for the shipping interests in Peterborough. There was a time when it would answer all requirements but navigation trade has increased so rapidly that the Wolfe street wharf will not accommodate the passenger boats to say nothing of the freighters. The city needs the wharf along the water front said Ald. Morrow, and the council can do nothing better than to go to the minister of Public Works with a request to have it built this coming year.

Alf. Shrubb Defeats Fred Simpson in Lively 10-Mile Race

Toronto, Nov. 19.—Fred Simpson, who runs Red Hawk 12 miles here Friday night at Excelsior Rink, arrived today from Fort William, where he ran Alf Shrubb 10 miles. He brings with him Fort William papers to show that the race was a clinker.

"Oh, yes, Shrubb beat me," says Simpson. "He always will as long as he gets me as he did at the armories last winter, with a cold, or at Fort William on three days' notice. He forgets that I farm for a living and run for a side graft, and am not always in the pink of condition, like he is, and ready to run all the time. Anyway, I made him run 10 miles in 55.25 over a 12½ lap track on a slippery floor.

A GREAT RACE.

The Fort William Herald says; "To say that last night's ten-mile grind at the Arena Rink was an interesting affair, would be putting it mildly. It was more than interesting; it was exciting every minute from start to finish, and the five or six hundred people who witnessed it left the building after everything was over satisfied with the performance of Alf. Shrubb and Fred Simpson as runners. It was indeed a grand race all the way and one that will be remembered for some time by those who were fortunate enough to see it."

The Herald says that it was only after a mile of ding-donging that Shrubb shook Simpson, and that it took him two miles to gain the first 220 yards on him. He sprinted half a dozen times effectually before he got away again, and at five miles had Simpson two laps back. The big Indian glued to him like a leech from the five mile on, meeting sprint with sprint, and in the final dash, a two lap sprint, beat Shrubb out, although he was two laps behind.

Christian Scientists Drive Out Mrs. Stetson

Boston, Mass., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, former first reader of the First Church of Christ (Scientist), of New York, and second in importance in the cult of Mrs. Mary Eddy, was today, by order of the Board of Directors, formally excommunicated and her name ordered stricken from the rolls of the church.

The evidence in support of the charges against Mrs. Stetson consisted of the affidavits of 27 persons, five letters written by Mrs. Stetson to her students, and a composite letter written by some of her students and approved by her.

The evidence in defence of the complaint consisted of one affidavit, two letters, and Mrs. Stetson's personal testimony and statements.

STRANGE STORY.

Peculiar Actions and Death of Well-Known Cleveland Man.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 18.—The body of a supposed tramp, who died in a 10-cent lodging house last Thursday, was last night identified as the remains of W. C. Lytle, vice-president and general manager of the Motor Improvement Company, who has been missing since July 15. The identification was effected by Albert L. Talcott, attorney, and a constable from a justice court, who was summoned to the county morgue on advices from New York. Lytle disappeared immediately following a minor dispute over a diamond ring in which a woman procured his arrest. Worry over the trouble affected Lytle's bearing toward his friends, and a few days before the day set for his trial he vanished. Talcott was his bondsman, having signed the $1,000 bail warrant.

Last week a ragged stranger appeared at the lodging house referred to and registered as M. Marion. The next morning he was found dead, penniless. The cause of his death is still a mystery to the corner and other physicians who examined him.

Wish Canada to go to Cost of 18 Millions

At the Start and Spend Three Millions Yearly—Government to Adopt a Much More Modest Scheme

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—This country may know what the Hon. Mr. Brodeur and the Hon. Sir Frederick Borden heard and said and concluded at the Imperial Conference on Military and Naval Defence. The report of that body having been released in the British House of Commons, the same was released yesterday afternoon in the Canadian Parliament. It shows that under the British Admiralty's recommendation Canada has before her two alternative plans for a navy.

One providing for:
Four Bristol cruisers.
One Boadicea cruiser, ansd
Six torpedo destroyers.

The other providing for three Bristols and four destroyers only.

DIFFERENCE IN COST.

The first navy would cost $11,690,000 to start with, and $2,426,500 per annum for up-keep; the second, $7,255,000 initially, and $1,583,000 for maintenance. The first would employ 2,194 men, and the second 1,408.

It is understood here that the government's decision is that Canada shall adopt the second of the two schemes. A bill to provide for same will be brought down at the present session of Parliament.

What the British Admiralty thought Canada, or any other colonial nation, ought to have for the beginning of its navy was: One armored cruiser of the Dreadnought type, three unarmored cruisers of Bristol type, six destroyers, and three submarines. This is set forth in the Admiralty Memorandum, constitutes part of the report. The initial cost would be $8,500,000, and yearly maintenance $3,000,000. The Canadian, delegates, however, pointed out to the conference that Canada's double seaboard made this fleet unit unsuitable. The admiralty therefore concurred in the two modified schemes outlined above.

If the first scheme was adopted the Broadicea cruiser and the six destroyers would guard the Atlantic coast, together with two of the four Bristol cruisers.

THREE MEN SWAMPED.

In the Icy Waters of Ketchecum Lake on Monday.

Three men were swamped while attempting to cross Ketchecum Lake last Monday morning. The story is told by the Ketchecum Lake Hunt club members, who returned home a few days ago. A little landing place on the lake known as Cochrane is use by the jobbing lumbermen for loading supplies for their camps. On Monday three men with a big canoe loaded at Chochrane and started for their camp near Gull Lake. There was a heavy sea on and the men had a lot of difficulty, but they kept going. They were about 30 feet from shore and not far from the Narrows when the craft was swamped and went down. The men got free and swam to shore but they were nearly frozen stiff. That was about ten o'clock in the morning and they had to stay there until about 3 in the afternoon when a lone canoeist happened to pass and take them aboard Had they missed this opportunity it is hard to say when they would have been rescued, as very few boats are on the waters at this season of the year.

Lindsay's Board of Trade is arranging for the annual Christmas Fair at which dressed poultry occupies a prominent place. This kind of thing is good for a town.

The Christian Science Lecture well Attended

There was a good sized crowd at the Conservatory of Music Hall to hear Prof. Hermann S. Hering, C.G.B., give his lecture on Christian Science, the Science of Salvation." Undoubtedly the speaker handled his subject in a very masterly manner, and he made a deep impression upon those who heard him. Mr. R. J. Todd occupied the chair and introduced the speaker.

Prof. Hering in opening said:

In addressing an intelligent audience upon the subject of "Christian Science, the Science of Salvation," it is well, first of all, to reach a mutual understanding as to the meaning of the terms. Science means exact, systematized, and demonstrable knowledge of facts, laws and causes, while according to Smith's Bible Dictionary salvation means "deliverance from temporal evils and earthly destruction," in other words deliverances from evil. Hence "the Science of Salvation" means in substance that demonstrable knowledge which affords deliverance from evil.

St. Paul admonishes us to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. This Scriptural command means far more than the common belief that salvation is assured by simply having faith or belief in Jesus as the Son of God. Such saving faith is vitaly necessary, but it is only the beginning of our salvation—its spiritual basis.

HEALING METHODS.

The true Christian Scientist reflects the divine Mind, stands on the basis of God, man and the universe as spirit and spiritual, as love and its manifestation, as mind and its ideas—perfect and harmonious. Hence he understands the unreality of matter and evil and knows that man is not sick but that the patient is simply suffering from a false mesmeric belief. From that point he proceeds to correct the errors of belief with the truth of being and thus establishes harmony on a spiritual, scientific basis.

This is a cardinal point in Christian Science healing is that it works divine mind that does the healing and not human thought. In Christian Science healing the human senses serves only as a vehicle for truth. It is the truth alone that effects results

Another cardinal point in Christian Science healing is that it works from the standpoint of the unreality of matter and evil and thus proves the allness and supremacy of God. It includes the knowing and affirmation of truth; the recognition and denial of error.

CAUSE OF SICKNESS AND SIN.

Sickness is the result of mesmerism, illusion. The human thought listens to the arguments of mortal mind instead of refusing to believe them,—hence its ills. The sick are as leep in the mesmerism of material sense and need to be awakened to man's true existence as God's child. Christian Science shows us the way to do this.

THE POULTRY SHOW

IN JANUARY PROMISES TO BE BETTER AND BIGGER THAN EVER.

The Directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association met on Tuesday evening, the President, Mr. Geo. Paxman, presiding. The executive body of this association is composed of fourteen members, and the fact that but two were absent Tuesday evening goes to show the interest that is being manifested to assure the next show being a huge success in every way. The prize list was revised and a large number of special prizes added, including eight silver cups.

The directors have themselves built this year 250 new coops, which, together with those they had on hand, are conceded by fanciers to be the finest in Ontario today. Then they are providing ample accomodation for turkeys, geese and ducks, and are building a bunch of special coops to meet the requirements of 200 pairs of banties and pigeons.

It will be seen by the foregoing that the Peterborough Poultry Association have a Board of Directors who are energetic and fil[illegible] twentieth century enterprise. Despite the unfavorable conditions under which they took hold of the work they are devoting themselves to, they made last January's exhibition a surprising success, and next January's event promises to be the best in this Province. Entries are already coming in fast and the highest measure of confidence in the management is heard on every hand.

A large number of farmers' wives are already fattening turkeys to bid for the cash prizes offered for the three best turkeys, dressed. The first prize will be $6.00, the second $3.00, and the third $1. This will be an attractive exhibit, and is popular with breeders of turkeys. It should bring into this town hundreds of farmers and their families, which will boom things generally during the show, and enhance the value of, and interest in, next January's Poultry Show.

Heaviness at Pit of the Stomach

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a wighty sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

NERVILINE RESTORES WEAK STOMACHS

The above letter comes from Mrs. P. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well-knowm upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

A WAR INCIDENT.

The London correspondent of The New York Sun gives some of the experiences of an officer with the Russian army in the war against Turkey in the later seventies. During the retreat of the Turks towards Constantinople this officer, who was with the pursuing army, saw a baby by the roadside, and ordered a soldier to pick it up. Before he reached the next town nearly epery soldier in the regiment had a child in his arms which had been thrown away by Turkish parents in their mad flight before the Russian advance. At this town he seized a sufficient number of carts to send the children to Turkish villages in the mountains where there was hope that people might feed them. What their fate was he could not tell, but is was reported from other sources that some 2,000 children were thrown into the rivers by their parents anh their bodies actually dammed the stream.

That is what war means. The chief suffering falls, not upon soldiers in the field, but on tender women and helpless babes.

Historic Posts of Hudson's Bay Co.

Many of the historic posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta and British Columbia will be distributed next year through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is even now conquering the passage of the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range.

One of the most notable of these old posts and which was used as a base for the supply of the posts in the Interior of British Columbia is Jasper House, situated on the Athabasca River and about 200 miles along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

Jasper House was built about 1800 and the records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that it was established in the forest on the shore of a small lake surrounded by high rocks, except on the lake side.

In 1817 the Factor in charge was Jasper Hawes, It is his Christian name which gives the name to this post, which, however, in the early years of 1st establishment was popularly called the "Rocky Mountain House," although the post of that name was afterwards officially established at the junction of the North Saskatchewan River and the Clearwater River in Alberta.

Jasper Hawes was celebrated for the great shock of yellow hair that he wore and the Indian and Half Breed hunters referred to him as "Tete Jaune," thus Yellow Yellowhead Pass, at the portal of which Jasper House is located, and beyond the Yellowhead, Tete Jaune Cache where the parting of the ways came for many a party of Coureurs des bois of the Hudson's Bay Company, covering the rich fur country of the interior of British Columbia. Even as the Buffalo trails which deeply indented the prairie in every direction a few years since are being rapidly obliterated by the march of settlement and the building of railways, so will the land marks of early Canadian frontier history be only a cold record in the files of the fur trading companies.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century, its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the discommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from attic or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realisation of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I's had to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

Very Controversial.

They were very controversial in those days.

First.—Bowles wrote a book about Pope.

Second.—Campbell abused Bowles' book on Pope.

Third.—Bowles replied to Campbell's abuse of Bowles on Pope.

Fourth.—Byron wrote an answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Fifth.—John Bull wrote a letter to Byron about Byron's answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Sixth.—Dr. Garnet has a theory of the authorship of John Bull's letter to Byron about Byron's comments on Bowles' answer to—It is like "The House That Jack Built!"—Andrew Lang.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, and, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or ruffling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otolithes, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otolithe increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

A RUSH OF BUSINESS.

One of the leading men of Louisville, reported to be one of the richest, got a bad start in business. He began by being a photographer, but found that the business didn't come up to expectations. He therefore wisely decided to sell out and start at something else. He finally interested some people in the proposition and appointed a time when they should come and look things over.

He now has the reputation of being shrewd, and that this is not a complimentary designation only is indicated by what happened then. He inserted an advertisement in the daily papers in small enough type not to attract everybody's attention and yet conspicuously enough to win consideration from those who make a point of looking for bargains, announcing that on a certain day he would take pictures free of charge. By a coincidence the day he set was the day when the prospective purchasers of his business were to be there.

The ad., as usual, paid, and that afternoon his gallery was crowded with visitors. They thronged in and out, and he could not take care of them rapidly enough, even with the aid of several assistants. When the folks he intended to do business with came he greeted them with a crown of disappointment, explaining that he was simply so busy that he couldn't see them then and asked them to come back in the morning, when things would likely have slackened up. They agreed and went away duly impressed.

He sold out to them next day, and it is perhaps superfluous to add that he got more for his outfit than he would have done if it hadn't been for the modest little advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW INSECTS BREATHE.

System of Tubes That Run the Length of Their Bodies.

Landlubber animals have lungs, and sea creatures have gills. But insects have neither one nor the other. They have a complex system of tubes running throughout the whole length of the body by means of which air is conveyed to every part of the system. As they are destined to contain nothing but air, they are strongly supported to guard against collapse from pressure.

This support is furnished by means of a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, much in the same way that a garden hose is protected with wire. There are generally two of these tubes which run the whole length of the insect's body.

Many flies, as larvae, live in the water. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates act and absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three feather-like protections. By means of these the larva causes currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

The gnat also lives in the water as a larva. But it has no gills; therefore it cannot breathe the oxygen in the water, but must breathe air. This is done by means of a spicule situated at the tip of its tail. Indeed, the tail is prolonged into a little tube. The larva floats along head downward in the water with this tube just above the surface to enable it to breathe. After some time it is provided with two little tubes, which act in the same manner.—Chicago Tribune.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wellahra Point, which is now one of the choice harborside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru careened their galleon on the beach at Woollahra Point.

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coattails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was buried, disheveled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Eh," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again."—Sketchy Bits.

LOVERS' LEAP.

A Lesson in Matchmaking That Brought Double Results.

By NELLIE CRAVEY GILLMORE.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Miss Drusilla looked shrewdly across the reading table at Colonel Weyman. He gave no outward indication of having foolishly lost his passage, and the ominous clattering of scissors on the bare mahogany opposite caused him to glance up with an ostentatious display of surprise.

Miss Drusilla proceeded to divest herself of needle, thimble and yarn before framing her opening words with cool deliberation. "It appears to me, John, that the time for clinching matters between these young people is just about ripe."

Colonel Weyman received this announcement with a beaming face. "Exactly, Drusilla. I was thinking about putting a bug in the young scamp's ear no later than this very morning. You do the same in regard to Penelope. We'll just drop them a hint or two concerning our wishes in the matter; give them to understand that their union is a thing that was planned in their cradles; point out the various advantages that will accrue"—

Miss Drusilla broke in with a disdainful sniff and a quick toss of her quivering curls. "Good gracious, John Weyman! Do you want to ruin everything? Listen to me. There's but one course to pursue if we expect to succeed in our pet scheme."

"IT ISN'T ALWAYS SAFE TO BE SURE OF ANYTHING."

"Well?" The colonel glanced up bewilderingly and with a sort of meek deference into the animated face of his companion.

Miss Drusilla lifted her dainty, porcelain-like fingers and marked off her sentences upon them in a clear, fluty voice. "Just this, you stupid man: They must be warned against each other. Every obstacle we can think of must be placed in their way. Sentiment must be tabooed. Cool down all their advances with cold water and plenty of it. There's nothing like it at this stage, mark my word. And failure after all these years would be a horrible disappointment to us both, John."

The colonel listened to his old friend's admonitions with unconcealed admiration. What a diplomat was Miss Drusilla! What an excellent life partner she would have made for a man! He heaved an involuntary sigh of regret for his squandered youth and reached across the table to press the porcelain fingers. There was a tack smile, a hand pressure, and the colonel took his departure.

Half an hour later a fresh, sparkling face was framed in the doorway, and a musical voice addressed Miss Drusilla in tremulous accents. "May I come in, aunty, dear?" The question was finished upon a hassock at Miss Drusilla's little slippered feet.

"Where in the world have you been, Penelope?" she questioned very sternly, with a degrecatory glance at the young girl's vivid cheeks and the tumbled straw gold hair above them.

"Where haven't I been, rather? Oh, aunty, it was just the dearest, jolliest time in the world! We, Jack and I, rode—yes, actually rode—up that steep crag to Lovers' leap!"

"Lovers' leap!" echoed Miss Drusilla, with very grave brows. "And you not yet eighteen, Penelope!"

"And you went alone with young Mr. Weyman to the very top of a mountain, my child?" She paused in her stitching and looked seriously into the young face at her knee. "It was most indiscreet. Don't think of repeating it. And, by the way, Penelope, don't you think you are rather too familiar with this young man, calling him by his given name on a fortnight's acquaintance and scampering through the woods with him on all occasions? What do you know of"—

"Know! Why, why, I know that he's just splendid—that he—that I—that we—oh, aunty, you can never guess what a dear he is—that's all!"

Miss Drusilla's lips settled perceptibly. "Very well, my little one; he may be all that you say—and think. Naturally I am in no position to judge. However, I prefer to have my niece a little more circumspect and dignified. It is not always well to allow oneself too much intimacy with any—stranger. Remember, girls of your station are expected to submit with all grace and deference to the arrangements which have been made for them by their guardians—matrimonial particularly. Let there be no foolishness, Penelope."

* * * * * * *

"But, father, am I not twenty-one years of age?"

"Twenty-two, to be more exact, young fellow. But remember also that I am forty-four and you are still in college. Penelope is a mere baby. She ought to be in school herself in short frocks. Recollect that you have a reputation to make in your profession; that you cannot afford to throw away your opportunities in any such absurd fashion, so don't fritter away your time over sentimental nonsense."

Young Weyman was silent a moment trying to down the vehement words that struggled to his lips. His face was flushed, and his eyes belied the calmness of the tone in which he replied:

"I have always respected your opinion, father, in everything, but in this case I fear that I cannot abide by it. There is one thing which is every man's privilege—the choice of his wife; consequently I mean to offer myself to Penelope this very evening."

"And if she refuses—if she is already betrothed to some one else?"

"Impossible! That is"—

The colonel smiled broadly. But his head was turned away. When he looked back again his face was decidedly stern. "It isn't always safe to be too sure of anything, my boy, especially anything of the feminine gender. Give her half a chance—say a couple of years—to change her mind in, and I'm certain you'll not regret it."

Jack bridled. "Obviously we need not discuss the question further, sir. Good morning." With an angry jerk of his head he stalked out of the room, and a second later Colonel Weyman was edified by hearing the front gate slam to with considerable force. He laughed heartily for a minute or two; then his face relapsed into sudden seriousness. "Upon my word," he mused, "a fellow ought to be proud to call a woman like Drusilla his wife. By Jove, I'll write a note and ask her to walk with me to Lovers' leap this afternoon. I've been a blind man for twenty years, but I'm blamed if I don't believe I see light!"

* * * * * * *

Dearest Penelope—You must marry me immediately, and we can take the 4 o'clock train for New York. It is only rushing things about twelve months, but certain events have occurred which make it essential for us to take this step at once. If you love me enough and think you can trust me to this extent write back by messenger and don't fail to say "Yes." Devotedly. JACK.

Dear, Dear Jack—It shall be just as you say. I will marry you whenever and wherever you wish. I have been worried to death all day. Aunt Drusilla has been hinting about some sort of matrimonial arrangement for me and saying just dreadful things all around. Of course I love you, Jack, and am willing to trust you to the ends of all creation. Your own PENELOPE.

At breakfast the following morning Miss Drusilla opened a flabby yellow envelope and read:

We were married last night at my cousin's. A message of forgiveness and your blessing will reach us at the Guests, New York city. J. W.

A similar dispatch found Colonel Weyman over his coffee and chops. He chuckled as he thrust the envelope into his pocket, and his thoughts harked back to Lovers' leap.

That afternoon another telegram flashed over the wires between Plainfield and New York city:

You are forgiven since people must be fools. I know two more who are soon to turn one. Accept our blessing.

AUNT DRUSILLA.

The Noble Pike.

In size, in courage and in strength the pike rivals in historic claim to nobility it exceeds, even the royal salmon itself. King Edward I., who fixed the price of fish then brought to market, rated the pike above the salmon and more than ten times higher than that of the best cod or turbot. In the reign of Henry VIII. a large one was sold for double the price of a house lamb in February and a small pickerel for more than a fat capon. Its greater reputation is probably to be explained by the old custom in the great houses and abbeys of England of having their private stew ponds, so that fresh water fish were the luxury of the rich, while the salmon could be caught in the sea and so never attained the rank and dignity of fashionable food. Today his artificial value is gone, and the salmon has taken the place upon the tables of the rich as much for the beauty of its pink flesh as for the superior flavor of the meat.—London Globe.

Must Lie Still.

Every soldier knows that a horse will not step on a man intentionally. It is a standing order in the British cavalry that if a trooper should be dismounted he must lie still. If he does this the whole squadron in likely to pass over him without doing him injury.

For Rough Fingers.

The bane of the average sewer or embroiderer is the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

All Probable Future Events Arranged For in Advance.

On the appointed evening I arrived at the given time, and after an excellent dinner, at which all members of both families were present, we repaired to the great drawing room, where the chairs had been arranged in a semicircle about two small, round tables. Presently two grave old gentlemen, the family notaries, who had not been seen to smile during the whole dinner, took their seats in front of the tables, and when we were all assembled the elder commenced to read a long memoir, which he announced he had compiled with the help of his colleague. Then, to my utter astonishment, he began to name all the possessions of the future bride and bridegroom—so many hectares and mortgages, so many houses, farms, woodlands, prairies, articles of personal adornment, furniture and jewels; the ways in which they might be used or disposed of, what would happen in case no children were born of the marriage, in case of death of one or the other of the parties. In fact, all the misfortunes, all the most terrible and saddest events, had been foreseen, and cold chills began running down my back as I heard each new case mentioned. I was indignant. I positively revolted. Why were miserable questions of business allowed to foreshadow the charming union of these two young people, who had known and loved each other since childhood and whose true and pure affection was innocent of all monetary interests? Could not all have been spared them?

The next day I frankly opened my heart to Jeanne and her mother, explaining the sensations I had experienced the previous evening and saying that in my country, when two persons were about to marry, as long as there was love on both sides and the man was able to support his wife all such questions were usually left undiscussed.

They both listened to me somewhat astonished, and then Mme. de R——, whose great good sense has always convinced me, replied smilingly:

"But, my dear, for us marriage is not only the joining of two young and loving hearts. We go further and consider the generations to come, the founding of a new family—a home. As every one knows, the first years are often the most difficult, and we therefore take precautions to smooth the paths of our children by settling in their presence all business matters, once and forever, and arranging things so that the new life may develop under the best of circumstances."—Scribner's Magazine.

THEY WERE STUBBORN.

Your Cornishman can be very "set" and stubborn. His determination of spirit is more remarkable than admirable at times, though it may be amusing.

Mr. Hook, the late royal academician, was once, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his book on the "Land's End," on the sands at Whitesand bay, working at a marine picture, when two natives came up and planted themselves just behind him. There was nothing the artist hated more than to be watched by strangers over his shoulders in this way, and pretty soon he wheeled around on them and angrily asked them how long they were going to stand there.

His manner served to arouse their spirit, and they replied brusquely that they were going to stay as long as they thought proper.

He insisted on knowing just how long they were going to stay there to his annoyance, and by and by, after some more loud and angry discussion, one of them incautiously declared they would stand at that very spot for an hour.

Yes, they returned, they would not stir one inch from that spot for an hour.

"Very well," he said and pulled up his easel; then, marching off to a distance of thirty yards, he set it up again and resumed his painting.

And there, within thirty yards of his back, the two men stood for one hour and a quarter, for, as they did not have a watch, they were afraid of going away before the hour had expired. Then they marched off.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for for necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a successful and further development of the business that have brought success. Thus the wealth and other splendid considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and be shown in the further course.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailed proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 33 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will generally, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

WAR SCARES.

The Ease With Which They Develop in European Nations.

Germany has just had a scare, and it appears that a British cruiser is the innocent cause During the recent Baltic cruise of the Cornwall the captain intimated his intention of paying a visit to Kiel.

A dense mist prevailed at the time, and the harbor authorities did not expect her to put in an appearance before morning. When day broke, however, the official world of Kiel was staggered to find the Cornwall moored in her assigned position and apparently quite at home.

She had navigated the difficult Kiel fiord in the darkness and mist without a pilot on board, and not only that, but investigation showed that she had done the same thing at Danzig and Swinemunde.

A German newspaper immediately hushed its readers into a panic. "What would happen in the event of a sudden outbreak of war with England?" it screamed. "They would not have the slightest difficulty in bottling up the high seas in Kiel or elsewhere!"

One Belgian newspaper kept its readers awake for several nights on account of a discovery it made in a German geography book. The book, the use of which was said to be obligatory in most schools, contained this passage: "Belgium, Switzerland, Lichtenstein, Holland, Luxemberg and Denmark are considered as forming part of Germany, because they are mostly situated inside her natural boundaries." Then Denmark and Switzerland and the others began to scream.

Switzerland had another "scare" all on its own account. Not very long ago several battalions of Italian Alpine troops on skees appeared on the Theodule pass, above Zermatt, and had the town practically at their mercy.

The incident raised a storm of excitement in the Swiss press. Where, they demanded, were the twelve battalions of mountain troops and artillery for which money was voted in the Swiss parliament?

A few weeks ago the Parisian boulevard press bubbled over with excitement. Four German balloons had descended in France within forty-eight hours, and one of the papers complained, "It is raining German balloons."

One little country mayor wrote up in a state of great agitation. He had seen a balloon driven over his village by a violent wind, and he had mounted his horse and pursued it till it came to earth.

The occupants, he reported, three men and two ladies, had with them "elaborate photographic apparatus of military appearance." The minister of war received a string of frantic telegrams from various parts of the country.

Russian newspapers have been pouring oil on the troubled waters of England's German "scare" by getting up some excitement over the Austro-German entente. In some quarters it has actually been advocated that the official archives should be removed from St. Petersburg because the capital is too much exposed to the possibility of capture by the armies of her western neighbors.—Pearson's Weekly.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

Courage.

For cool courage the deed of a Bendigo gold miner named Davis would be hard to beat. He and two others were sinking a shaft, and after putting in two charges of blasting powder they ascended to the plat above. One of them, Allen, slipped as he came to the surface and fell to the bottom. Instantly Davis rushed down after him, disregarding the fact that the charges were due to explode. He had dragged Allen about five feet before the first shot came. The debris luckily was carried in the opposite direction. Then he struggled on again and managed to reach a comparatively safe place for the second explosion. The two were found little the worse for their closeness to the bursting mass of rock, but Allen's leg had been broken by the fall. The Victorian government has recommended that Davis be awarded the Prince Albert medal for gallantry.—Melbourne Cor. San Francisco Bulletin.

Schoolboy Suicides.

Writing from Berlin, a correspondent of the Chicago News discusses the alarming number of child suicides in Germany. "Investigation proves that every week a schoolboy kills himself in Germany and that this average has been maintained for the last twenty-six years," says the correspondent. "Opinion is divided as to whether blame rests upon home conditions, such as the harshness and ambition of parents, or upon the school management. A case is cited in which a father said to his son on the eve of an examination, 'If you don't bring me your certificate of promotion I will not speak to you again.' The boy went into the examination more dead than alive and luckily got his certificate, but one investigator asks, 'What if he hadn't?'"

Kangaroo Money For Australians.

Sixpences and shillings displaying a kangaroo on one side are a probability of the early future. For a long time Australia has been clamoring for the right to coin silver, and the imperial mint authorities have at last consented. Sir John Forrest, the commonwealth treasurer, says the London Globe, will supervise the new departure, and he says it is likely the coins will have a kangaroo on one side and some other typical Australian device on the other. There are three branches of the royal mint in Australia—Sydney Melbourne and Perth—but hitherto their operation has been restricted to gold.

WISE MAN UNDERSTOOD.

A wise man once went to the market place of a town, where a lot of people were buying and selling things, and he called out in a loud voice: "Ho, ho, listen to me, all you people! I have been ordered by the king to collect all the clever people and take them to him, because he wishes to reward them."

All that heard him said they were clever, and they all gathered round, when he called out in a loud voice:

"Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! The king has just sent me word that he means to reward only those who are fools, so only those who are not clever must go with me to the palace."

All the people of the town looked at the wise man, and then one by one they joined him again because, as they said, they were fools.

The wise man shook his head sadly, and he sighed as he said: "Ah, the world goes as the wind blows! Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! You can all go back to the market place as quick as you can, for you first said you were clever and then you said you were not, and you can't be both."

The wise man knew quite well that the people only wanted the reward.

How Sarah Bernhardt Rests.

In a letter to a friend Sarah Bernhardt tells how she spends the days of her vacation in Belle-Isle-en-Mer. The actress says she "rests" by tiring herself. There is a daily schedule. At 5 in the morning she is awakened. After a cup of coffee she takes her gun and goes hunting for birds. At 8 she returns to the house, has a light breakfast and goes to the shore to fish for shrimps. This occupies two hours. At 11 she takes her bath, makes her toilet and is ready for luncheon at 12:30. After luncheon comes the hour for the siesta. This, she observes, is a sacred institution in the routine of her household. One need not necessarily sleep, but the command is to keep still for two hours. At 2:30 she goes to her studio, where she reads manuscripts, looks over her parts or works at her sculpture. The tennis hour is 5 o'clock. Dinner follows the game. After dinner there is music, and by 9 o'clock every one is in bed. In ending her letter Mme. Bernhardt says: "Thus pass my days in Belle Isle. They all are alike. They are charming and splendid. I have a divine sensation of being alive these days more than all the rest of the days of the year."

A Canadian Grub in London.

By a log of wood riddled with tiny tunnels, says a London correspondent, stands an ordinary-looking beetle in the insect house at the London Zoo. It has just been born as a beetle from the grub which drove those tunnels. It belong to the Longicorn family of beetles.

The grub was sent from Canada in a small log of Vancouver pine to a lady eighteen months ago. When recently it turned into a beetle she sent it to the Zoo, and it has just emerged in its final state, but it may have been anywhere between twenty and fifty years in the wood, boring the tunnels through the log.

An official at the Gardens says that naturalists have not yet settled how long it takes beetles to accomplish this work of boring. There is the historic case of the Natural History Museum grub of the same species. For fourteen years it lived undiscovered in the boot tree constantly used by an Indian military officer and probably had lived in the wood itself before it was made into a boot tree.

When the officer first discovered the grub he handed the boot tree, grub and all, over to the museum. It was placed in a show case, where it lived ten years. About once annually the grub used to poke its head out into the daylight, when the curator promptly pushed it back into the wood and plugged up the hole so that it could dig its way out.

For the Babies.

Although this advice is more directly for babies during the first year of life, the sense of it applies quite as well to other children.

Don't overfeed them and don't let them overfeed themselves.

Don't give them rich foods—meats, gravies, pastries, cake, etc.—nor a great variety. The simpler and plainer the better—plenty of milk, whole wheat bread, oatmeal, baked potatoes, baked apples and fresh fruits of all kinds, except bananas, in season, but be sure the fruit is ripe and fresh.

Keep up the daily bath until it becomes a fixed habit.

Keep them out in the open air as much as possible the whole year around and send them into the country wherever you can do so, but only to places where the water is pure.

Keep them cool.

Don't overdress them. The lighter and simpler the clothing the better.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. 6

Gold Prospecting.

Millions in Smoke.

A dispatch says that $500,000 yearly are wasted by smoke from coal caused by improper combustion and that the ideal city of the future will be the smokeless city. Peterborough at the present time approaches the ideal as nearly any other city on the American continent. Everything is run by electricity and coal is used only for heat.

Snow Plowing.

Lindsay will get the snow cleaned off the whole of the east ward for $110 next winter. That is more like the price that should be paid here. It is safe to say that Lindsay's east ward is just as large as any snow ploughing district in this city. The Board of Works will do well to watch the tenders this year. Day work would have been profitable of late years.

Small Fire.

The fire department had a hurry-up call to the gas house yesterday noon. The gas men had been burning tar in a pot and itboiled over, and around down and into the fire and along the floor towards the coal. The tar took fire and it looked too serious to fool with so the firemen were called. It required only the chemicals to extinguish the flames. Had the workmen allowed the blaze to get beyond their control there might have been serious results.

Navigation Open.

Navigation is still open on the Otonabee river, and it is not likely that the locks will be closed for several days yet as there is considerable produce at Rice Lake to be brought to Peterborough. Last year the locks closed on November 14th. The Monarch came up Wednesday night with a load of hogs and returned early yesterday morning to bring up a car go of grain and potatoes. The tubers are selling at the wharf at 45 cents per bag.

Much Timber Yet.

A gentleman interested in the lumber business remarked to The Times yesterday that several of the lumber companies have extensive limits in the north country, the timber on which they have not been able to get out on account of the lack of transportation facilities. There are no streams in the limits to carry the logs out and as yet the railways do not touch them.

Many Prisoners.

The arrival of convicts this fall so far at the Kingston Penitentiary has been the largest known for the past ten years. Hardly a day passes but two or three can be seen getting off the Toronto train en route to the big penal institution. The number coming from the east is not so great. Several female convicts have arrived from Quebec, there being no accommodation for female convicts in that province.—Kingston Standard.

Conservatory of Music.

Jessie Alexander, the well-known Scottish elocutionist will appear at the Conservatory Music Hall tonight The program will also include several numbers by the Conservatory orchestra, which is one of the best musical organizations that is ever heard in this city. There is one thing that can always be depended on and that is that everything advertised for the Conservatory of Music is of the highest character. No doubt a full house will be present tonight.

It is in time of sudden mishap or accident that Chamberlain's Liniment can be relied upon to take the place of the family doctor, who cannot always be found at the moment. Then it is that Chamberlain's Liniment is never found wanting. In cases of sprains, cuts, wounds and bruises Chamberlain's Liniment takes out the soreness and drives away the pain. 4

LETTER FROM SANTA CLAUS.

He Writes The Times Bookstore on Behalf of Children.

Dear Times Bookstore,— Kindly announce to my little children that I want them to call at The Times Bookstore, Hunter street, and choose what they would like and write me a letter very soon. I have left lots of good things this year—Great big assortment of presents, larger stock and better toys (because most of them are musical and mechanical) lovely dolls that sleep and sit up, and dolls' chairs, beds, cradles, child's tea sets, horns, trains, drums, horses, cows, cats, rabbits, banks, games of every description, pistols, little cooking stoves, picture books. Oh such lovely illustrated books! Cups and saucers, lovely Xmas tree decorations, stockings full of things that boys and girls like, and so many things, I have not time to tell you all as you know I am very busy, but I don't want to forget one of my children, as I have something for you all.

Yours, with love to all,
SANTA CLAUS.

WATER GAUGE BURST.

C.P.R. Fireman Badly Scalded.

C.P.R. fireman, Geo. H. Duffus, who lives in Robertson Street, Fort William, while on his engine near Westford happened a nasty accident. The water gauge of the locomotive burst and scalded the whole of the left side of his face and head terribly. "It so happened," said Duffus to our representative, "that I had a box of Zam-Buk in my pocket, which I used for a sore on my lip, and when I had recovered from the first shock of the accident, I produced the balm and had it applied freely to the scalded parts. At the time I applied it I was suffering acute agony, but within a wonderfully short time Zam Buk gave me ease. I was able to continue my journey, and upon reaching home I obtained more Zam-Buk and continued the treatment. It acted wonderfully well, and in a few days had the wound nicely healing. I don't know anything so fine as a healer of burns, scalds, cuts, and similar injuries which workers are so liable to and in my opinion a box of Zam-Buk should be kept handy in every worker's home."

There is something different and superior about Zam-Buk. Time and again workers in all branches of trade have proved its vast superiority over the advertised ointments and salves of the day. No doubt the fact that Zam-Buk is made entirely from herbal essences and extracts, while ordinary ointments contain more or less animal fats and oils, goes a long way to explain Zam-Buk's superiority. However this may be, the fact remains that in four continents to which it has been introduced within ten years it has become the leading household balm!

For burns, cuts, scalds, bruisers, eczema, piles, ulcers, ring-worm, itch, salt-rheum, bad leg, festering sores, chapped places, cold-sores, frost-bites and all skin injuries and diseases Zam-Buk is beyond doubt a most marvellous cure.

Druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box and the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, will mail a box post free, upon receipt of price, to any of our readers who may have difficulty in obtaining a supply of the genuine Zam-Buk from their local stores.

London, Nov. 19.—With the beginning today of the establishment of a naval base at the Orkney Islands the North Sea becomes practically a British lake, which on the outbreak of war would be immediately closed to the rest of the world. The British Admiralty has long contemplated the fortification of the Orkneys as a part of an elaborate scheme of naval defence.

The Orkneys, northernmost islands of the British archipelago, are the northern key of the North Sea. The southern key is Dover. At the latter point a fortified harbor, costing $25,000,000 and large enough to accommodate the whole British fleet has just been accomplished. The port is the most strongly fortified in England.

The actual base at the Orkneys will be scapa Flow, which has a splendid harbor, and is by nature almost impregnable. With these two points strongly fortified, and the great naval basin at Rosyth on the east coast of Scotland, completed, Englaand will have absolute control of the western division of the North Sea.

Young Lads Shoot Bear Near Bobcaygeon

Bobcaygeon, Nov. 19.—Three boys, William and Alfred Irwin, and Charles Freeburn, shot a huge black bear weighing 340 pounds, in the vicinity of the Buckhorn road, toward Mississaugan Creek. Two of the lads were about sixteen, the other a little older. Tracks had been seen showing that a bear was in the vicinity. The boys were four miles from home when they shot Brain, and had quite a time getting their game back to the village.

France Tries the Anglo-Saxon Way

Paris, Nov. 19.—For the first time in a French Assize Court a trial was conducted today after the Anglo-Saxon fashion.

This was in fulfilment of the wish of Minister of Justice Barthou that certain reforms be instituted, including the doing away of the judges' interrogation of the prisoner.

Deputy Moquillet introduced in the Chamber of Deputies today a bill providing that witnesses in court trials may have a lawyer present when they are examined.

SENSATIONAL TURN TO THE TRAGEDY OF THE FIRE IN UXBRIDGE IN OCTOBER

Evidence of Mine Fire's Awful Work

Heap of Bodies Discovered in Mine by Firemen and Rescuers—Scores of Women Sought to Identify Dead

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 19.—The St. Paul Mine has been also conquered. Mine inspectors and geological experts succeeded, after an all-day and all-night battle, in clearing the shafts of the burning mine, and early today Chicago firemen and a group of miners penetrated the dismal depths of the galleries, and for two hours and a half fought the smoldering fire in the coal veins without trouble.

At six o'clock a second group of miners and railroad men entered the mine. All of them were working without oxygen helmets or apparatus, and they suffered no ill effects from gases or smoke.

The firemen discovered in the second vein a pile of bodies, but how soon these bodies can be recovered is uncertain, because the east portion of the gallery, in which the fire originated, is badly caved in and debris will have to be taken out and timbers erected to ensure safety to the workmen.

In the west portion of the gallery the fire is still burning. Firemen have succeeded in getting into the vein with leads of hose for a distance of 50 feet.

Fire, Water and Light Committee and Lights

There was considerable discussion at the Fire, Water and Light Committee meeting last night over the number of electric lights reported out the past couple of weeks. Mr. J. H. Larmonth claimed that the company had not been receiving fair treatment and he wanted a change made. The committee, however, could not see that any serious wrong was being done and decided to let the matter stand.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth was present, and stated that there was considerable dissatisfaction about the lights being reported out. He said that the company had had a great deal of trouble lately with lights being reported out that were only out for a minute or two. This also caused a lot of trouble with their men who look after the lights. He asked to know what instructions the committee had given the fire chief and if he was supposed to send the firemen out to watch for lights out. He said that it appeared that some of the firemen were after the scalps of the Light & Power Company's men.

The instructions to the chief were that he was to get the reports of lights out and report to the company and that he go with one of the company's men and examine the carbons.

It was moved by Ald. Hicks and Ald. Morgan that the matter be left over for the time being and that in the meantime the chief report the name of the firemen and the police who saw the light out.—Carried.

FIREMEN'S SUITS.

The new suits for the firemen will be ready next Saturday and the committee also authorized the chairman to get new caps also.

NEW HARNESS.

On motion of Ald. Morgan and Ald. Hicks, a set of harness was ordered to be secured for the steam fire engine, The chairman to look after the matter at once.

DELIGHTFUL ACTION OF HOME MADE FAT REDUCER.

Taking a teaspoonful three times a day after meals and at bedtime of this mixture—½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4½ oz. Peppermint Water, a simple mixture any druggist can supply — causes a delightfully easy and even sliding off of the fat. The first parts of the body to show its effect are usually those that are particularly objectionable when overfat—viz., the double chin, hips, and fat-loaded abdomen. When these begin to decline the remedy seems to take notice of other over-fat parts, such as the shoulder blades, on which gathered fat causes round shoulders, and at the best and sickles, where too much fat ruins many a woman's otherwise clear claim to beauty.

The loss of fat is often as much as 14 ounces a day, but no ill effects or wrinkles are observed, because the receipt is perfectly natural in action. It causes the stomach to use up the excess fat in the food, and then the blood quickly burns up that already formed on the body.

DEATH OF WM. S. PERRY.

Lumber Slipped From Car Killing Him Instantly.

Orrile, Nov. 18.—William S. Perry aged 24, unmarried, a native of Peterborough, and a Grand Trunk Railway brakeman was killed here this morning. He was engaged in shunting work in Messrs. Eaton & Odes' lumber yard when a flat car loaded with lumbed left the tracks. The sudden derailment loosened the lumber and when Perry tried to uncouple the cars part of the load, sliding over, struck him on the head, causing instant death.

A brother of deceased who lived at Midland came over immediately he was advised of the accident, and he had the remains taken to Peterborough this afternoon.

The remains of the late Mr. Perry arrived in the city last evening and were taken in charge of by Messrs. Comstock, who afterwards removed the body to the home of the deceased's mother, Mrs. J. E. Perry, who resides at the East end of the lock bridge. His mother, two brothers and two sisters are left to mourn his loss. The brothers are Messrs. Thomas and Harry and the sisters are Mrs. Geo. Robinson and Miss Lizzie Perry.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at half past two from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery.

THE WEATHER.

A little higher temperature and unsettled.

Miss Jessie Alexander Drew Crowded House

Miss Jessie Alexander was given a splendid reception by the very large audience at the Conservatory of Music Hall last night. The hall was filled to its full capacity and everyone was simply delighted with the program. The concert was announced as the first of a series of popular concerts and judging by the first the others will be well patronized. Miss Alexander of Toronto, has appeared in Peterborough several times and her popularity is increasing. Her numbers were all enthusiastically received and an enchore was demanded to each. The Conservatory of Music orchestra under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, numbering about 30 players, provided part of the program, much to the delight of the audience. An enchore was demanded to each number and it was cheerfully given. The orchestra is one of the finest musical organizations in eastern Ontario, and they will be heard more frequently in future. Their next appearance will be looked forward to with much pleasure.

Non-Jury Sittings of the High Court Monday

The non-jury sittings of the High Court will be held at the court house on Monday, commencing at one o'clock. Mr. Justice Britton will preside. There are three cases to be heard by His Lordship, namely Rose vs. Dunlop; Bennett vs. the Havelock Electric Light and Power Company, and the Coporation of Lakefield vs. Brown.

In the case of Bennett vs. the Havelock Electric Light and Power Company, and the Corporation of Lakefield vs. Brown.

In the case of Bennett vs. the Havelock Electric Company, Thos. Bennett, on behalf of himself and a number of other shareholders, is suing the Company for $5,000, claiming the said company fraudulently took stock for that amount and after building a power house, which only cost $300, divided the balance among the directors. O'Connell & Gordon for the plaintiffs, and Hall, Medd & Davidson for the defendants.

Tom Eck will Take Fred Simpson Again

Toronto, Nov. 19.—Tom Eck, the veteran trainer of runners, cyclists, long distance pedestrians, and other athletes, and Fred Simpson, the Objibway Thunderbolt, have not parted company.

Eck, in a letter to Tom Flanagan, says: "Simpson is a man I don't quite understand yet, and I am going to try him again. When he won the Brighton Beach Marathon he showed me that he had the speed and stamina for he beat a good field in good time. I didn't think he was in shape when he ran that race, and just when I thought he was beat he ran poorest. I don't think the boy needs the stiff training I gave him. I'll take him easier this winter."

Simpson says he is eager to tackle the big fellows again.

"I like that 26 mile route," he says. "In fact, I don't begin to show until after 15 miles."

Ask Canada Not to Delay Long

London, Novf 19.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that a long comprehensive despatch is being sent to the Canadian Government regarding the constitution of an Imperial naval staff.

The despatch considers ad certatum all the proposals and objections which have been raised both from the Colonial and Imperial standpoint.

An early reply is urged.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE."

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure the Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valensia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Zimri Blodgett.

After a brief illness Zimri Blodgett passed away last evening about five o'clock at his home, 213 Antrim street. By his death one of the most familiar faces on the streets of Peterborough, will be seen no more. He has been a resident of the city for about 30 years, and for the last half of that time he has cut and cut, had contracts from the city for street sprinkling and snow plowing, and he was known to everyone in the districts he covered. The deceased leaves a wife and four sons, Arthur, Thomas, Justice and George. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon and interment will take place in St. Peter's cemetery.

Found Strychine in Mrs. McLaughlin's Stomach

Following an Analysis of Wife's Stomach He was Taken Into Custody by Detective Greer

Uxbridge, Nov. 19.—Interest in the McLaughlin case which has been growing steadily since Coroner Bascom adjourned the case for two weeks, reached fever heat in this town this morning when Provincial Detective Greer stepped off the train and made his way to the hotel where McLaughlin is staying, and placed him under arrest. Since the McLaughlin House was burned through no apparent cause, and the bodies of Mrs. Mary McLaughlin and her two sons, Charlie and Gordon, were found dead in an upper room where the fire had not penetrated, the feeling against McLaughlin has been very high, some of the people in the town speaking very plainly of their views on the matter. Three sessions have been held of the inquest by Coroner Bascom. The evidence that has come out has increased this feeling of suspicion of McLaughlin, although none of it has directly proven anything against him. At the last session of the inquest it came to light that McLaughlin had bought some poison a few days before the fire and that there were large quantities already in the house. Among other poisons in the house was a large quantity of strychine which McLaughlin said he had bought to kill the rats which infested the house.

POISON IN HER STOMACH.

Following the last session, Crown Attorney Col. Farewell had the stomach of Mrs. McLaughlin sent to Professor Ellis, of Toronto, for analysis, and since that time the town has been in a fever of suspense awaiting his report. This was made to the attorney-general's department yesterday and it is said to set forth that strychnine had been found in the stomach of the dead woman in large enough quantity to kill six men.

CHRISTMAS TREE.

In the Fire Hall for the Firemen and Their Families.

The members of the fire department are going to have a big Christmas this year for the benefit of their own families. The idea originated with Chief Howard, as it is the practice in several other fire departments and the men fell into line with enthusiasm. The object is to enable the firemen and their families to gather together and celebrate the greatest festival of the year. The men are on duty Christmas eve and Christmas Day and have no opportunity to spend any time at home except for their meals. The Fire, Water and Light Committee have granted the men leave to use the dormatories for one afternoon and now they will go ahead and complete arrangements.

The firemen sent in a request through the chief for the use of the dormatories for one afternoon during Christmas week for the purpose of having a Christmas tree for their own children, about 26 in number. The Christmas tree is for their own families and refreshments will be served. The object of this was because the firemen were on duty all night and cannot get home for Christmas night.

On motion the request was granted.

PRICE OF HAY.

The market price of hay continues at from $16 to $18, with $17 the favourite price. According to news from Western Ontario hay is selling on the Hamilton market at $12 a ton and the supply being abundant, it is felt that the price will remain around those figures. There have been no signs in Peterborough of a decided slump in the price of this commodity. The demand in the city is heavy hence the firmness in the price.

The Local Option Campaign

The matter appearing under this heading is supplied by the Local Option Committee.

The great wave of public opinion that is passing over the continent at the present time marks the doom of the legalized saloon. Whatever may be the opinion of men for or against the total abolition of the traffic there is only one united and forceful feeling against the public bar. The reason is not far to see.

1. It is of no possible service to any community in a business, social or moral sense.
2. It degrades the men engaged in the business and makes insensible the finer qualities of their God-given natures.
3. It deprives these men from the place in society and in societies which they might well occupy.
4. It unfits them for and prohibits them from any part in the civic, social or commercial circles of their fellow citizens, and condemns them to a life of separativeness and the whole thing cannot be worth the money that can be in that of an otherwise lofty and respectable business.
5. It unfortunately sets them in direct opposition to all the influences that are endeavoring to lighten the burdens of mankind, and places them in a defiant attitude to their fellow citizens who wish them, and the victims of their awful trade all the earthly comforts, joys and uplifting liberties possible to man. In other words they are not in it to make the world better here and now.
6. It keeps back from legitimate business the money that properly belongs to it. This is found to be proven in places where the saloon has been abolished.

For instance Mr. Whetter, a prominent provision dealer in West Toronto, has given publicity to the cash receipts before and after the close of the bars in that city as follows:

Sept. 1903, under license ...		$2,146
Sept., 1904, local option ...		2,690
Sept., 1905, local option		3,427
Sept., 1906, local option		3,791

This has been the best demonstration of the working out of this law in one community, and this is the story from merchants in all other places.

The only business houses in any locality that might suffer would be:

1. The liquor business, although they claim that they do more.
2. The undertakers—although Clinton N. Howard proved that where the undertakers would bury fewer men and get paid for their burial than to do so as is so often done.

On the other hand can any business man or any workingman look at the following list without becoming convinced of the bonanza to trade as well as to the comforts of home and the heart of man by voting out the bar?

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares Nerviline is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment ment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P. E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but NERVILINE was unable to relieve my horse of CURES his pain and suffering till I started to QUICKLY use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes Large bottles 25c., five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Ont.

That is the big feature of the estimates for the fiscal year, as submitted to Parliament yesterday afternoon by Hon. Mr. Fielding, and will be hailed with delight by the people of this district. The appropriation of such a large sum means great progress towards the completion of the waterway that means so much for Peterborough, and will be an effective argument for the Board of Trade in its work of "building up Peterborough." The estimate is the largest that has yet been made towards work on the canal, and indicates that the Government is determined to finish the important work as soon as possible. With nearly two millions voted towards the Canal the work next year will go ahead more rapidly than it has at any stage in the history of the enterprise, and the end of the great work is brought much nearer.

The appropriations also contain another item that is of importance to many Peterborough people. $3,400 is set down for the construction of a new steamer wharf at Juniper Island, Stony Lake, which will be appreciated by the many citizens who spend their summers at the Kawartha resort.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. 8

Canal Notes.

Hastings Star: The dredge Little Lake with tug and scows came down Lake with tug and scows came down from Peterboro last Wednesday and is at work below the locks Where she will operate until all the eribwork and rocks are taken out up to the present locks, which will likely take all winter. The work above the dam is done for the season and the steam derrick has been loaded on its scow and brought below where it will likely be put at work. The bunch of soft maples which grew on the pier below the locks have all been cut down and cleared away, which changes the appearance of the pier very much. The Rainbow on Monday brought down a large crib of logs for the timber work.

Bylaw Likely to Be Contested.

Hasting Star.—Mr. E. H. D. Hall of Peterboro, solicitor for Mr. M. Quigley, is on the warpath, we understand, to have the by-law giving the Tanning Co. the use of the street quashed. Mr. Hall, we understand, claims some technical errors in the notice which was published regarding the by-law such as that it should have been signed by both the reeve and the clerk, instead of just the reeve, and that it is detrimental to his clients property to have the street closed.

EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life; in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 30 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes to-day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such —the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings, or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with these iron shavings and the interstices filled with cement sufficiently fine to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under blows or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinary macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"'They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: 'They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions'."

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

BARTON MURDER.

Gebhardt Said to Resemble the Barton Murderer.

Pictures of Fred Gebhardt, alias Otto Mueller, the confessed murderer and bigamist, under arrest at New York, whom the Provincial authorities are trying to connect with the Barton murder mystery, have been identified by Mrs. Nelson Pitton, of Niagara Falls, Ont., as bearing a striking resemblance to the man who is charged with murdering the unknown woman in a bush on the mountain top in October, 1905.

When the theory of Mueller having possibly been the man who committed the Barton crime was first advanced the Times made an effort to get Mrs. Pitton to identify the pictures, because she perhaps got a better look at the suspect than any of the people who saw him. At that time Mr. Pitton was proprietor of the New American Hotel here. It has been pretty well established that the murderer and his victim stayed there over Sunday night. Mrs. Pitton saw the man in the corridor with the woman as they left on Monday morning. They rode to the head of the East End Incline from the hotel and walked direct to the spot where the crime was committed.

Pictures of Mueller were forwarded to Mr. Pitton when the story was first published. Mr. Pitton is now proprietor of the New Rosli House, Niagara Falls. He has been away for some days and only returned home this week. Writing to the Times, he says, "Mrs. Pitton says the one picture I have marked with a cross resembles the man very much, although, as you are aware, it is hard to remember so long ago."

The result of inquiries made by Provincial Inspector Greer, who has been in correspondence with the New York authorities, has not been made known. It was thought the theory was disposed of when it was ascertained that the description did not tally as closely as was first supposed with the Barton murderer, but the fact that three people who saw the suspect declare that pictures of Mueller bear a striking resemblance should justify the authorities in following the matter until they make sure.

Some of the Toronto papers, after the Mueller story was published, said he could not possibly be the murderer, because he was in Sing Sing prison at the time. The Times has investigated this and finds the report is not correct. Mueller was released three months before the crime was committed.—Hamilton Times.

A New Freak.

A London, Eng., dispatch says it is learned from a reliable source that the Suffragettes who were sent to jail in Bristol for breaches of the peace during the recent visit of Winston Churchill have adopted a discomforting method of protesting against their treatment. They have refused to don prison clothes and insist in remaining in paris naturalibus. They pass their time in singing the Suffragettes' "Marseillaise."

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. 7

DIED AT CAMP.

Took Ill While Deer Hunting and Died Away From Home.

The death occurred last week of a well known resident of this neighbourhood under circumstances which are unusually sad.

Mr. William John Elliott, of the 12th Con. of Dummer, in company with Mr. Thos. McNeely, went out to Airhart's settlement in the township of Methuen to spend the hunting season where they were joined by Mr Geo. Airhart.

At the end of the first week Mr. Elliott came home to replenish their supplies and next day returned to the scene of their exploits, about three miles north of Airhart's on Sandy Lake. Before leaving he arranged for his son, William J. Elliott to go out about the middle of the next week to have a hunt and to bring them home.

Thursday last Mr. Elliott was not feeling well and did not join the chase but remained at the camp. Mr. McNeely and Mr. Elliott, Jr., went. It was arranged that if he got worse he would fire a signal and they would come in. They were not away long from the camp when they heard the signal. On their return they found him much worse and after removing him to Mr. Airhart's the son started for Havelock to summon a doctor and to bring Mrs. Elliott and also procure a suitable conveyance in which to bring the sick man home. Dr. Crawford lost no time in answering the summons and remained with him until Friday morning when he lef him feeling much easier, promising to return next morning to see and to accompany him home.

When Mrs. Elliott and her son arrived Friday evening they found him a very sick man, and although all that loving hands could do to alleviate his sufferings and administer to his wants was done, he continued to sink, and early Saturday morning passed away. He was removed to his home the same day. On the way out the friends met Dr. Crawford at Oak Lake making his second trip.

Mr. Elliott was 57 years of age, and is survived by his wife and two children—Mr. W. J. Elliott and Mrs. John Drain, Jr., of Stony Lake. He was a steady, hard working man, but liked a little diversion, and for the past thirty years he had been accustomed to spending a couple of weeks in the north during the hunting season.

He was highly esteemed by a wide circle of friends, and was also widely known. He took a keen interest in the affairs of his municipality and was twice in the field for the office of councillor.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon to the Norwood cemetery, and was largely attended. The Rev. E. W. Pickford, rector of the Anglican church, officiated. The bearers were: Messrs. Thos. McNeely, Thomas, Samuel and Robert McConnell, Samuel Thompson and Harry McLaughlin.—Norwood Register.

THE PANAMA HAT.

What Came of a Glimpse of the Initials on the Inside.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.
[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

As Genevieve came on deck the young man in the panama hat glanced over his shoulder in her direction. Then, with surprising alacrity, he whirled about, and the rapid removal of the panama revealed a well shaped head and close cropped dark hair, which clung through many vicissitudes to an unmistakable tendency to curl.

As the morning dew vanishes under the fierce rays of the midsummer sun, so the young man's expression of joyful animation disappeared when met by Genevieve's chilly stare. His lower jaw dropped. The color mounted from the top of his rather high collar to the roots of his hair. Genevieve went on her way well satisfied with herself.

"I imagine he thinks me not quite as unsophisticated as he supposed. Probably his intention was to surprise me into a bow and then to presume on that to join me. And by the time that I had explained that I really didn't know him we should be beginning to feel quite well acquainted." She smiled again with superior triumph as she reflected on the overthrow of the plot. She wished that Aunt Myra might have been an onlooker—Aunt Myra, who had questioned the propriety of her taking the short voyage unchaperoned.

On the opposite side of the steamer the wearer of the panama hat leaned upon the rail and darkly regarded the blue water. The attitude, suggestive of dejection, gave Genevieve the opportunity to steal furtive glances at the motionless offender. His clothes fitted well. As far as that was concerned, any tailor would be inspired to do his best by such a figure. "Adorable shoulders," said Genevieve, so nearly aloud that it was just as well that Aunt Myra was not present.

At the expiration of an hour Genevieve had come to the conclusion that the guilty young man who had addressed her when she came on deck was not an old offender. He had taken her rebuff too deeply to heart for that. His interest in the Chesapeake bay seemed to undergo no diminution after sixty minutes of incessant staring. Genevieve began to feel that, possibly she had been too severe. A look of dignified perplexity might have been enough without any of the ruthless, annihilating scorn before which his self confidence had shriveled. Genevieve surprised herself in a pitying sigh.

It was now time for the panama to take a hand. As Genevieve's commiserating glance stole in the direction of the crushed and disheartened youth staring over the rail her challenge was accepted. With a birdlike motion the panama rose from its owner's head, evading his clutch with a dexterity that argued deliberate intention. It sailed across the steamer's bow, dodging various agile persons who attempted to intercept it, and continued in Genevieve's direction. On reaching her it surrendered at discretion. Tame and obedient as a pet dog, it dropped into her lap, and, though Genevieve clutched it by the brim, that was merely a matter of form. She was sure that the panama hat had no intention of going farther.

The hat's owner was not far behind his property. There was a redness about him that was not due to sunburn, but was not unbecoming. He bowed. Genevieve reflected, with a feeling of self congratulation, like a gentleman.

"I am very much in your debt," said the owner of the panama.

"Not at all, I'm sure," responded Genevieve. Her tone was calculated to a nicety—not friendly enough to encourage liberties in the presumptuous, not chilling enough to dishearten the timid and retiring.

"Perhaps," the young man hesitated, taking his property from her extended hand, "I might improve this opportunity to apologize for what must have seemed a piece of rudeness on my part."

Genevieve listened with an expression as nicely calculated as her tone had been. There was nothing about it on which one could pronounce, yet it was far from being frosty.

"As you came up the stairs," the young man continued, twirling the panama, "I glanced over my shoulder, and for some reason your face looked extraordinarily familiar. When I bowed I was under the impression that I knew you."

Genevieve's lips curled a little in spite of herself. He would have done better, she reflected, to stop with the apology, the explanation was so painfully weak; trite to start with, and, moreover—well, without vanity, Genevieve knew that her type was not common.

Certainly never was six foot one of manhood so easily disconcerted.

"Thank you again," said the owner of the panama in a low voice, and he turned on his heel.

But as he set his recovered hat upon his head Genevieve caught sight of something that made her start—three shining gilt letters fixed into the inner leather band. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" she cried impulsively.

The young man did not hear her, and a fellow passenger checked him in his return to his seat, seizing his coattails. "Lady ain't done with you yet," said the obliging passenger, and the owner of the panama looked back and saw that it was true.

He returned with an apparent reluctance Genevieve thought best not to notice. "Excuse me," she said breathlessly, "but those letters inside your hat—are they your initials?"

The young man stared and colored. "Why, yes."

"Like an algebra problem, aren't they?" Genevieve persisted.

Apparently the young man wished to show her that she was not the only person who could assume an air of hauteur. "The peculiarity of my name," said the owner of the panama, looking over Genevieve's head, "is a misfortune in which the general public"—

"The reason I asked," interrupted Genevieve, "is because I never heard of but one person whose initials were X. Y. Z., and he was one of my cousin's dearest friends."

The owner of the panama no longer looked haughty. Instead his expression suggested blissful incredulity.

"His name began," Genevieve continued, blushing under the young man's gaze, "with Xavier."

"Young," prompted the other delightedly.

"Zimmerman," Genevieve concluded, and she looked about her. "Isn't there an unoccupied chair? Oh, yes!"

The young man brought it and seated himself beside her. "I've always hated my name," he said meditatively. "It's a mixture of French and English and German, of the prosaic and the sentimental. It's fairly grotesque and indefensible from any standpoint. I've seriously contemplated having it changed by an act of the legislature. But from this day on I'll find no more fault with it. When you saw those letters X. Y. Z., of course you knew there couldn't be but one of us."

"I blame myself for waiting for that," said Genevieve demurely, "since I've seen your photograph at my cousin's, a number of photographs indeed."

Mr. Zimmerman drew a long breath. "And I was wondering why your face seemed so familiar." He made a motion toward an inside pocket, but then checked himself, reflecting that perhaps it would be wiser to wait a little for that. But by the middle of the next forenoon he felt it safe to exhibit the little kodak picture Jim had given him—a picture of Genevieve with a tennis racket over her shoulder and her hair ruffled by the breeze.

Genevieve pouted. "If he were going to give you any," she said, "he might have chosen one that—that flattered me more."

The sea voyage from Baltimore to Boston, though not a long one, affords considerable opportunity for progress in acquaintance. Mr. X. Y. Zimmerman might be suggestive of an algebraic problem, but in that case no one of his fellow passengers was in doubt as to the final solution.

The Psychology of Crowds.

There is a justification for a preventive censorship in the peculiar nature of the crowd. Collective psychology, or the psychology of crowds (mainly investigated so far by French and Italian inquirers), is a study still in its infancy. A completely satisfactory explanation of the peculiarities of the crowd is not yet forthcoming. But these peculiarities are matters of common knowledge.

Briefly, a crowd is a new entity, differing in mind and will from the individuals who compose it. Its intellectual pitch is lowered, its emotional pitch raised. It takes on something of the characteristics of a hypnotised "subject." It tends to be irrational.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick clapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your sixpence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy hoeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for hoeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' of I do," said the boy, "and hell of I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the fond mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Groucher, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was loosely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realise that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

TO DISPOSE OF POSTCARDS.

NOVEL WAY TO USE PICTURE POSTCARDS.

An ordinary soap box is used for the receptacle, and on the bottom corners small unfilled spools of cotton are glued in place for supports. The postcards are then pasted on the box, the finished product being edged with guimpe, put on with fancy tacks.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good line placed on sale, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point when its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economics and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort at home, and by all its arts in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other certain considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and its share in the further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high price prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 15 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first to paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in case of that amount, will accordingly pay all as part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world that makes them of great value. The black diamonds are pure carbon, and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George K. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 225 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives dive in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions, where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Men Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or——

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Menzel.

Wills In Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

There Only by Inference.

An Englishman coming by train to Glasgow for the first time and passing Motherwell Junction said to a gentleman opposite, with whom he had been chatting:

"Queer name, 'Motherwell. Is there a 'Fatherwell' next?"

"No," was the reply, 'but we come immediately to Bothwell."—London Tit-Bits.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wellahra Point, which is now one of the choice harbourside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru caressed their galleon on the beech at Woollahra Point.

JUST A HEADACHE.

Find Out Whether This Malady Is Inevitable In Your Case

You all know the woman who seems to think that she acquires merit by having a headache.

A headache is her constant companion, and, what's more, if she doesn't actually pride herself in it she cherishes much the same feeling toward it that a martyr does toward her martyr's crown. Martyrdom is not without its compensation of glory, you know, unless it chances to be a self imposed martyrdom or at least a martyrdom to an empty cause.

And there are such among the headache martyrs. The headache martyr is the one who has had headaches so often that she has a headache smile.

"It's just a headache," she says, with a wan smile, as if headaches with her were as much a part of the program as her meals.

If that is the case with this poor sufferer she is greatly to be pitied. There are numberless cases on record where people have had persistent headaches the cause of which has stubbornly baffled the physicians. Such a state of affairs is highly regrettable. But how many women have taken the pains to assure themselves that their headaches are inevitable? This spirit of meek submission to the inevitable, it must be remembered, is only commendable when the inevitable is actually not to be avoided, and a lot of things are called inevitable that have simply never been questioned.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, writing in the Delineator, says:

"Pain wherever found in nature's abrupt command 'Halt!'—her imperative order to stop. When you have taken that step you have taken the most important single step toward a cure.

"A headache always means something"—now mark some of the things he says it may mean—"overwork, underventilation, eye strain, underfeeding. Some error," he adds, "in being committed; some bad physical habit is being dropped into."

So what's the use of pitying the woman with the headache smile if she hasn't at least gone over this simple list of causes and made an effort to adjust the trouble?

"There are a dozen different remedies that will stop pain," says this authority, "but they are all dangerous. They all have the fatal defect of dealing with the symptom instead of the cause. Pain is a danger signal, and to stop it is like tearing down the danger signal on a railroad track. The engineer who does that is responsible for the wreck that follows."

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak, or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves big them these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

man. "Don't you go to any hotel. You go to a private boarding house. They won't skin you. I know a good one where they'll treat you right. You come with me." Abe went.

The place was situated in a rather obscure street, but the rates were cheap. Abe's companion, by a singular coincidence, boarded there himself.

After supper they went upstairs into the parlor. A caller was announced, a rather seedy personage. He wanted to see Abe's new companion. They talked together in one corner, while Abe sat in another. Then his friend came over to him.

"Say, Hirschman," he began, "do you know anything about diamonds? Any judge of them?" Abe glanced at the other man out of the corner of his eye.

"Somepin," he replied. "Was in a jewelry store up home fr awhile. Why? What's up?"

"Why, say," continued the other, "here's a friend of mine in a fix. He's got some good diamonds and wants me to 'coax about $200 on 'em. They're worth $900 anyway. I've seen 'em. Now, I ain't got $200 or I'd lend it to him. S'pose you do it. How much have you got?" This was a superfluous question, for he had discovered on the train that Hirschman had just $250.

"Well, now, here," went on the other; "he says if he don't pay up in a week you can keep the stones. See? He can't pay up, and 'the stones are the real thing. See? And you'll be in the difference between a couple of hundred and most a thousand. See?"

Hirschman saw. He thought it over and concluded that it was a sound proposition, provided the gems were genuine. He excused himself a moment, went to his room and put $200 in one envelope and something else in another envelope of similar appearance.

They had to go to the friend's room, a few blocks distant, up a dark, dingy staircase. The friend produced the jewels. Abe wouldn't touch them unless they went over to some Broadway jeweler and determined their worth and genuine character. This was fair, and they went. It was really superfluous, for Abe could tell by the merest examination that the stones were the real things. There were four of them. The Broadway jeweler looked at them, said they might sell for a couple of hundred apiece, but that he would give $150 spot cash for each of them. Then the three went back.

"Well, what do you think of it?" asked Hirschman's friend of Hirschman. "They ain't worth as much as we thought, but there's a good clear profit in it for you in case my friend here don't pay, and if he does you get your money back, with good big interest and a bonus besides at the end of a week."

The diamonds were again produced and once more examined. From that time on Abe Hirschman kept his eyes not on the faces of his friends, but on the diamonds.

A Brave Answer.

There was sharp fighting between the English and French in the Windward Islands in 1778 when General Meadows conquered St. Lucia not, however, without himself being severely wounded at the very beginning of the engagement. The general, though wounded, would not leave the field for a moment, and when the action was over he visited every wounded officer and man before he would receive the surgeon's attention himself. His heart was greatly cheered by an answer given to him by a young subaltern, Lieutenant Gomm of the Forty-sixth regiment, who in the heat of action was wounded in the eye.

"I hope you have not lost your eye, lieutenant," said the general.

"I believe I have sir," replied Gomm. "but with the other I shall see you victorious this day."

Halliburton—McNeely.

On Monday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 476 Woodville avenue, Miss Lilian, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McNeely, was married to Mr. Charles Halliburton, a popular C.P.R. brakeman of West Toronto.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. H. Brown, of Annette Baptist Church, under an arch of foliage and pink roses. The wedding march was played by Miss Edith Loundes, as the bride entered the room, assisted by her father. She was attired in a beautiful gown of cream liberty satin trimmed with real lace and also carried a shower bouquet of cream roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ruby McNeely, sister of the bride, and Miss E. Riley. Miss McNeely wore a very pretty gown of pink silk chiffon voile and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Little Audrey Foster made a charming little flower girl. The groom was assisted by Mr. J. Walker and Mr. F. McConkey.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was served to about fifty guests.

The bride's travelling dress was of grey ladies' cloth with hat to match. On their return from their honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Halliburton will reside at 1625 Fairview avenue, ward seven.—Toronto Star.

Dr. Grenfell has an international reputation, having been decorated by King Edward as a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George and was the first individual ever to receive such honors as the reward for missionary work. The story of his accomplishments in Labrador attracted the attention and won the praise of the English-speaking world.

The engagement of the couple was the result of an acquaintance formed while Miss MacClanahan was traveling abroad, where she met Dr. Grenfell while he was carrying on his negotiations for the support of his Labrador project. After an extended wedding journey, Dr. Grenfell and his bride will reside at St. Anthony, Nfld.

Once morethe gallows have been cheated of its victim by a respite being granted John Dillon who was to hape hung in the Montreal jail yard yesterday morning. The grounds for the respite were insanity. Radcliffe is not making much money now days and it is doubtful if he will have much opposition in his business.

Harry Brown Here.

Mr. Harry Brown of Belleville, the well known hockey player, who has been seen on Peterborough ice many times, is in the city renewing old acquaintances. He leaves today for Ottawa, and will likely figure on the Ottawa line-up this year.

Milk Prices.

Milk is now selling in Peterborough at three prices, five, six and seven cents per quart. Six cents is the ruling figure and very few dealers are selling as low as five cents. One section of the vendors of the lacteal fluid are pulling for seven cents for the winter months, but others refuse to raise the price, and as a result the situation is somewhat tangled. All of which is a good thing for the consumer. With this condition prevailing it is plain that there is no "trust" among the milk dealers.

REV. F. J. SAWERS INDUCTED.

Lakefield, Nov. 18, 1909.—St. John's church was crowded to the doors this evening on the occasion of the induction of the Rev. Frederick John Sawers, M.A., to the rectory of the parish. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, M.A., Rural Dean, of Peterborough and Northumberland was commissioned by the Bishop of Toronto to induct the new rector. Rev. Canon Davidson, M.A., and Rev. H. R. Trumpour, M.A., B. D., of Peterborough, Rev. C R Spencer, M.A., of Young's Point, were also present and took part in the ceremony and service. The Lakefield Grove School, of which Rev. A. D. Mackenzie is head master, turned out in full force and occupied the front pews. After the singing of the first hymn, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt stepped to the chancel steps announcing the subject of the service. The rector elect then read the declaration of assent to the article and liturgy of the Church of England in this Province. Rev. H. R. Trumpour then read the Mandate from the Lord Bishop authorizing Dr. Langfeldt to install the new rector into the rights, privileges and appurtenances of the parish.

The key to the church was presented to the new rector, also a prayer book and the bible, in the accustomed form, and Mr. Sawers was declared the legally appointed rector of St. John's. The evening service was proceeded with, with special psalms, lessons and prayers. Rev. Canon Davidson was the special preacher, and delivered a most practical and helpful sermon from II. Corinthians, iv:4, "For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake."

The service being ended, the congregation gave a reception to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sawers in the school house, at which a large number were present. Mr. Hilliard acted as chairman. Speeches were made by Revs. Dr. Langfeldt, A. W. Mackenzie, C. R Spencer and H. R. Trumpour, all being expressive of good wishes for the new rector and his wife, testifying to the great esteem in which Mr Sawers is held. A large number of Peterborough friends attended the induction, among them Mrs. Sawers, the mother of the rector.

shoes for the children thrown in. Every drinking man in Peterborough that buys three beers a day could send to his home such a Christmas donation every year.

Show it to mother.

Show it to the children.

Ask them how they would like such a donation for Christmas next year.

Cut this out and ask your grocer if he will do the same.

Three beers a day will buy it!

Working men everywhere! Look at that list!

The following letter written to a grocer makes interesting reading not only to men who spend money for liquor, but to men in legitimate business who have goods to sell.

Dear Sir,—Having been accustomed to spend twenty cents a day for whiskey, I find by saving it, I can order from you during one year the following articles;

3 Barrels of flour.
100 Pounds of granulated sugar.
20 Pounds corn starch.
125 Pounds Macaroni.
60 Pounds white beans.
6 Pounds ground pepper.
1 Dozen scrubbing brushes.
50 Pounds soda.
20 Pounds roasted coffee.
25 Cans tomatoes.
24 Cans mackerel.
50 Pounds best raisins.
1 Dozen packages herbs.
40 Pounds oatmeal.
20 Pounds Oolong tea.
1 Barrel crackers.
100 Pounds hominy.
18 Pounds mincemeat.
1 Dozen brooms.
12 Bottles machine oil.
20 Pounds Oolong teaf
24 Cans green peas.
20 Pounds dried apples.
25 Pounds prunes.
40 Pounds laundry starch.
26 Pounds table salt.
25 Pounds lard.
12 Bottles maple syrup.
100 Bars soap.
2 Gallons chow chow.
1 Ream note paper.
500 Envelopes.
2 Newspapers for one year.

"I had no idea my drinking had been costing me so much. I now live better and buy more for my family."

Appended to this list is the statement of the grocer that the money savedwould be ample to provide all the goods enumerated.

Workman, do you want a way out of the hard times? Stop the drink leak! Spend no more money on intoxicating liquors, and you will soon live in your own house, and live in comfort.

The fact is that before the end of this campaign the business men as well as the wage-earners will get the saloon keepers on the run. The labor leaders have spoke without any mincing of the matter. Any man can see how the saloon stands right across the pathway of success and is the greatest foe to all classes ofsociety. Why should citizens want such a foe to pay their civic debts.

POSTUM

Has brought them Sound Sleep, Steady Nerves, Good Digestion, Clear Brains, Strong Hearts, Comfort and Health.

Why ?

Nervousness, heart trouble, sleeplessness, headache, indigestion, or some form of ailment caused by a shattered nervous system.

Keep at the coffee until you prove it.

Then if you value comfort from sturdy health on properly built nerve cells quit coffee and take on POSTUM.

Then you quickly begin the rebuilding and no one need tell you.

YOU KNOW IT.

The elements are in Postum that Nature demands.

COFFEE THE CAUSE

Of Various Ailments.

It does not require a scientist to discover that coffee is harmful.

Plain common sense and the simple habit of looking for the cause of things, soon reveal coffee in its true light—that of a habit-forming drug.

"My family on both sides were confirmed coffee topers," writes a Penna. man, "and we suffered from nervousness, headache, sleeplessness, dizziness and palpitation of the heart.

"Medical treatment never seemed to do any permanent good. I thought there must be some cause for these troubles and yet did not find it was coffee until I was forty-one.

"Hearing of the benefit that many had derived from changing to Postum I quit coffee and used Postum entirely. Now I am like a new man.

"I sleep well, can eat three good meals a day, have no headache nor palpitation, no nerve twitching in my face, and I don't have to pay out hard-earned money for medicines.

"That's my experience, anyway."

SCORES OF MINERS LIVE THROUGH SEVEN DAYS ENTOMBMENT IN BURNING MINE

Gave Cheers of Joy when Reached by Rescueing Party

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 20. — At two o'clock this afternoon it was reported that 40 men were alive in the mine.The men were reached after a wall of debris had been broken down. At first the men were supposed to be dead, but one of themlifted his hand and the rest were found to be breathing.

The live men were immediately rushed to the hoisting shaft and stimulants were administered. One of the men, after being brought to the sunlight after seven days' entombment, was only able to mutter incoherently. His face was black from the smoke and slightly scorched. It appears that the men, after discovering, their predicament, walled themselves in.

Joseph Crescini is one of the men brought up in the cage. He reported between30 and 40 other men alive in the south wing. In the darkness where they waited for seven days in agony of hunger and suspense, they lost track of time and thought that today was Sunday.

The next trip of the cage brought seven other survivors.

SMILING AND HEALTHY.

They were smiling and healthy save for weakness, due to lack of food. News of the rescue travelled with lightning-like rapidity and a change from despair to hope swept over the crowd. Women who have stood for days and night with only the expectation of recovering the mutiliated forms of husbands, and sons, fought with the militiamen in their eagerness to reach the mouth of the pit.

LEARNED THEIR STORY.

When the explorers, led by Duncan McDonald, president of the Illinois Federation of Miners, broke into their living tombs, the men were all seated, but with the first ray of light that fell upon them from the lamps of the searching party, they jumped to their feet and gave a cheer.

Gradually the story of the rescued men was learned. When the men realized that they were entombed the food left in the miners' dinner pails were brought together. The men were put on short rations. In this and subsequent measures taken to safeguard their lives, an Englishman, who had previous experiences of the kind, shared leadership with the Italian, Crescini.

Standard Oil Crushed by the United States Government---An Illegal Corporation

St. Paul, Nov. 20.—The government wins its suit against the Standard Oil Company. The United States Circuit Court today ordered the company dissolved and pronounced it an illegal corporation.

This case was heard in the United an illegal corporation.
in April, 1909, by Circuit Judges Sanborn of St. Paul, Van Deventer of Cheyenne, Hook of Leavenworth and Adams of St. Louis.

The case was brought to enjoin John D. Rockefeller and associates, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and about seventy other corporations, from maintaining a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade, to monopolize interstate and international commerce, and the decree grants the injunction sought by the government.

The opinion of the court recites that the seven individual defendants during the ten years prior to 1879, acquired control of 19 concerns engaged in the oil business, and that in 1879 they united these interests. From 1879 to 1899, the court finds, this control was continued by various methods which are described.

The decree enjoins the seven individual defendants, the Standard Oil Co., and its subsidiary corporations, from continuing or carrying into effect the illegal combination they have formed and from entering into any like combination of conspiracy, the effect of which will be to restrain interstate commerce in petroleum or its products, or to prolong the unlawful monopoly of such commerce obtained by the defendants as stated in the decree, and they are forbidden from engaging or continuing in interstate commerce until they discontinue their illegal combination.

The decree takes effect thirty days from the date of its filing, unless suspended by an appeal to the supreme court.

The case is one of the most notable in the history of thenation on account of the important industrial and legal questions, and the vast financial interests involved.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien the First Rector

It will be learned with great satisfaction in the city and diocese of Peterborough that the Rev. Dr. O'Brien has been appointed the first rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, the new and second Roman Catholic church in this city. The announcement was made by his Lordship Bishop O'Connor at the morning service which marked the opening and dedication of the new church.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien will enter upon his new duties at once and as soon as possible will take up his residence in the parish of the Church of the Sacred Heart. In the meantime his headquarters will be at St. Peter's rectory.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien was born in Peterborough in 1874, and has lived the greater part of his life in the new parish where he is known by all and held in the highest esteem. He was educated in the Separate schools and Collegiate Institute in this city. Afterwards he graduated from St. Michael's College in Toronto, and the Grand Seminary in Montreal. He afterwards took a post graduate course of two years at Rome, and for the past ten years he has been connected with St. Peter's Cathedral as curate.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, is well qualified for his position. As a priest he is honored and revered; as a preacher he is earnest, eloquent and able and as a worker he has few superiors, it is due to him that St. Peter's T.A.S. has achied such success and it is in connection with the work with thatsociety that he is probably best known, and it is there where he can county all the members as loyal friends and true followers. The whole community will join in extending to Rev. Dr. O'Brien congratulation upon elevation in the priesthood and all will extend to him their best wishes for the greatest success in his work.

The Church of The Sacred Heart Formally Opened and Dedicated

Second Magnificent Catholic Edifice in the City —Was Dedicated by Bishop O'Connor

The Church of the Sacred Heart the second Roman Catholic church in Peterborough, was formally opened and dedicated yesterday with all the beauty and sacredness for which the Catholic Church is noted. The magnificent edifice which has just been completed, was crowded to its utmost capacity at all services. In fact as many were unable to gain admittance as those who did.

The sacred ceremonies began with the blessing and dedication of the Church of the Sacred Heart at 10.30 o'clock by his Lordship Bishop O'-Connor. Following the Pontifical high mass was celebrated by his grace Archbishop Gauthier of Kingston The assistant priest was Ven. Archdeacon Casey of Lindsay. Rev. Dr. Burke of Toronto, was deacon, and Rev. Father McColl, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, was sub-deacon. and Rev. Dr. O'Brien was master of ceremonies.

THE SERMON.

A sermon appropriate to the occasion was delivered by his grace Archbishop McEvay of Toronto. He made an extended comparison between the temples of the old lawand the Christian churches of today. He referred particularly to the car shown in the building and decorating of the temple of the old lawand hence the reason for the beautiful Christianchurches we see in the world today. The Church to this purpose has always encouraged sacred music, art and architecture. In conclusion he referred in eulogistic terms to the beautilul architecture of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

THE NEW RECTOR.

At the end of the sermon his lordship Bishop O'Connor expressed his satisfaction at the erection of the second Roman Catholic church in Peterborough, and he announced that Rev. Dr. O'Brien would be the first pastor of the new church.

PONTIFICAL VESPERS.

In the evening Pontifical Vespers were sung by Bishop O'Connor, who was assisted by Venerable Archdeacon Casey of Lindsay, and Rev. Father Kelly of the Cathedral staff. Rt. Rev. Bishop Scollard of Sault Ste. Marie, preached on "The Holiness of the Catholic Church." The ceremonies of the day were concluded by the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

THE NEW CHURCH.

Something about the Church of the Sacred Heart, without any attempt at the descriptive, will be of interest. The structure is of solid granite brought from Stony Lake. It is situated at the corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets. It is massive and imposing in appearance. It is 145 feet long and 80 feet wide. The tower is 84 feet high with a second tower and cross 60 feet higher. There are three entrances from the front on Romaine street. The interior design is strong and artistic The vaulted ceiling with its main arch over the nave and two smaller aisle arches is supported by two rows of fluted pillars with Ionic capitals. The ceiling is paneled and some time in the future will be frescoed. The walls are colored in pure white faintly relieved by a cream border near the ceiling. The effect is very pleasing to the eye and enhances the spaciousness which the church really possesses. The beauty of the interior is still further increased by the colored stained glass windows, each of which represents some scriptural scene. Under the light of day the church is an ensemble of harmonizing colors and imposing as it is the effect is even greater with the artifical rays of many electric lights. The sanctuary is at the north end and the altar is snugly placed against the rounded nrth wall directly opposite the main entrance. At either side are two smaller altars.

The church has been provided with accommodation for 1,000 persons. There are six rows of oak seats totalling 180, each of which will comfortably hold five persons. The gallery has a capacity of another hundred exclusive of the choir. There are three aisles extending from the three doors and the only other exit is through the vestry. Just inside the main door is a memorial font presented to the church by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheehy in memory of their son Willie. The windows are gifts from private individuals as memorials and from the various Catholic societies in the city.

The church was designed by Mr. John'cher
John E. Belcher, the diocesan architect. The contractors were Messrs. Wm. Langford and Richard Sheehy. who took the contract about two years ago. The corner stone was laid on June 14th, 1908. The lighting and heating was done by Messrs. F. R. J. MacPherson & Co., the plumbing by Mr. C. A. J. Duranceau Mr. Fred Cook did the painting and decorating and the stained glass windows were ordered from N. J. Lyon & Co., Toronto.

Ottawa Rough Riders Defeated the Tigers

Rosedale, Nov. 20.—Ottawa Rough Riders finally earned the title of champions of the Interprovincial Rugby Union by defeating Hamilton Tigers 14 to 8. It was stobbornly contested from the start to finish, with the issue in doubt until the last few minutes of the final quarter, when Ottawa fairly rushed the demoralized Tigers off their feet.

Ottawa's victory was entirely due to the great work of Captain Williams and Stonach's lightning fast outside wing, the two being responsible for practically all the points, apart from a try in the first quarter. At the end of the game they were carried off the field on the shoulders of their supporters. Simpson gave a fine exhibition of punting, but was not more effective than Williams, whose all-round work was superior. The other halves failed to do the running expected of them, although Burton and Tope showed up good at times. Ottawa wings held Hamilton all through and at the finish proved stronger.

Conservative Club in Favor of a "Fleet Unit"

At a meeting held at the Conservative Club rooms Saturday night, the following resolution was passed: Moved by Mr. J. H. Burnham, seconded by Mr. D. N. Marshall,—That whereas the British Admiralty representing the British nation did recommend at the great naval and military conference called by it to meet in London last July that Canada provide as her contribution to the defence of the Empire a "naval unit" of the one Imperial fleet rather than an independent fleet acting independently of the central authority, and that whereas the policy now before the Canadian Parliament for consideration is in direct defiance of that request and provides for a separate Canadian navy not at all times ready to join in defence of Empire but only when Parliament may see fit and whereas the time has come for Canada to make good its professions of loyalty in the manner requested by the admiralty and as Australia, New Zealand, etc., are doing therefore be it resolved that Canada's contribution be a "fleet unit," as requested by Great Britain and that a copy of this resolution be sent to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden:'

This resolution was emphatically endorsed in remarks by Mr. F. H. Gardiner and others, and was carried by a standing vote amid loud cheering.

Doctors Accused of Unnecessary Butchery

Brantford, Nov. 20.—At the city council here recently in a discussion on hospital affairs, Ald. Ward made the statement that a doctor had spoken to him of unnecessary butchery at the hospital with no other consideration than that of profit. The remarks of the alderman have roused the Medical Association to action, and in a letter to the press today Ald. Ward was charged with malicious slander and was challenged to make good the name of his medical inlormant.

The local doctors may take legal action in the matter. It was pointed out that over 30 per cent. of the operations at the hospital were performed free.

A Grand Mass Meeting Local Option Discussed

"The best yet," was the verdict of the largest assemblage at the Opera House Gospel temperance meeting yesterday afternoon.

The song service at 3.30 was bright and inspiring. Sheriff Hall occupied the chair and introduced the first speaker, Mr. John A. Paterson, K.C. of Toronto. Mr. Paterson's address was unique inasmuch as he formed the basis of his remarks on the terms of the license law itself and showed conclusively that the law emphasized in all, 44 restrictions put on the liquor traffic that have not been put on any other line of business, viz.;

1. The liquor business is of such a nature that a license cannot be granted to a municipal councillor, of a relative or a partner.

2. The liquor store must be closed on election day.

3. It cannot seize for debt.

4. No woman can be a bar tender, etc.

"Whiskey is good for something," said Mr. Paterson. "If you want to preserve a dead man put him in whiskey; if you want to kill a living man put whiskey into him."

The great inspiration in the present campaign he contended was the fact that all over the Province the people were speaking out against this great evil and the voice of the people was the voice of God. He did not blame the saloon keeper as much as he blamed the voter. And his advice was that great responsibility rested upon every man who had a vote to register it on January 3rd.

REV. T. B. SMITH.

Great interest centered in the address of Rev. T. B. Smith, M.A., of the Church of England, West Toronto. Mr. Smith has lived long enough in what is now Ward 7 of Toronto city, to speak from head and heart regarding the actual condition of things in that thriving section of the Queen City.

He had no harsh words for those engaged in the traffic. The business was entrenched in the license granted, but he was sure Peterborough did not want to perpetuate the treating system of the open bar, and continue the wreckage of human life and the ruin of women and children. He declared what ought to be remembered by everybody that local option was not total prohibition. When that question is placed before the electors we will have to deal with it, but the only question now before the people of the Provinces is that of the banishment of the saloon.

The cry that was raised regarding the loss of the license fees was the Judas cry. Judas saw the pieces of silver and he sold his lord to get them, and there are citizens who would sell the happiness and comfort and lives of men and women for the license fees.

The most glaring exhibition of duplicity and insincerity in the history of West Toronto was seen in the action of one hotel keeper, who prophesied "blue ruin" for the town if local option passed, and yet when it did he drew $40,000 from the bank to put it in acorner lot there.

The attitude of such large corpraitions as the C.P.R., the Toronto Street Railway, and the Canada Foundry, in insisting on total abstinence was remarkable and worthy of note.

The addresses of the afternoon were listened to with intense interest and many men who doubted expressed their hearty approval of the measure.

DR. MCPHERSON ELECTED.

To Position on the O.H.A. Executive at Anaual Meeting.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Dwight J. Turner presided at the annual meeting of the O.H.A. in the Temple Building this morning, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—L. Blake Duff (acc.).
Vice-president—H. Wettlaufer, Berlin (acc.).
Second vice-president—C. Farquharson, Stratford (acc.).
Secretary—W. A. Hewitt, Toronto (accl.)-
Treasurer—Dr. W. G. Wood, Toronto (accl.).
C.A.A.U. representative—F. Nelson, Toronto (accl.).

Secretary and Acting Treasurer W. A. Hewitt read the financial report, which showed a balance of $2,396.97, the largest in the history of the association.

The statement of the Executive Committee indicated that 89 teams were entered in the three series—five in the senior, forty-five in the intermediate and thirty-eight in the junior.

NO MEDAL FOR MORAL HEROES.

But one looks in vain for an award for moral courage, for a medal bestowed in recognition of "illustrations conduct" involving a higher display of heroism than that which involves physical risk only.

Is there no one in the country who has deserved such a decoration by putting his political future in jeopardy for the sake of his principles? Medals for mayors who defy bosses, for district attorneys who follow trails of corruption to their sources and senators who affront predatory interests would contribute greatly to stimulate civic virtue. The public has no lack of applause for spectacular physical, but it has a yet deeper Carnegie hero fund commission could well supplement its work by arranging to reward it—when found.

Eight Hacked to Death by Unknown Murderers

Paschen, Germany, Nov. 20.— Unknown murderers tonight hacked to death with an ax eight persons in a farm house in the village of Bagustawitsch, near the Russian frontier. The victims were a farmer named Wasiezewaki, his wife and five children, and his father-in-law. The murderers are believed to have crossed the frontier.

Locating the Bad Roads in the City

This is the time of the year for locating bad roads. A road that may be fairly passable in summer will present difficulties at this season that make the journey of the traveller a very trying one indeed. This is the testing time, the time when the weak spots come to the top, or the heavily loaded wagon goes to the "bottom." It should be somebody's business to go over the roads and pick out these weak spots. If they cannot be fixed up now then a note should be made of them and the fixing up process delayed until a more convenient season. But what is everybody's business is nobody's business and the up-shot of the whole matter is that when the bad weather season passes by and the roads become tolerably good again, as all roads have a way of doing in dry weather, nothing is done to fix up defects. Fall and spring follow each other regularly, showing up the weak spots, no repairing is done between seasons and the roads continue in an almost impassible state during up season in the spring. Every municipality or county responsible, should make it somebody's business to go over the roads at this season, pick out the bad spots and have them put in repair as soon as possible.

LIGHT THE LIFT LOCK.

Appropriations Made for Work to Be Done This Year.

The estimates this year show a substantial appropriation for the electric-lighting of the Peterborough lift lock and all the locks between the city and Lakefield. This will make a great improvement to navigation on the Trent and it will no longer be necessary to close the lift lock at sundown. Boats will be able to run all night.

A FOOD DRINK.

Which Brings Daily Enjoyment.

A lady doctor writes:

"Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleasure of taking a few minutes to tell of my enjoyment daily obtained from my morning cup of Postum. It is a food beverage, not a drug like coffee.

"I began to use Postum 8 years ago, not because I wanted to, but because coffee which I dearly loved, made my nights long weary periods to be dreaded and unfitting me for business during the day.

"On advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it carefully as suggested on the package. As I had always used "cream and no sugar," I mixed my Postum so. It looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream color it as my Kentucky friend always wanted her coffee to look, like a new saddle.

"Then I tasted it critically, for I had tried many 'substitutes' for coffee. I was pleased, yes, satisfied with my Postum in taste and effect and am yet, being a constant user of it all these years.

I continually assure my friends and acquaintances that they will like Postum in place of coffee, and receive benefit from its use. I have gained weight, can sleep and am not nervous."

Many Prisoners.

The arrival of convicts this fall so far at the Kingston Penitentiary has been the largest known for the past ten years. Hardly a day passes but two or three can be seen getting off the Toronto train en route to the big penal institution. The number coming from the east is not so great. Several female convicts have arrived from Quebec, there being no accommodation for female convicts in that province.—Kingston Standard.

Distress in the Stomach

Deadly cramps—the symptoms are not to be mistaken. Suddenly and without warning the patient experiences such agony in the stomach as to contort the countenance and cause him to cry aloud for help.

Then it is that the wonderful power of Nerviline can make itself felt—it cures so quickly you would think it was made to cure cramps and cramps only.

LETTER No. 4977

"Last summer I was stricken with a frightful attack of cramps. I feared the pain in my stomach would kill me.

"My eyes bulged out and the veins in my forehead stood out like whipcords.

"My cries attracted a neighbor, who came to my assistance, and in a moment or two handed me half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in some sweetened water.

"It seemed as if an angel had charmed away the pain. In ten seconds I was well. Nerviline has a wonderful name in this locality, and is considered best for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, stomach and bowel disorders. I urge all my friends to use Nerviline.

"MANLEY M. LEGARDE,, Williamsburg."

No home is safe or can afford to miss the manifold advantages of having Nerviline on hand in case of accident or emergent sickness. 25c per bottle, five for $1. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

A WAR INCIDENT.

The London correspondent of The New York Sun gives some of the experiences of an officer with the Russian army in the war against Turkey in the later seventies. During the retreat of the Turks towards Constantinople this officer, who was with the pursuing army, saw a baby by the roadside, and ordered a soldier to pick it up. Before he reached the next town nearly every soldier in the regiment had a child in his arms which had been thrown away by Turkish parents in their mad flight before the Russian advance. At this town he seized a sufficient number of carts to send the children to Turkish villages in the mountains where there was hope that people might feed them. What their fate was he could not tell, but is was reported from other sources that some 2,000 children were thrown into the rivers by their parents anh their bodies actually dammed the stream.

That is what war means. The chief suffering falls, not upon soldiers in the field, but on tender women and helpless babes.

Historic Posts of Hudson's Bay Co.

Many of the historic posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta and British Columbia will be distributed next year through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is even now conquering the passage of the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range.

One of the most notable of these old posts and which was used as a base for the supply of the posts in the Interior of British Columbia is Jasper House, situated on the Athabasca River and about 200 miles along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

Jasper House was built about 1800 and the records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that it was established in the forest on the shore of a small lake surrounded by high rocks, except on the lake side.

In 1817 the Factor in charge was Jasper Hawes, It is his Christian name which gives the name to this post, which, however, in the early years of 1st establishment was popularly called the "Rocky Mountain House," although the post of that name was afterwards officially established at the junction of the North Saskatchewan River and the Clearwater River in Alberta.

Jasper Hawes was celebrated for the great shock of yellow hair that he wore and the Indian and Half Breed hunters referred to him as "Tete Jaune," thus Yellow Yellowhead Pass, at the portal of which Jasper House is located, and beyond the Yellowhead, Tete Jaune Cache where the parting of the ways came for many a party of Coureurs des bois of the Hudson's Bay Company, covering the rich fur country of the interior of British Columbia. Even as the Buffalo trails which deeply intented the prairie in every direction a few years sides are being rapidly obliterated by the march of settlement and the building of railways,so will the land marks of early Canadian frontier history be only a cold record in the files of the far trading companies.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century. Its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the discommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from slits or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption,so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realisation of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I'm had to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

Very Controversial.

They were very controversial in those days.

First.—Bowles wrote a book about Pope.

Second.—Campbell abused Bowles' book on Pope.

Third.—Bowles replied to Campbell's abuse of Bowles on Pope.

Fourth.—Byron wrote an answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Fifth.—John Bull wrote a letter to Byron about Byron's answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Sixth.—Dr. Garnet has a theory of the authorship of John Bull's letter to Byron about Byron's comments on Bowles' answer to—it is like "The House That Jack Built!"—Andrew Lang.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, and, while wearing the right hand glove, if-it-some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or rubbing of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine on the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?
Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the stomach, nor attempt the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the failing, faltering, feeble or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that, as the only physician able to say to the sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address

THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world that makes them of great value. The black diamonds are pure carbon, and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George E. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 225 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives dive in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions, where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Men Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one; and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or——

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Menzel.

Wills in Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequeathing the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

There Only by Inference.

An Englishman coming by train to Glasgow for the first time and passing Motherwell Junction said to a gentleman opposite, with whom he had been chatting:

"Queer name, 'Motherwell. Is there a 'Fatherwell' next?"

"No," was the reply, 'but we come immediately to Bothwell."—London Tit-Bits.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wallaha Point, which is now one of the choice harbourside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru caressed their galleon on the beach at Woollahra Point.

THE PANAMA HAT.

What Came of a Glimpse of the Initials on the Inside.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

(Copyright, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.)

As Genevieve came on deck the young man in the panama hat glanced over his shoulder in her direction. Then, with surprising alacrity, he whirled about, and the rapid removal of the panama revealed a well shaped head and close cropped dark hair, which clung through many vicissitudes to an unmistakable tendency to curl.

As the morning dew vanishes under the fierce rays of the midsummer sun, so the young man's expression of joyful animation disappeared when met by Genevieve's chilly stare. His lower jaw dropped. The color mounted from the top of his rather high collar to the roots of his hair. Genevieve went on her way well satisfied with herself.

"I imagine he thinks me not quite so unsophisticated as he supposed. Probably his intention was to surprise me into a bow and then to presume on that to join me. And by the time that I had explained that I really didn't know him we should be beginning to feel quite well acquainted." She smiled again with superior triumph as she reflected on the overthrow of the plot. She wished that Aunt Myra might have been an onlooker—Aunt Myra, who had questioned the propriety of her taking the short voyage unchaperoned.

On the opposite side of the steamer the wearer of the panama hat leaned upon the rail and darkly regarded the blue water. The attitude, suggestive of dejection, gave Genevieve the opportunity to steal furtive glances at the motionless offender. His clothes fitted well. As far as that was concerned, any tailor would be inspired to do his best by such a figure. "Adorable shoulders," said Genevieve, so nearly aloud that it was just as well that Aunt Myra was not present.

At the expiration of an hour Genevieve had come to the conclusion that the guilty young man who had addressed her when she came on deck was not an old offender. He had taken her rebuff too deeply to heart for that. His interest in the Chesapeake bay seemed to undergo no diminution after sixty minutes of incessant staring. Genevieve began to feel that possibly she had been too severe. A look of dignified perplexity might have been enough without any of the ruthless, annihilating scorn before which his self confidence had shriveled. Genevieve surprised herself in a pitying sigh.

It was now time for the panama to take a hand. As Genevieve's commiserating glance stole in the direction of the crushed and disheartened youth staring over the rail her challenge was accepted. With a birdlike motion the panama rose from its owner's head, evading his clutch with a dexterity that argued deliberate intention. It sailed across the steamer's bow, dodging various agile persons who attempted to intercept it, and continued in Genevieve's direction. On reaching her it surrendered at discretion. Tame and obedient as a pet dog, it dropped into her lap, and, though Genevieve clutched it by the brim, that was merely a matter of form. She was sure that the panama hat had no intention of going farther.

The hat's owner was not far behind his property. There was a redness about him that was not due to sunburn, but was not unbecoming. He bowed. Genevieve reflected, with a feeling of self congratulation, like a gentleman.

"I am very much in your debt," said the owner of the panama.

"Not at all, I'm sure," responded Genevieve. Her tone was calculated to a nicety—not friendly enough to encourage liberties in the presumptuous, not chilling enough to dishearten the timid and retiring.

"Perhaps," the young man hesitated, taking his property from her extended hand, "I might improve this opportunity to apologize for what must have seemed a piece of rudeness on my part."

Genevieve listened with an expression as nicely calculated as her tone had been. There was nothing about it on which one could pronounce, yet it was far from being frosty.

"As you came up the stairs," the young man continued, twirling the panama, "I glanced over my shoulder, and for some reason your face looked extraordinarily familiar. When I bowed I was under the impression that I knew you."

Genevieve's lips curled a little in spite of herself. He would have done better, she reflected, to stop with the apology, the explanation was so painfully weak; tries to start with, and, moreover—well, without vanity, Genevieve knew that her type was not common.

Certainly never was six foot one of manhood so easily disconcerted.

"Thank you again," said the owner of the panama in a low voice, and he turned on his heel.

But as he set his recovered hat upon his head Genevieve caught sight of something that made her start—three shining gilt letters fixed into the inner leather band. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" she cried impulsively.

The young man did not hear her, and a fellow passenger checked him in his return to his seat, seizing his coattails. "Lady ain't done with you yet," said the obliging passenger, and the owner of the panama looked back and saw that it was true.

He returned with an apparent reluctance Genevieve thought best not to notice. "Excuse me," she said breathlessly, "but those letters inside your hat—are they your initials?"

The young man stared and colored. "Why, yes."

"Like an algebra problem, aren't they?" Genevieve persisted.

Apparently the young man wished to show her that she was not the only person who could assume an air of hauteur. "The peculiarity of my name," said the owner of the panama, looking over Genevieve's head, "is a misfortune in which the general public"—

"The reason I asked," interrupted Genevieve, "is because I never heard of but one person whose initials were X. Y. Z., and he was one of my cousin's dearest friends."

The owner of the panama no longer looked haughty. Instead his expression suggested blissful incredulity.

"His name began," Genevieve continued, blushing under the young man's gaze, "with Xavier."

"Young," prompted the other delightedly.

"Zimmerman," Genevieve concluded, and she looked about her. "Isn't there an unoccupied chair? Oh, yes!"

The young man brought it and seated himself beside her. "I've always hated my name," he said meditatively. "It's a mixture of French and English and German, of the prosaic and the sentimental. It's fairly grotesque and indefensible from any standpoint. I've seriously contemplated having it changed by an act of the legislature. But from this day on I'll find no more fault with it. When you saw those letters X. Y. Z., of course you knew there couldn't be but one of us."

"I blame myself for waiting for that," said Genevieve demurely, "since I've seen your photograph at my cousin's, a number of photographs indeed."

Mr. Zimmerman drew a long breath. "And I was wondering why your face seemed so familiar." He made a motion toward an inside pocket, but then checked himself, reflecting that perhaps it would be wiser to wait a little for that. But by the middle of the next forenoon he felt it safe to exhibit the little kodak picture Jim had given him—a picture of Genevieve with a tennis racket over her shoulder and her hair ruffled by the breeze.

Genevieve pouted. "If he were going to give you any," she said, "he might have chosen one that—that flattered me more."

The sea voyage from Baltimore to Boston, though not a long one, affords considerable opportunity for progress in acquaintance. Mr. X. Y. Zimmerman might be suggestive of an algebraic problem, but in that case no one of his fellow passengers was in doubt as to the final solution.

The Psychology of Crowds.

There is a justification for a preventive censorship in the peculiar nature of the crowd. Collective psychology, or the psychology of crowds (mainly investigated so far by French and Italian inquirers), is a study still in its infancy. A completely satisfactory explanation of the peculiarities of the crowd is not yet forthcoming. But these peculiarities are matters of common knowledge.

Briefly, a crowd is a new entity, differing in mind and will from the individuals who compose it. Its intellectual pitch is lowered, its emotional pitch raised. It takes on something of the characteristics of a hypnotized "subject." It tends to be irrational.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your sixpence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy hoeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for hoeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' of I do," said the boy, "and hell of I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the food mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Growcher, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And no! I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realize that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

TO DISPOSE OF POSTCARDS.

NOVEL WAY TO USE PICTURE POSTCARDS.

An ordinary soap box is used for the receptacle, and on the bottom corners small unfiled spools of cotton are glued in place for supports. The postcards are then pasted on the box, the finished product being edged with gimpe, put on with fancy tacks.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economics and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort at years, and by all its cares in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other sound considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has exclusive contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 10 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 10 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

THE LAWS OF CASTE.

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Bihar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and in other parts of Europe In notifying this fact to the Kayastha Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas received in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayaschitt" as inculcated by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without invoking the Supreme Being as inculcated by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the routines of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you will live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry, and shall have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars?" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting or personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to ask for information with the only thing I have to give is real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. B. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm, I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No mention was ever undertaken in the matter.

NOT EXACTLY THAT.

Famous Men Who Have Made Malapropos Remarks.

Most of us are acquainted with "Punch's" joke concerning the son of the house who, as he gallantly escorted the beauty of the evening to her carriage, gushingly remarked, "I have been waiting all the evening for this moment."

Twice in one evening the great novelist, Charles Dickens, was guilty of an embarrassing malapropism. "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately," he wrote to a friend, explaining the matter. "I took a young lady unknown down to dinner and talked to her about the Bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. And I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, Lord Fermoy —generally conceiving him to be an Irish member—on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and Marylebone representatives."

Even these situations, however, are not quite so embarrassing as that of a member of Parliament who, at a certain political reception, remarked to a neighbor, "I wonder who that homely old woman is over there?" pointing out a rather stout lady at the other end of the room.

"That, sir," was the reply, "is my wife!"

"Indeed! That is my daughter!"

The first Baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how, while on circuit with Justice Rook, they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The pariah clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical Psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be; or must not innocence appeal to Heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed; your griping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed."

By this time most of the adults had woke up to the application of the Psalm and remained silent, allowing the children and a few women to continue the second verse

Tribesmen Active.

The Indian Northwest frontier is presently in an unsettled state, owing to the activity of the Khostwal tribesmen. The border police have been strengthened as the Khostwal men recently made an attack on Batochki in the Kurram, and lost several men killed and wounded in the fray. Owing to their reverse they have apparently collected in some numbers, and are bent on revenge. The disturbed conditions in the neighborhood of Bannu still continue. As bands of the Khostwals hang about, the Tochi road to Miranshah has to be picketed, whenever officers are traveling to or from Bannu, and escorts have to be provided for officers of the militia journeying from post to post. A sense of insecurity is felt also in British territory since the mail tonga for Kohat was attacked fifteen miles from Bannu. On that occasion the Naib Tahsildar of Miranshah was carried off, but released by the raiders owing to the hot pursuit of the border military police. The tonga was carrying English mails, but fortunately none of the bags were taken. Only one bag of Indian letters was stolen, and this was recovered.

Getting Rich In Australia.

What thrift and energy may do, even for the farm laborer in Australia, is well illustrated by a case which recently came before the Wagga Land Board. One of the applicants for a selection was a lad between 18 and 19 years of age. It was shown in evidence that while working as a farm laborer the applicant had saved sufficient money to buy farm horses, costing in the aggregate $350, and that he still had $300 cash in hand. During harvest time he had received $9 per week and his keep for driving five horses in a stripper; while ploughing he received $6.25, and for the rest of the year $5 per week and keep. A member of the board remarked that if the Premier would have a report of this case printed and circulated in England, there would be no difficulty in securing desirable young men of the farm-laboring class as immigrants; the trouble would then be to keep them away. One resident of the district intimates that he could place at once ten young men of this type at $6.25 per week.

Her First Part.

Miss Wynne-Matthison, who is taking a leading part in the new Adelphi piece, "The Great Divide," found her first efforts to gain a footing on the ladder of theatrical fame in London far from encouraging. It is true that she recited and acted as an amateur in Shakespearian and other roles from the age of ten, but when she came to seek for professional engagements she found she could get nothing but a one-word part in a musical comedy; that was thirteen years ago. Since then Miss Matthison, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy, has achieved much, and holds the distinction of being Sir Henry Irving's last leading lady. She is probably the last woman to whom he ever spoke, for she was playing Fair Rosamond to his Becket on the night of his tragic death.

Mr. and Mrs. Compo, Watertown, N.Y., returned home yesterday after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Compo's sister, Mrs. Wm. Hiskey, Eagleburne avenue, Ashburnham.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH.

These Who Experience Fullness and Pains After Meals, Stomach Disorders and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. Today I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

AT ST. ANDREW'S.

Mr. John A. Patterson, K.C., Gave an Address on Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Yesterday morning in St. Andrew's church John A. Patterson, K C., of Toronto, gave an excellent address on the Layman's missionary movement. Mr. Patterson is an elder of the Presbyterian Church and for many years he has been identified with all departments of moral and social reform, including temperance and the Lord's Day Alliance: he is also a member of several very important committees of the General Assembly, notably the Foreign Mission Committee.

Mr. Paterson referred to the great importance of the conference held the Metropolitan church last week. He referred in glowing terms to the important part taken by John R. Mott, whose addresses were made all the more forceful by the fact of his long experience and wide knowledge of the whole missionary world.

Mr. Paterson referred to the responsibility resting on the Christian church today and called upon Christian men to realize more fully their duty in obedience to God, and if they assumed the name of Christian to carry out in life the character likeness and will of Christ.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

In Springville Presbyterian Church Held Yesterday.

Very large congregations attended the anniversary services at Springville yesterday in the Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. Marsh, the pastor, was assisted bu Rev. H. G. Livingston, of Barton street Methodist church, Hamilton, who preached both sermons and rendered several vocal selections. In the morning he sang as a solo, "I was once far away from the Savior." As a duett with Mrs. Jas. Fowler he sang "The Homeland," In the evening Rev. Mr. Livingston sang as a solo "Oh the joy that there awaits me," and Mrs. Fowler and he sang as a duett "Saved by Grace."

In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Livingston accompanied the pastor to Bethany and although he did not preach the sermon he sang a couple of solos. The offerings at all the services were very liberal.

Tonight a sacred concert will be given at which Rev. Mr. Livingston, Rev. J. G. Potter and Miss Thorndyke of Toronto, will sing, and Miss Story of Toronto, elocutionist. will also be present.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. 12

Main Estimates.

The main estimates for the coming fiscal year have been placed upon the table in the House of Commons and they show a total of $127,670,993. Of this enormous sum this district is interested in so far as Cobourg gets $75,000 for extension of breakwater and dredging; Juniper Island, Stoney Lake, wharf, $3,400; Port Hope, repairs to piers, $5,000. Peterborough City is not mentioned. There is no appropriation for wharfs or dredging here. This city will have to come in the supplementary estimates. Upon the Trent Valley materially, however, there will be spent $1,760,000 This is for the extension of the work on contracts already let on the Trent and Georgian Bay ends.

NICHOLLS WON SUIT.

Judge Roger Awarded Him $53.50 Damages.

Port Hope, Nov. 19.—Dickson B. Nicholls has been awarded damages for $53.50 in Division Court by His Honour Judge Roger in his case against Douglas Wark.

The defendant, Douglas Wark is the lessee of the Opera House and he leased the house to Courtney & Courtney for a moving picture show for the sum of $300 per year. This lease was transferred to Dickson Nicholls who at present conducts the picture show. According to the terms of the agreement Mr. Wark reserved the rights to bring in shows to the Opera House but agreed not to use House more than one night or day at a time. On fair nights, Sept. 28th and 29th Mr. Wark brought in two shows, Mepstead & Marr Bros., Vaudeville Co., on the 28th, and Guy Bros. the night following. Mr. Nicholls complained about the appearance of Guy Bros., and claimed $50 damages for being deprived of carrying on his own show on that evening. He also claimed $3.50 being the amount he paid under protest to Mr. Wark for the use of the piano for three months free but the fourth month Mr. Wark placed a fee of $3.50 for the use of the same. Nicholls considered $50 a reasonable estimate for his loss on Fair night. The defendant was not present and judgment was given the plaintiff for the full amount $53.36. H. A. Ward for plaintiff.

THE SUPREME TEST.

What the Lovely Maiden Feared the Most.

"Stillingia," said the young man, his voice tremulous with suppressed emotion, "are you going to put me on the pazzin? is this where I get off?"

Unshed tears were in the lovely maiden's eyes. If she had shed them they would not have been in her eyes. But let that pass.

"I have not said so, Geoffrey," reluctantly she answered, "in so many words. But"—

"Listen, Stillingia," he burst forth impetuously. "Is there any other guy that's got the inside track? Am I playing second fiddle to some snooper with plastered hair, an ingrowing chin and a pull at the bank? If so"—

"No, Geoffrey, but"—

"Geoffrey," interrupted the beautiful girl, standing erect before him, pale, but calm and resolute, "I know you love me, and I am touched as never before by your devotion, but something seems to tell me that we are not truly mated"—

Here her voice faltered.

Over 40,000 Girls Go Out on Strike

Shirt Waist Workers Leave Their Machines to Start Big Fight—Gompers Endorses Them

New York, Nov. 23.—At ten o'clock today 40,000 shirt waist workers left their machines and the long-expected general strike was on. This action followed the meeting at Cooper Union last night, when the workers were addressed by Samuel Gompers, president of the A.F. of L., who pledged support.

The headquarters of the strikers is at Clinton Hall, and signs and streamers in front of the building proclaimed the news that the big strike was on.

There was no desire on the part of anyof the girls to hang back. Each girl waited eagerly in line for her turn to give her name and address and each new arrival was greeted with cheers.

The girls are striking for shorter hours, a fifteen per cent. increase in pay and better sanitary conditions.

They claim conditions in the factories where they are employed are unbearable and that their health is daily menaced.

Fire Insurance Co's. Want Protective Tariff Against Foreign Co's

Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie of the Peterborough Cheese Board has received the following letter and resolution from the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association, relating to the amendments to the Insurance Act now before the Senate. The matter is of very great concern, not only to all the dairy interests, but to every person who carries fire insurance.

To the Secretary, Peterborough Cheese Board.

Dear Sir,

Probably you are aware that at the last session of Parliament, clauses were inserted in theInsurance Bill to prevent the placing of any insurance with others than Companies licensed in Canada; in other words, to prevent the owner of property from seeking outside insurance, no matter how excessive the rates, or unfavorable the conditions, offered by local Companies.

The Bill was referred to the Banking and Commercial Committee of the House of Commons, the insurance interests were well organized and well represented; the public for the most part was unaware that any such clauses were being introduced, and for this reason there was no properly organized opposition. The result was that a compromise was arrived at, and a tax of 15 per cent. was placed on the premiums paid for all insurance placed with Companies not registered in Canada. The Bill did not pass the Senate, and so did not become law at last session, but it is understood that it will be reintroduced in the Senate on the reassembling of Parliament with even more stringent conditions embodied in it.

The members of our Association feel that the original object of the government legislation was the protection of the public, and whilst they do not ask that any injustice should be done to the insurance interests, they feel very strongly that there is no justification for a restriction of the present conditions, nor the imposition of a protective insurance tax.

It is the aim of the Association to reduce the cost of handling farm and dairy produce to the very lowest possible figure and so procure the greatest benefit to the farmer. Apart from those large concerns who have been compelled to seek outside insurance solely on account of the inability of the registered Companies to give them a sufficient amount of insurance, others have been compelled to seek outside insurance on account of excessive rates, or the stringent conditions inserted in the policies by the local Companies.

There is no question but that at the present time the majority of the insurers who effect their insurance with registered Companies, are protected against excessive rates by the certain knowledge that the owner will have recourse to outside insurance if necessity arises. Any alteration in the existing insurance law, which would restrict the obtaining of fire insurance outside of Canada, would not only immediately re-act on the dairying and farming interests by reason of the increased cost of insurance to the large produce firms who at the present time insure outside of the country, but it would also affect those houses which at present insure with registered Companies, in that it is only natural that the rates and conditions would shortly become more onerous if competition were cut off.

I enclose herewith a copy of a resolution which has been passed by this Association and forwarded to the Minister of Agriculture, and I am to suggest that you call a meeting of your Board, have the resolution approved, and forward same to the Minister of Agriculture, with as little delay as possible. I know that this is somewhat late in the season and that it may be difficult for you to get the members together, but the matter is of sufficient importance to warrant your making a special effort to get a sufficient number of members together to form a quorum to give you authority to take action.

I am, Yours truly,

J. STANLEY COOK.
Secretary.

THE RESOLUTION.

Whereas certain sections of the Bill called "An Act respecting Insurance" that is to be introduced at the coming session of Parliament, will have the effect of increasing the cost of fire insurance to every user thereof;

Whereas any increase in the rates of insurance on farm and dairy produce will have an injurious effect, and therefore become burdensome to the farming and produce industries of Canada;

Whereas the general fire insurance companies located in Canada are asking for legislation which will tend to confine or give control of all fire insurances in the Dominion to their own companies to the detriment of all the insured throughout Canada;

Whereas the Fire Insurance Companies, known as the regular or Tariff Companies, have an organization known as the "Canadian Underwriters' Association," which Association fixes the rates on any or all property, the members of which Association control about 88 per cent. of the total insurance reported to the Dominion Government, and all agree to maintain uniform rates and conditions;

Whereas the original object of Government regulation was for the protection of the public and not for the benefit of the insurance companies;

Whereas it has frequently been found impossible to obtain all the insurance required from registered companies, which companies frequently limit or refuse the acceptance of risks which do not suit them;

Whereas it is not proposed to tax registered companies for re-insuring a portion of their risks with unregistered companies without having to pay a tax for so doing;

Whereas for many years past even. tual resource to Underwriters at Lloyd's, London, or other unregistered concerns has been the owners' chief safeguard against the excessive rates of a viritual combine, and the only means of placing all the insurance required;

Therefore resolved that this association places itself on record as strongly opposed to any alteration in the insurance laws that will in any way restrict the freedom of our members in securing insurance to the fullest extent of their requirements, or that will deprive the assured of the right of placing such insurance with strong financial companies operating outside of Canada; and

Further, resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Minister of Agriculture, asking for and claiming his special interest in the Bill on behalf of the dairying and produce interests of Canada, which we realize will be so vitally and adversely affected if the proposed legislation be enacted.

HOCKEY EXECUTIVE.

Met and Elected E. E. McWilliams Second Vice-President.

Mr. E. N. McWilliams was elected second vice-president of the Peterborough Hockey Club at the meeting of the Executive held Monday epening. Mr. Harry Morgan, who was elected to that position at the annual meeting found it necessary to resign and his resignation was accepted last night, Mr. McWilliams being unanimously chosen to succeed him.

It was definitely decided by the Executive that Peterborough should have intermediate and junior teams in the O.H.A., and Secretary Glover was instructed to make arrangement with the management of the Brock street rink for matches and practices this season. It was decided to use three practice nights this year the same as last season and arrangements will be made to use the rink on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. It is likely that the same arrangements will be carried out as last year, i.e., to have a night for juniors alone, the second for seniors alone, and the third for both teams to practice togather.

The securing of uniforms for the two teams is also being considered, and there will likely be a meeting of the executive towards the end of the week.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE."

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure the Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill so mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE WEATHER.

Light local snow but partly fair.

A Local Photographer is Greatly Incensed

A well known local photographer has a grievance against one of the big Toronto daily newspapers. The cause of his grievance seems to be a breach of the Canadian Copyright Act. The local artist almost invariably takes out a Canadian copyright on his exterior photographic views. Last fall he took a number of beautiful Rice Lake views showing the various scenes and incidents of gathering wild or Indian rice. The series shows first, gathering the rice by Indians, spreading the gathered production on sheets to dry, threshing the rice, winnowing it, inspecting the cleaned rice and the final process of purchasing the finished goods. These pictures are colored and are produced on picture post cards and "copyrighted." The Toronto paper in their last Saturday's issue reproduced three of this copyrighted series without the formality of asking his permission or even giving the photographer credit for taking the pictures. This practice is a common breach of both courtesy and the copyright law, by Canadian newspapers.

The English magazines and newspapers when they reproduced copyrighted pictures invariably give all due credit to the original artist or photographer, after gaining his permission to use his work. The penalty for such a breach of the copyright law is very heavy. It includes confiscation of the plates from which the pictures are reproduced, said plates to be handed over to the owner of the copyright: every copy of the offending paper or magazine, etc., must be given to the owner of the copyright. Also the party using such copyrighted pictures shall pay a fine of ten cents for every copy and for each plate or picture therein containing the illegally used pictures.

The artist is very much exasperated over this use of his copyrighted pictures, without his authority, and without giving his firm any credit for the original production of this series.

Should he take such action as the Copyright Act permits him, in fact encourages him to take, he would possibly get heavy damages owing to the immense circulation of the Toronto paper.

Wired that His Wife was Dead Before Her Body was Found

Uxbridge, Nov. 23.—That one grain of strychnine was found in the stomach of Mrs. McLaughlin. This was made known through Dr. Ellis' report of his analysis. Much evidence which merely corroborated that already received, was given, but some vital points were brought out, just at the close of the morning session, it being stated that McLaughlin had wired news of the death of his wife and children an hour before their bodies were found. The report of Dr. W. H. Ellis, who had examined the stomach of Mrs. McLaughlin, was read by Crown Attorney Farewell.

"I have extracted from the stomach one grain of strychnine," it said.

Dr. Shier was called upon to read the report of his post mortem examination. This stated that on Mrs. McLaughlin's lips there had been a foam. Her hair and eyebrows showed no sign of having been singed. The organs were in their natural position, there being no sign of organic trouble. The stomach externally showed no signs of indigestion, but indicated that it contained about an ounce of fluid matter. The bronchial tubes were full of bloody froth. The heart contained no white blood clots such as would place in a very slow death. The skull cap did not show any sign of violence. The cause of death was suffocation. There is no evidence of contributory causes.

"In view of the analyst's report, is that consistent with the post-mortem appearances?" asked Col. Farewell.

"It is," replied Dr. Shier.

"In fact if we had known death resulted from strychnine poison, we could not have found other than we did."

"If death had occurred from strychnine poison what would you have found?"

"We would likely have found the arms in the position that they were in in this case. We would expect rigor mortis to be marked. We would expect the eyes to be somewhat prominent."

"Were they in this case?" asked the coroner.

"No; they were sink on."

"And the mouth?" asked Colonel Farewell.

"You might expect a froth," replied the doctor.

"And," said Coroner Bascom, "you would expect the blood to be fluid, as it was in this case, would you not?"

"Yes."

Storm Damage Repaired Gangs of Men at Work

Peterborough is now beginning to straighten itself out after one of the worst ice storms in its history which visited the city Monday and Monday night. During that time the rain fell continuously and froze as it fell. On the level 1 4-5 inches of water was recorded by Mr. Walter Peters, the local observer, and that will give some idea of the weight upon the trees and wires.

Great damage was done to the wires of all the electric light, power telegraph and telephone companies fire alarm system was out of commission entirely. Aside from the financial loss great inconvenience was experienced to commerce.

The railway companies, and especially the C.P.R., shared in the loss by broken wires and late trains. The C.P.R. wires were down from Havelock thirty miles east and the officials were uneasy about running their passenger trains over that piece of road. The freight trains were stopped entirely until a satisfactory communication could be restored. The G.T.R. got off more fortunately. They suffered from wires and poles being down but were able to run their trains on schedule

Early Tuesday morning all the companies that were hit by the storm got gangs of men, all the men they could engage, and started to repair the damage. In the city a lot of work was accomplished and especially in districts where factories and commercial interests were tied up. The residential sections that had been deprived of electric lights and telephones, owing to broken wires, were left over until today when it is expected that all, or nearly all of the damage will be repaired.

Last night there were hundreds of citizens who realized for the first time what an awful taskmaster the Standard Oil Trust is. Coal oil had to be purchased, and when the citizens were called upon to pay 26c. a gallon for second grade oil that used to cost 15c, it made them think, and they began to understand why Rockefeller could build universities with the profits. Many people had to run around to their neighborn and borrow a little oil or a lamp to keep them going until the grocer arrived with their little can, and houses usually brilliantly illuminated were in total darkness except for a little flicker from one small oil lamp.

If trees could be valued by dollars and cents the amount of damage to the shade trees in this city would amount to many thousands of dollars. In many cases trees that have proudly defied the worst blasts of winter for nearly a hundred years, were bowed and bent and some of their largest branches were snapped off as though they were of crystal.

The fire alarm system was knocked completely out of business and several hundred dollars damage was done. Chief Howard and his men got busy at once and have worked hard ever since getting the lines repaired. Up to last night about a third of the boxes were in commission and the chief said that they would likely all be working by three o'clock this afternoon. Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water & Light Committee, instructed the chief to notify all the factories and big commercial houses that the fire alarm was not working and to send in any alarm by telept

Mr. J. Kerr.

The death which occurred on Saturday, November 20th, removed one of the oldest residents of South Monaghan, Mr. J. Kerr, at the age of 83 years. The deceased was a native of South Monaghan and had resided in the township during his life. He married Miss Mary Graham, native of Ireland. His wife survives him, also four sons and four daughters—Mr. George Kerr, of Vancouver; Mr. John Kerr, of Souris, Manitoba; Mr. Robert Kerr, of Alberta; and Mr. James Kerr, Belmont, Manitoba; Mrs. Wm. Armour, Vernon, B.C., Mrs. John English, Chilliwack B.C., and Miss Annie Kerr at home. The funeral took place from the family residence to the Methodist cemetery, South Monaghan. The late Mr. Kerr was a Conservative in politics and a stout believer in his party's principles. He was reeve of the township for many years and took a sincere interest in its affairs.

Is Germany's Eye on This Country

A Visitor from That Land Says That Canada Would be the Prize in a Fight Between England and Germany

Toronto, Nov. 23.—"Had England and Germany come together, the prize for which Germany would have fought is Canada,"

This statement was made to a newspaper man by Mr. H. R. Rheinhart, who carries on a large grain importing business in Germany, having branches in all the principal cities of the country. Naturally when so much war-talk was in the air, Mr. Rheinhart studied the question thoroughly, seeing how vitally a war would have affected his business.

"Why should Germany wish to occupy England?" said he. "England is overcrowded now, the new generation is almost pushing the old into the seas. Had it not been for England's wonderful colonization schemes it would have happened long ago. And that's where Germany is today—too many little Hans and too many little Gretchens running around. The population of Germany is increasing faster than that of any other nation, and the nation has no outlet for the younger generation.

"That is the tragedy, and the problem which our land must face. We have gone far in science, in industry and in trade. But we have not provided for our sons and daughters. They can indeed come to Canada or they can go to the United States. But once they land on this side of the water we lose them. We need a Canada and had the war come it was for Canada that we would have fought."

Scores are Alive in the Lower Levels

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 23.—Cherry rested for a brief period early today before the beginning of the crucial struggle to rescue the living or carry the dead from the 500-foot level of the St. Paul coal mine.

At midnight boy miners had forced their way into the third vein preparing for a rush of their comrades to the same vein today. They declared the air in the gallery stagnant, but capable of sustaining life, the water but a few inches deep and all indications favorable to prolonging the life of those imprisoned.

The youths had scarsely emerged from the shaft when tidings were spread that the fire in the second vein had broken out anew. All preparations for the further exploring of the vein were halted while Chicago firemen attacked the blaze, which now threatened the main shaft. The contest with the fire continued for several hours.

Lady Witness Says McLaughlin Showed Letter from a Girl

Uxbridge, Ont., Nov. 23.—J. A. McClintock, who assisted Dr. W. C. Shier to perform the post mortem examination on the body of Mary McLaughlin, was the first witness called when the inquest was opened this afternoon before Coroner Bascom. He subscribed to the evidence given this morning by Dr. Shier.

"Suppose there had been no fire," suggested Crown Attorney Farewell.

"Well, the conditions show that death could have been caused by suffocation or by strychnine," said the doctor.

The congestion of the brains, lungs and liver which Dr. Shier described could have been caused in either way he said.

"If she died from suffocation alone you would not expect to have found her hands in the folded positionthey were in, and which the authorities described as being the position they assumed in death from strychnine?" asked the coroner.

"Not likely."

DEAD SEVERAL HOURS.

"It is said that rigor mortis had set in very markedly when the body was taken from the building at two o'clock in the morning. How long before would you think that death had ensued?"

"Three or four hours."

From the post mortem examination, even along with Professor Ellis report of the finding of a grain of strychnine poison in her stomach, it would be impossible to say whether death came by suffocation by smoke or by strychnine," the doctor said to T. N. Phelan, in cross-examination. The blood in the lungs would have to be examined to discover traces of charcoal or smoke, and this was not done, he said.

"From the fact that a grain of strychnine was found in her stomach, do you judge that she had taken a fatal dose?" asked the coroner. "Yes."

Miss Ruth Lott, an employe at Alexander and McThail's, where McLaughlin used to work, said that "like most men" he liked to talk to women.

"Especially when they are good looking ones," supplemented the Crown attorney.

"He used to talk mostly to the young grocery boys," said Miss Lott "Oh, pshaw," said the Crown attorney, laughing. "Why none of the jury here would bother talking to young grocery boys when there were two good looking girls around."

"We were pretty busy there," said the witness.

"You and he were pretty chummy," said the Crown attorney. "I am told that he showed you a letter of his from a certain girl?"

"Yes, he did once."

Doctor Shier Says All Died the Same Way

UXbridge, Nov. 23.—Another session of the enquiry into the death of Mrs. Mary McLaughlin and her two infant children, Gordon and Charles, and of the fire which destroyed their home here on the night of October 28th last, was held before Coroner Dr. Horace Bascom and the jury last night.

The principal evidence at this session, which adjourned a short while before midnight, was that given by Dr. W. C. Shier. He was one of the first on the scene and examined the bodies of the mother and children, by a light from a lantern, before they had been removed from the house, which was still burning.

In all three cases, he said, there was unmistakable signs of rigor mortes when he made his examination less than two hours after the fire

THE DIRTY STREETS.

Without any desire to place any responsibility upon any individual or committee it is timely to draw attention to the very disagreeable if not disgraceful condition of Peterborough's roads. For the past week or ten days the citizens have been wading through sloppy streets. It is not mud because there is no mud here. It is the natural accumulations mixed by the rain water, with the dust that is ground off the unsuitable material used in road making. There is on the level about an inch and a half or two inches of this filth that is too thick to run off to the side of the street and down the gutters to the sewers, but it is splendid stuff to scrape off with the scrapers that have been lying idle in one of the municipal yards all year.

This "excreta, in all its purity," to quote Magistrate D. W. Dumble, makes the streets filthy, unsightly, unhealthy, and altogether disagreeable to man and beast. It is a shame that Peterborough has to put up with it. As a matter of fact there is no excuse for it, except that no provision was made for this work when the estimates were struck last winter. It was an oversight and one which should never be made in the future. The citizens have furnished the funds to purchase all the machinery necessary for scraping the streets and making good roads, and they have very seldom, if ever, objected to supply money to have the machinery operated. All work of this kind is economy. Every man woman and child suffers from the neglect of it. Dirty filthy streets cause damage to every person who uses them much greater in the destruction of clothes, rigs, merchandise, etc., that the money needed to keep the streets clean and in good repair. Had the scraper been run over the roads after the first rain a couple of weeks ago and the accumulation removed, the rains that followed would quickly run off and streets left in a cleaner condition than before.

At this season of the year it would be profitable for the public works department to prepare a plan for next years work, and in that plan include street cleaning, spring and fall, the repairing of the roads where the need is known now, and have a report, with the estimated cost, laid before the committee and the Council not later than the January meeting.

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a wighty sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally,and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

NERVILINE RESTORES WEAK STOMACHS

The above letter comes from Mrs. P. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

IF BRITANNIA DIDN'T RULE.

The Monroe doctrine protect Canada? The Monroe doctrine won't be able to protect itself if Britain loses command of the seas, says the Toronto Telegram.

But then, what about Canadian autonomy? We would still have that left. As it appears in the revealed master mariner of the Toronto Globe—a preventive of substantial aid to an Imperial navy — it should be able to cope with the Kaiser's utmost truculence by land or by sea. What nonsense! Autonomy, the Canadian navy, so called and yet-to-be, the items of apology used by those who contend that Canada has done her Imperial defence measures, that is to say, our railways, our canals, and other aids to national development—what becomes of this array, minus "Britannia Rules the Waves" —What! Those who scoff at the German danger lose sight of historical incidents.The levy of an indemnity in case of a British defeat would mean something to Canada, if such a compromise would satisfy the victorious Teutons. Possibly some "spongers" would be satisfied to allow Great Britain to "pay the shot," but the real Canadians wouldn't. On this basis alone the cost of several Dreadnoughts wouldn't look exactly "like thirty cents," but let it go at that!

Historic Posts of Hudson's Bay Co.

Many of the historic posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta and British Columbia will be distributed next year through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is even now conquering the passage of the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range.

One of the most notable of these old posts and which was used as a base for the supply of the posts in the Interior of British Columbia is Jasper House, situated on the Athabasca River and about 200 miles along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

Jasper House was built about 1800 and the records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that it was established in the forest on the shore of a small lake surrounded by high rocks, except on the lake side.

In 1817 the Factor in charge was Jasper Hawes, It is his Christian name which gives the name to this post, which, however, in the early years of 1st establishment was popularly called the "Rocky Mountain House," although the post of that name was afterwards officially established at the junction of the North Saskatchewan River and the Clearwater River in Alberta.

Jasper Hawes was celebrated for the great shock of yellow hair that he wore and the Indian and Half Breed hunters referred to him as "Tete Jaune," thus Yellow Yellowhead Pass, at the portal of which Jasper House is located, and beyond the Yellowhead, Tete Jaune Cache where the parting of the ways came for many a party of Coureurs des Bois of the Hudson's Bay Company, covering the rich fur country of the Interior of British Columbia. Even the buffalo trails which deeply incised the prairie in every direction many years since are being rapidly obliterated by the march of settlement and the building of railways,so will the land marks of early Canadian frontier history be only a cold record in the files of the fur trading companies.

EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life; in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 20 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes to-day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such —the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings, or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with these iron shavings and the interstices filled with cement sufficiently fine to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under blows or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinar macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"'They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: 'They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions'."

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of repute? It need to be said that the hurry of most Americans made it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that this defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far away from the haunts of the strangers are more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American dressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to their own maids to have their neat fingers repair the damage that the first wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show him or her the poor sewing. There is the perfunctory expression of regret and surprise, and the dress is sent to the workroom to be repaired and is delivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment.

Wise women take them as they are, are thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her attention is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to the outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The sirup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A saucerful of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Sarah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging.

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse that futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world that makes them of great value. The black diamonds are pure carbon, and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George E. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 235 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives dive in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions, where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Men Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Croe, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Croe had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or—

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Mensel.

Wills In Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

There Only by Inference.

An Englishman coming by train to Glasgow for the first time and passing Motherwell Junction said to a gentleman opposite, with whom he had been chatting:

"Queer name, 'Motherwell. Is there a 'Fatherwell' next?"

"No," was the reply, 'but we come immediately to Bothwell."—London Tit-Bits.

WAR SCARES.

The Ease With Which They Develop in European Nations.

Germany has just had a scare, and it appears that a British cruiser is the innocent cause. During the recent Baltic cruise of the Cornwall the captain intimated his intention of paying a visit to Kiel.

A dense mist prevailed at the time, and the harbor authorities did not expect her to put in an appearance before morning. When day broke, however, the official world of Kiel was staggered to find the Cornwall moored in her assigned position and apparently quite at home.

She had navigated the difficult Kiel fiord in the darkness and mist without a pilot on board, and not only that, but investigation showed that she had done the same thing at Danzig and Swinemunde.

A German newspaper immediately hushed its readers into a panic. "What would happen in the event of a sudden outbreak of war with England?" it screamed. "They would not have the slightest difficulty in bottling up the high seas in Kiel or elsewhere!"

One Belgian newspaper kept its readers awake for several nights on account of a discovery it made in a German geography book. The book, the use of which was said to be obligatory in most schools, contained this passage: "Belgium, Switzerland, Lichtenstein, Holland, Luxemburg and Denmark are considered as forming part of Germany, because they are mostly situated inside her natural boundaries." Then Denmark and Switzerland and the others began to scream.

Switzerland had another "scare" all on its own account. Not very long ago several battalions of Italian Alpine troops on skees appeared on the Theodule pass, above Zermatt, and had the town practically at their mercy.

The incident raised a storm of excitement in the Swiss press. Where, they demanded, were the twelve battalions of mountain troops and artillery for which money was voted in the Swiss parliament?

A few weeks ago the Parisian boulevard press bubbled over with excitement. Four German balloons had descended in France within forty-eight hours, and one of the papers complained, "It is raining Germans balloons."

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wollahra Point, which is now one of the choice harbor side residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru careened their galleon on the beech at Woollahra Point.

THE PANAMA HAT.

What Came of a Glimpse of the Initials on the Inside.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

As Genevieve came on deck the young man in the panama hat glanced over his shoulder in her direction. Then, with surprising alacrity, he whirled about, and the rapid removal of the panama revealed a well shaped head and close cropped dark hair, which clung through many vicissitudes to an unmistakable tendency to curl.

As the morning dew vanishes under the fierce rays of the midsummer sun, so the young man's expression of joyful animation disappeared when met by Genevieve's chilly stare. His lower jaw dropped. The color mounted from the top of his rather high collar to the roots of his hair. Genevieve went on her way well satisfied with herself.

"I imagine he thinks me not quite so unsophisticated as he appeared. Probably his intention was to surprise me into a bow and then to presume on that to join me. And by the time that I had explained that I really didn't know him we should be beginning to feel quite well acquainted." She smiled again with superior triumph as she reflected on the overthrow of the plot. She wished that Aunt Myra might have been an onlooker—Aunt Myra, who had questioned the propriety of her taking the short voyage unchaperoned.

On the opposite side of the steamer the wearer of the panama hat leaned upon the rail and darkly regarded the blue water. The attitude, suggestive of dejection, gave Genevieve the opportunity to steal furtive glances at the motionless offender. His clothes fitted well. As far as that was concerned, any tailor would be inspired to do his best by such a figure. "Adorable shoulders," said Genevieve, so nearly aloud that it was just as well that Aunt Myra was not present.

At the expiration of an hour Genevieve had come to the conclusion that the guilty young man who had addressed her when she came on deck was not an old offender. He had taken her rebuff too deeply to heart for that. His interest in the Chesapeake bay seemed to undergo no diminution after sixty minutes of incessant staring. Genevieve began to feel that possibly she had been too severe. A look of dignified perplexity might have been enough without any of the ruthless, annihilating scorn before which his self confidence had shriveled. Genevieve surprised herself in a pitying sigh.

It was now time for the panama to take a hand. As Genevieve's commiserating glance stole in the direction of the crushed and disheartened youth staring over the rail her challenge was accepted. With a birdlike motion the panama rose from its owner's head, evading his clutch with a dexterity that argued deliberate intention. It sailed across the steamer's bow, dodging various agile persons who attempted to intercept it, and continued in Genevieve's direction. On reaching her it surrendered at discretion. Tame and obedient as a pet dog, it dropped into her lap, and, though Genevieve clutched it by the brim, that was merely a matter of form. She was sure that the panama hat had no intention of going farther.

The hat's owner was not far behind his property. There was a redness about him that was not due to sunburn, but was not unbecoming. He bowed. Genevieve reflected, with a feeling of self congratulation, like a gentleman.

"I am very much in your debt," said the owner of the panama.

"Not at all, I'm sure," responded Genevieve. Her tone was calculated to society—not friendly enough to encourage liberties in the presumptuous, not chilling enough to dishearten the timid and retiring.

"Perhaps," the young man hesitated, taking his property from her extended hand, "I might improve this opportunity to apologize for what must have seemed a piece of rudeness on my part."

Genevieve listened with an expression as nicely calculated as her tone had been. There was nothing about it on which one could presume, yet it was far from being frosty.

"As you came up the stairs," the young man continued, twirling the panama, "I glanced over my shoulder, and for some reason your face looked extraordinarily familiar. When I bowed I was under the impression that I knew you."

Genevieve's lips curled a little in spite of herself. He would have done better, she reflected, to stop with the apology, the explanation was so painfully weak; trite to start with, and, moreover—well, without vanity, Genevieve knew that her type was not common.

Certainly never was six foot one of manhood so easily disconcerted.

"Thank you again," said the owner of the panama in a low voice, and he turned on his heel.

But as he set his recovered hat upon his head Genevieve caught sight of something that made her start—three shining gilt letters fixed into the inner leather band. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" she cried impulsively.

The young man did not hear her, and a fellow passenger checked him in his return to his seat, seizing his coattails. "Lady ain't done with you yet," said the obliging passenger, and the owner of the panama looked back and saw that it was true.

He returned with an apparent reluctance Genevieve thought best not to notice. "Excuse me," she said breathlessly, "but those letters inside your hat—are they your initials?"

The young man stared and colored. "Why, yes."

"Like an algebra problem, aren't they?" Genevieve persisted.

Apparently the young man wished to show her that she was not the only person who could assume an air of hauteur. "The peculiarity of my name," said the owner of the panama, looking over Genevieve's head, "is a misfortune in which the general public"—

"The reason I asked," interrupted Genevieve, "is because I never heard of but one person whose initials were X. Y. Z., and he was one of my cousin's dearest friends."

The owner of the panama no longer looked haughty. Instead his expression suggested blissful incredulity.

"His name began," Genevieve continued, blushing under the young man's gaze, "with Xavier."

"Young," prompted the other delightedly.

"Zimmerman," Genevieve concluded, and she looked about her. "Isn't there an unoccupied chair? Oh, yes!"

The young man brought it and seated himself beside her. "I've always hated my name," he said meditatively. "It's a mixture of French and English and German, of the prosaic and the sentimental. It's fairly grotesque and indefensible from any standpoint. I've seriously contemplated having it changed by an act of the legislature. But from this day on I'll find no more fault with it. When you saw those letters X. Y. Z., of course you knew there couldn't be but one of us."

"I blame myself for waiting for that," said Genevieve demurely, "since I've seen your photograph at my cousin's, a number of photographs indeed."

Mr. Zimmerman drew a long breath. "And I was wondering why your face seemed so familiar." He made a motion toward an inside pocket, but then checked himself, reflecting that perhaps it would be wiser to wait a little for that. But by the middle of the next forenoon he felt it safe to exhibit the little Kodak picture Jim had given him—a picture of Genevieve with a tennis racket over her shoulder and her hair ruffled by the breeze.

Genevieve pouted. "If he were going to give you any," she said, "he might have chosen one that—that flattered me more."

The sea voyage from Baltimore to Boston, though not a long one, affords considerable opportunity for progress in acquaintance. Mr. X. Y. Zimmerman might be suggestive of an algebraic problem, but in that case no one of his fellow passengers was in doubt as to the final solution.

The Psychology of Crowds.

There is a justification for a preventive censorship in the peculiar nature of the crowd. Collective psychology, or the psychology of crowds (mainly investigated so far by French and Italian inquirers), is a study, still in its infancy. A completely satisfactory explanation of the peculiarities of the crowd is not yet forthcoming. But those peculiarities are matters of common knowledge.

Briefly, a crowd is a new entity, differing in mind and will from the individuals who compose it. Its intellectual pitch is lowered, its emotional pitch raised. It takes on something of the characteristics of a hypnotised "subject." It tends to be irrational.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick clapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your sixpence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy hoeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for hoeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' of I do," said the boy, "and hell of I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the fond mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Groucher, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

THE WAY OF IT.

A man and woman ride
Within a street car cooped,
But if she be not fair,
With age or toiling stooped,
We notice in the car
That these they will be grouped:

Him.
Her.

A married pair go out,
And in an auto race
He has no eye for aught
Save tearing holes through space,
And therefore we observe
'Tis thus each takes a place:

Him.
Her.

A youth and maiden ride
Upon a winter day,
Their sleigh shines lightly on,
And all with frost is gay,
And we observe they sit
In just about this way:

Him.
Her.

An Old Story.

"Chesty says that his boy is wonderfully smart."

"Yes, but Chesty ought to know better than to build any experience on that. I can remember when Chesty's father said the same thing about him."

Such a Mean Trick.

"Come home with me to dinner tonight, Gormley."

"Delighted."

"I want you to hear my youngest daughter play the piano."

"By Jove, I'm awfully sorry, old chap, but I have forgotten a most important engagement. Some other night, dear boy."

"Sorry about the engagement, Gormley. The fact is, I have neither a youngest daughter nor a piano."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Larry Was Prepared.

"Well, Larry," said the genial manufacturer, "I hear that you are much interested in aerial sports these days."

"Yes, sor," responded the coachman with the big volume under his arm; "that is why I bought this book."

"Ah! You want to learn how to go up in an airship?"

"No; I want to learn how to come down. That is why I bought 'The Descent of Man,' sor."—Detroit Free Press.

Beating Mrs. Lot.

"It was not so very wonderful that when Lot's wife looked back she turned into a pillar of salt."

"Not a very wonderful thing to have happened in the age of miracles, perhaps, but nothing so wonderful happens in these prosaic days."

"Oh, I don't know. We were going out Main street last evening and when my chauffeur looked back he turned into a telegraph pole."—Houston Post.

A Crazy Clock.

Visiting an old mate, who had the misfortune to be confined in a Yorkshire asylum, a collier noticed that the large clock in the reception hall was ten minutes slow.

"That clock is not right," he exclaimed.

"No, lad!" was the lunatic's reply. "That's why it's here."—London Daily News.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many recent and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity has a good foundation stone, and an sound, healthy condition, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economics and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

As a large business ship going is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all its cares to the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other sundry considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investing public an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailed proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of 8 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 32 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to office, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

HEAL that OBSTINATE SORE!

CUTS and bruises are often very obstinate in refusing to heal. The edges of the wound remain inflamed and sore, and there is a daily danger of disease-germs settling on the raw flesh and giving rise to serious complications. Thus, neglect or improper treatment of an injury, be it a cut, burn, scald, or even a simple scratch, is a menace to life.

In cases where wounds refuse to heal quickly, nothing but Zam-Buk will suffice if the skin is to be made to grow naturally and perfectly once again. Zam-Buk rubbed gently over a wound has the remarkable effect, not only of rendering the wound proof against disease-germs, but of growing new skin-tissues.

Thus Zam-Buk heals wounds in a perfectly natural manner, and the possibilities of eczema and other torturing skin-diseases are entirely prevented. Possessing rare medicinal properties, Zam-Buk accomplishes what ordinary ointments and salves never can do, and its ever-ready character, constant reliability, and absolute purity, render it distinct from all other preparations. If you dress your cuts and sores with Zam-Buk you will never be troubled with "the wound that would not heal."

Of all Druggists and Stores at 50 cents a box, or three for $1.25.

It is claimed that when the unnecessary employes on the Intercolonial Railway were laid off, the majority of the unfortunate ones were Tories. That is the fault of the men not of the government. A man should not of the government. A man should never vote against his bread and butter, unless he is prepared to take the consequences.

ONE PUNCH MEANS

New York, Nov. 22.—A fortune in one punch.

There isn't any doubt that the winner of the Jeffries-Johnson fight will establish a new record in the amount of money won in a single encounter in the ring. The fighting game is the most lucrative vocation in the world. Joe Gans went to Fort Erie, stepped into the ring with Frank Erne, shot out his right, and right there was created a new lightweight champion. That one punch netted Gans at least $100,000 worth of engagements.

LAST BIG GATE

Although never officially given out it is said that the gate receipts for the fight between Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns pulled off by Hugh McIntosh, the famous Australian promoter, at Sydney last December amounted to considerably over $100,000, so it would not in the least surprise the club managers of this country if some one should be compelled to offer more than $100,000 for the Johnson-Jeffries contest in this country. In fact, a well known Frisco promoter is willing to give that much, if not more, for the battle, which will undoubtedly break all records in this country for attendance

LUCKY JEFF.

This will be the fifth contest in which Jeff engaged that broke the record. When he whipped Tom Sharkey in New York the Coney Island Club announced that the gate receipts totalled $86,000, of which the fighters received over $36,000. The Jeffries-Corbet battle in San Francisco drew a $95,000 house, and their contest in New York also drew a big house. The Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight for the world's championship also drew heavily, the receipts being $63,000.

Although in no way official; the following table of big purses received by the fighters will be found very interesting by the fight fans:

FIVE BEST FIGHTS.

Contests.	Gate Receipts
Nelson-Gans, at Goldfield	$69,715
Jeffries-Sharkey, at Coney Island	67,000
Fitzsimmons-Jeffries, at Coney Island	63,000
Corbett-Jeffries, at San Francisco	62,340
Corbett-McCoy, at New York	57,000

OIL PROFITS $1,000,000,000.

Rockefeller Said to have Got $106,198,000 in Seven Years.

New York, Nov. 22.—Wall Street statisticians have figured it out that the Standard Oil Company has made profits of nearly $800,000,000 in the seven years from 1902 to 1909. This year's profit is estimated at $80,000,000. The approximate figures, allowing $80,000,000 for 1909, are $798,202,000. In this time the company has distributed $318,594,300 in dividends.

Mr. Rockefeller is supposed to own about a third of the Standard Oil stock. On that basis he received $106,198,000 out of the $318,594,300 paid to shareholders in the shape of dividends, or about $6,000,000 more than the capitalization of the company.

For the seventeen years since 1882 the net profits of the company are estimated at $1,049,442,064, while the dividends for the same period have amounted to $670,427,300. The surplus after dividends amount to $397,014,764.

Tribesmen Active.

The Indian Northwest frontier is presently in an unsettled state, owing to the activity of the Khostwal tribesmen. The border police have been strengthened as the Khostwal men recently made an attack on Batoshki in the Kurram, and lost several men killed and wounded in the fray. Owing to their reverse they have apparently collected in some numbers, and are bent on revenge. The disturbed conditions in the neighborhood of Bannu still continue. As bands of the Khostwals hang about, the Tochi road to Miranshah has to be picketed, whenever officers are traveling to or from Bannu, and escorts have to be provided for officers of the militia journeying from post to post. A sense of insecurity is felt also in British territory since the mail tonga for Kohat was attacked fifteen miles from Bannu. On that occasion the Naib Tahsildar of Miranshah was carried off, but released by the raiders owing to the hot pursuit of the border military police. The tonga was carrying English mails, but fortunately none of the bags were taken. Only one bag of Indian letters was stolen, and this was recovered.

Getting Rich In Australia.

What thrift and energy may do, even for the farm laborer in Australia, is well illustrated by a case which recently came before the Wagga Land Board. One of the applicants for a selection was a lad between 18 and 19 years of age. It was shown in evidence that while working as a farm laborer the applicant had saved sufficient money to buy farm horses, costing in the aggregate $350, and that he still had $300 cash in hand. During harvest time he had received $3 per week and his keep for driving five horses in a stripper; while ploughing he received $6.25, and for the rest of the year $5 per week and keep. A member of the board remarked that if the Premier would have a report of this case printed and circulated in England, there would be no difficulty in securing desirable young men of the farm-laboring class as immigrants; the trouble would then be to keep them away. One resident of the district intimates that he could place at once ten young men of this type at $6.25 per week.

Her First Part.

Miss Wynne-Matthison, who is taking a leading part in the new Adelphi piece, "The Great Divide," found her first efforts to gain a footing on the ladder of theatrical fame in London far from encouraging. It is true that she recited and acted as an amateur in Shakespearian and other roles from the age of ten, but when she came to seek for professional engagements she found she could get nothing but a one-word part in a musical comedy; that was thirteen years ago. Since then Miss Matthison, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy, has achieved much, and holds the distinction of being Sir Henry Irving's last leading lady. She is probably the last woman to whom he ever spoke, for she was playing Fair Rosamond to his Becket on the night of his tragic death.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

VOL. XXXII NO. 275 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY NOVEMBER 25, 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

Found 168 Bodies in Great Tangled Mass

Black Damp Had Smothered Men After a Day or Two of Desperate Effort to Keep Air Moving

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 24.—Practically all of the bodies of those that perished in the Cherry disaster were found this morning on a staircase at the mouth of the third or lower level.

One hundred and sixty-eight corpses were found, leaving about a score to be accounted for.

The bodies were in a great tangled mass, completely blocking the staircase leading from the third to the second vein, and scattered along the vein where they had dropped before reaching the stairway.

Black damp was the cause of death All means of escape had been blocked by debris falling, and covering the top of the staircase. The men had died as they tried to push through theobestructions or waited vainly for rescuers.

Death evidently did not come to many for hours, if not days. Two rude wooden ventilating fans, fashioned after the manner of those found two days ago in the second gallery, were affixed to the shaft wall and stairway. The men had turned these by hand in their frantic struggle for air, and in the hopeless effort to brush back the black damp.

The hands of one miner were firmly gripped about the fan.

Horse and Buggy Collides with St. Car---Boy was badly Injured

Last night while driving along Charlotte street, near Aylmer, a horse and buggy collided with a C. G.E. car, with the result that the buggy was demolished. The horse and rig was the property of Mr. Dennis of Concession street. Ashburnham, and was driven by his two sons and a young lad named McLean. One of the Dennis boys had his collar bone broken, but the other two boys were uninjured in any way save for a few scratches they got when the buggy was smashed into firewood by the car. Dr. Frederick was called to attend to the injuries of the injured boy.

Uxbridge, Ont., Nov. 23.—Breathing heavily, with his head resting on his left hand and at times on the shoulder of his counsel, T. N. Phelan, his legs crossed, and generally in a doubled-up condition, young Archie McLaughlin sat on a chair in the small room over the fire hall here yesterday afternoon and last night, listening to the evidence adduced before Magistrate Hamilton on the charge that he "did kill and murder his wife, Mary."

The prisoner is a rather good-looking young man, who does not appear to be over 30 years of age. He is of medium height, with a thin face and sharp features. His hair is raven black, parted down the center. He was neatly dressed, including in the moon got married tan shoes, dark grey trousers, a black coat and vest, and a small black tie. He is closely shaven, but since he was taken to Whitby jail he has allowed his moustache to grow.

IN NERVOUS STATE.

He was palably nervous when brought into the court, and his loud breathing through his nose could be heard all over the court room. In the afternoon he appeared to be about to collapse and leaning over rested his head on Mr. Phelan's shoulder, while his eyes closed and his shoulders heaved. Mr. Phelan did not disturb him and he remained in that position for some time. Before the charge was read to him Mr. Phelan reserved all rights to object to the jurisdiction of the magistrate to try the case. He did not state his reasons for objecting, however.

"How do you plead? Guilty or not guilty?" asked the magistrate when the charge was read to him.

"Not guilty," said the prisoner in a weak voice.

"I neither elect nor plead," broke in Mr. Phelan.

Dr. W. C. Shier and Dr. J. A. McClintock were the first witnesses called, their evidence being the same as that given at the inquest.

PROF. ELLIS IN BOX.

The third witness was Professor W. H. Ellis, Provincial analyist, who was on the stand less than a quarter of an hour. He was examined by J. E. Farewell of Whitby, Crown Attorney, Professor Ellis tol Crown Attorney. Professor Ellis told of receiving the stomach of Mrs. McLaughlin for examination.

"What condition was it in when you received it?" asked Mr. Farewell.

"It was sealed," said the witness.

"Was any name written upon it?"

"Dr. Shier's name was on the outside of the package".

"Did you examine it?" "Yes."

"And what did you find?" "About a grain of strychnine."

"Would there have been more than that?"

"Usually when it is administered to a living person some of it is absorbed into the system. It passes into the intestines, which I didn't examine."

"How much is considered a fatal dose?"

"From half to two grains."

"How does it act on a person?"

"It acts quickly, usually from five to ten minutes after it is administered. Death may not ensue for an hour or so."

"How does it produce death?"

"From suffocation. The person becomes violent and either dies from suffocation or from exhaustion."

"Outside of the stomach, where is the poison usually found?"

"In the intestines, liver and other organs and in the blood."

IN FORM OF CRYSTAL.

Cross-examined by Mr. Phelan, the witness said that the strychnine which he found in the form of a crystalwould have appeared to him the same if it had been put into the stomach after death.

Thereat of the evening was taken up with the examination of the same witnesses as gave evidence at the first night's hearing of the inquest before Coroner Basson.

The witnesses were cross-examined by H. B. Cook, during the evening session on behalf of the prisoner.

Immense Shipments of Western Grain Wait for Early Completion of Canal

Large Portion of Grain Traffic That Reaches Montreal Will Go by Trent Canal.

Local Trade Would be Greatly Increased

Every Person in the District Should Urge the Early Completion of the Canal.

The following despatch from Montreal will be of the greatest interest to all who are interested in the Trent Canal, as it will give an idea of what may be expected in the way of through traffic from the west to Montreal. That the local trade will be very large and that Peterborough city will be greatly benefited, and that more mills which consume the western grain will be erected here is admitted by all, but imagine the number of boats that will run up and down this canal when a goodly share of the 28,000,000 bushels of wheat that have reached Montreal this season, will go via the Trent Canal. Every man in the district should work for the early completion of the Trent canal. The dispatch is as follows :—

Montreal, Nov. 24.—Successful and satisfactory all round is the summing up of steamship men in regard to the ocean shipping season of 1909 on the St. Lawrence, now so rapidly drawing to a close.

Two million bushels of grain are on the way to Montreal from the West; fifteen barge-loads are expected before the end of the month, from Kingston, and six lake vessels are hurrying through the canals in order to discharge their cargoes in the port before the season closes. Several shiploads of pulpwood are also bound up the river, and when these are discharged navigation will have truly ceased for the season. Seven ocean vessels are still in port, and the last one to leave will be the Montreal, on Friday. Numbers of lake and river steamers will be seen in the harbor until about November 30.

A GREAT AGGREGATE TONNAGE

Shipping statistics for the year have already been compiled, and a very successful seven months of ocean trade is shown. During that period 167 deep sea vessels have called in port, of an aggregate tonnage of 1,495,173. Last year there were 186 arrivals, with a tonnage of 1,367 818 showing a difference of 37,355 tons in favor of 1909, but a decrease of 19 steamships.

SHIPMENTS OF WHEAT

This year approximately 28,000,000 bushels of wheat have reached port, a slight increase over the 27,688,906 of 1908, and an appreciable gain over the 21,267,639 bushels of 1907. All but about 400,000 bushels of this huge total have been shipped out to European points, 250,000 bushels remaining in the Harbor's Commission ers' elevator. It is estimated that very little of this will be taken out by the steamers now in port. Therefore, the local storage capacity will not be enough to hold the two million bushels now on the way here. When the Harbor Commissioners, Grand Trunk, and other Montreal elevators have been filled, the balance will be stowed in barges and sent on to Quebec. Owing to the recent fire on the water-front of that city, which wiped out the Great Northern elevator, the barges will be forced to remain in Quebec harbor with the grain on board until the opening of next season, and the arrival of ocean steamships.

Proposal to Make Election Day a Public Holiday

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—Mr. Macdonnell, M.P., of Toronto, has a bill before the House, whereby the man who wants to run for a seat in Parliament won't have to put up the regular $200 deposit, and whereby also a general election will mean a national holiday.

The same member has another bill given its first reading this afternoon. This one is to amend the Industrial Disputes Act so that the members of the Board of Conciliation shall all receive twenty-five dollars a day instead of fifteen dollars a day as at present.

Six Dead, 14 Injured in a New York Fire

New York, Nov. 24.—After a complete search of the ruins of the four-storey tenement house at 1400 Herkimer street, Brooklyn, which was destroyed by fire early today, the firemen declare that the death total will reach six, while 14 were injured, four of them so seriously that they may die. All the dead and injured are Italians. Fire Marshall Brophy declared today that the fire was surely of incendiary origin.

The fire started in the basement of the building and by the time the alarm was spread it had burned through the one stairway in the building and egress was cut off. There were many thrilling rescues. The firemen being compelled to take nearly all the residents out of the building on ladders. Several mother, frantic with fright, dropped their babies out of the windows, but all were caught safely by firemen and volunteers on the streets below.

Niagara Fruit Shipped by the Train Loads to East and West

St. Catherines, Nov. 24.—"The report of the fruit shipments from St. Catherines this season, which is being prepared, gives some very interesting facts and figures," said Mr. T. C. Jamieson, of this city. "During the season now closing a total of 480 cars of fruit were shipped away from our city, 336 of them going east to Montreal, and 144 to Winnipeg and other Western cities. The capacity of a car is 2,400 small baskets or 1,200 large ones. The freight charges on these cars would total about $19,000, and the fruit would be worth from $400 to $600 per car. Two-thirds of the fruit shipped was grapes, the rest being made up of apples, peaches, plums and pears.

"Our trade with Winnipeg this year was more satisfactory than any year since we began shipping fruit west, said he. "I notice some one has been telling the newspapers that the grape-growers will have to curtail their grape-growing, as they were becoming a glut on the market That's all bosh. Hundreds of towns in the Canadian West did not see a grape this year, notwithstanding the great Niagara crop. In Souris, Man., $1.75 a basket was paid for grapes this year. Why, the Canadian West can eat up more grapes than we can ever hope to grow. Next year we will open up new territory in the West for our fruit, as we have already made such a success of it.

FRENCH PUBLIC SCHOOLS MUST REMAIN IN FRANCE.

Premier Replies to Pope Regarding Confessional Schools.

Paris, November 24. — Premier Briand in the Chamber of Deputies indirectly replied to the address of the Pope, which he made on Thursday last before a body of French pilgrims, in which the Pope declared that France was making war against the Church, with the aim of undermining the basis of Christianity. The Premier warned the Republicans not to be alarmed by the disorder the Church was attempting to stir up in the face of the coming elections. "The country," said Mr. Briand, "will never permit the destruction of the public school system, which is the proudest work of the republic."

The Premier characterised the Catholic appeals as "violent, passionate and unjust," intimating that the Government possessed documents, and could, if it so desired, make embarrassing revelations regarding conditions in the confessional schools. Turning to the Catholics, he declared that the persecution of which they complained was purely imaginary.

The Royalists have issued a manifesto announcing their intention to unite with the Catholics at the coming general election in opposition to those candidates who were not in sympathy with the Church's attitude regarding the public schools.

The New Cement Merger to have Stiff Opposition

Montreal, Nov. 24.—The new cement merger is to have opposition. Mr. H. D. Anderson, head of a twenty-five million dollar concern, has arrived in Montreal, and is already engaged making plans to enter the cement market. Mr. Anderson is managing director of the English Cement Associated Works. He believes that cement can be exported from the Old Country to Canada cheaply enough to invade this field. If that cannot be done he believes he can manufacture cement by starting plants here cheaply enough to compete with the merger.

A Fierce Storm Raging in the Far West

Pacific Coast Has for Two Days Been Swept by Wind and Rain---Ranches Flooded

Portland, Oregon, Nov. 24.— The unprecedented storm that has prevailed in the Pacific North-west for two days, shows no signs of abating. In Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington the rain is of secondary importance to a wind storm, which has caused considerable damage. So far as reported no lives have been lost.

No damage to shipping is reported, except the stranding of the schooner Mary Winkleman, near Port Townsend.

In North-western Washington, the ranches on the low lands are flooded, and the railroads have lost a number of bridges. Train schedules are demoralised.

Along lower Puget Sound the streams are all out of their banks, and flooding the lowlands and destroying bridges, the railroad tracks. The Great Northern Railroad which crosses the Cascade east of Everett is tied up. Several trains being stalled in the mountains.

In the Grays Harbor country the greatest loss has been to logs, one raft alone, valued at $200,000, being swept out to sea.

Along the bank of the Columbia River landslides have put the railroads out of business temporarily.

RAILWAY CLOSED FOR WEEKS.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 24.—A relief train bearing passengers of Great Northern No. 3, due in Seattle, Monday, arrived last night.

The passengers told of the terrible havoc of the floods in the Cascade Mountains. The passengers of three other Great Northern trains are marooned between the Cascade tunnel and Tonga, 35 miles east of here.

It is feared damage to the Great Northern is so great that it will take weeks to open the line.

APPEAR IN COURT.

Create a Disturbance in a Dummer Church.

Hight County Constable Cochrane left yesterday morning on a mission to a part of Dummer township, to deliver a number of summonses and subpoenas to young men who are alleged to have created a disturbance in the Bethel church, about three miles north of Warsaw, on Sunday night last. In the complaint which was laid by Mr. Wm. F. Payne, one of the officials of the church, it is stated some youths caused the trouble. This consisted of crushing peanut shells and crunching them on the floor, of laughing and talking, and when they were remonstrated with they are alleged to have laughed in the speaker's face. Other things which would tend to create a disturbance are mentioned in the charges. A large number of witnesses will be called in the case which will be heard by Magistrate Edminson on Friday afternoon.

Would Not Come Between McLaughlin and His Wife

Uxbridge, Nov. 24.—Miss Charters of Sunderland, who was brought to town by Constable Wright, was first placed on the stand at the McLaughlin trial this morning. She said that Miss Nix was a friend of hers, and had stayed with her on several occasions in Sunderland. The witness had met McLaughlin first in Alexander's store on September 20th.

"Did you ever meet him in Mr. Nix's home?" asked Col. Farewell.

"I did not," was the reply. She had also met him at a dance and at Sunderland during the fair.

"I am told," said Col. Farewell, "that Mr. McLaughlin, Mr. Dennis, yourself and Miss Nix were together at Mr. Nix's home on the night of the fair."

"I didn't see Mr. McLaughlin at Mr. Nix's house on the night you asked me of," declared the young woman in defiant tones.

Miss Charters also denied ever having seen McLaughlin at any place where champagne was provided, either by him or anyone else.

"Did you hear Mr. McLaughlin express an opinion about Miss Nix?"

"Once in my hearing he said she was a dear girl."

"Did he say she was his dear girl?"

"He did not express himself that way."

"Had you any reason to know he was trying to pay his attentions to her?"

"Only from Miss Nix," came the reply.

That Miss Nix had written to McLaughlin Miss Charters had known. The purport of the message she was also aware of. It having been written in herhome.

"Did Miss Nix object to his advances?" asked Col. Farewell.

"She told me on one occasion," replied the witness, "that he would have to cease his advances."

"Now what was in that letter," queried the Crown attorney, "how did it start?"

"Did it start 'dear sweetheart,' or 'dear candy girl?' I believe some such term was used.

This Miss Charters did not know. She had seen the first of the letter only, which read as follows: "Why waste your time writing to me, when you know it is of no use. I would not for worlds come between you and your wife."

"Did the rest of the letter change this?" asked Col. Farewell.

"No, I don't think so," replied the witness, who also said she had never heard Miss Nix speak in any terms of affection of McLaughlin.

"Did she admit the truth of these rumors?"

"She said there was nothing in them," replied Miss Charter.

Miss Charter also remembered a drive which McLaughlin and Miss Nix had taken at Sunderland? Then she thought Miss Nix had asked McLaughlin if his wife knew of these rumors. The man replied that she did and that she believed them. Another drive that Miss Charters knew of for the good reason that she had been with Miss Nix and McLaughlin.

"What was the subject of conversation between the alleged lovers?" asked Col. Farewell.

The rumors were referred to, she stated. Miss Nix having again said she would not cause hard feelings between McLaughlin and his wife. She said perhaps it would be as well if they did not speak, because people were talking so much.

"Did you learn, Miss Charter, from Mr. McLaughlin's conversation whether he was paying his attentions to pay other woman?"

"I did not."

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares Nerviline is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P. E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

NERVILINE CURES QUICKLY

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes Large bottles 25c., five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Ont.

THE TYPHOID SCOURGE.

In the United States, as well as in Canada the typhoid scourge is assuming alarming proportions. A Washington despatch says:

"An investigation of sanitary conditions existing throughout the rural districts of the United States is necessary, according to a statement issued by the Department of Agriculture, giving the results of recent investigations made by its experts of farm water supplies in Minnesota, where, out of 79 water supplies examined, 59 of them were found to have been polluted. Twenty-three of the farms examined showed a record of typhoid fever.

"Eleven of the wells examined," it is declared, "could not be made safe from pollution, even with extreme care, owing to their location. The rivers, surface reservoirs, and citerns are polluted, and it is doubtful if satisfactory water for farm use can be obtained from such sources."

"The report states, in conclusion, that both farms and cities are suffering from careless rural sanitation."

White war has been waged on fever in Canada, as in the United States, it seems that the time is at hand when drastic measures must be adopted in fighting the disease. In Western Canada this year, typhoid seems to be as bad as ever, and invariably the cause of filth or carelessness. Rigid inspection, honest health inspectors, and heavy fines for those who expose others to danger through maintaining filthy premises, seems the only remedy for the evil.

AGITATION IN ENGLAND.

The British House of Commons has passed the budget by a vote of about three to one and sent it up to the Lords. It is a measure that is socialistic in some of its principal features and to a degree not attempted by law in England at any time within several hundreds of years. The student of politics must go far back into the Middle Ages to find an instance in which government went so far as the government of today in regulating the business of the people. The great burden of the budget, the subject around which the battle has been waged with the utmost persistence all through the session, is the plan of compelling persons with a certain degree of wealth to bear a much higher rate of taxation than is imposed by those under a certain line.

The Lords maintain that such a measure should not be passed unless with the consent of the people after being submitted to them for their express opinion on the subject. An increase in taxation is rendered necessary in the main by the old-age pension policy, which has been adopted by the Liberals, either to catch votes or because they deemed it the function of government to take care of people after they have arrived at a certain age and have some resources but not enough to live in a certain degree of comfort, a degree set up by the men in charge of the measure.

Lord Roseberry says that all the old English institutions are going into the melting pot and the state of the people indicates that he is quite right in that view, but whether it is good for those things to go into the melting pot or to be continued on their own lines is of course a wholly different matter.

One thing seems to be certain and that is that England must become protectionist, to the extent that her situation as a manufacturing country will permit, if she is to maintain herself in the competition for world commerce. The country is full of the unemployed and it is because of the damage done domestic industry by foreign competition, unchecked by tariff, that so much of English labor finds nothing to do and is dependent upon the public for relief. This is the most serious aspect of the situation and the remedy now proposed by leading men is that England shall return to the protective system. The by-elections indicate that the whole movement of industry is toward that policy.

Franklin as a Swimmer.

In 1726 Benjamin Franklin was working as a printer at Watts', near Lincoln Inn Fields, and taught two shopmates to swim "at twice going over the river." With them and some of their friends from the country he paid a visit by water to Chelsea, and "in our return," he recorded, "at the request of the company, whose curiosity Wygate had excited, I stripped and leaped into the river and swam from near Chelsea to Blackfriars, performing on the way many feats of activity, both upon and under the water, that surprised and pleased those to whom they were novelties."—London Tatler.

BEAUTY AND HEALTH.

Salt as a gargle will cure sore throat.

Tight clothes and indigestion cause red noses.

A little salt under the tongue will stop nose bleeding.

High heeled boots are known to cause spinal complaints.

Sleep with the window well open and you will awake brisk.

The yoke of an egg broken up in rosewater is a trusty shampoo.

Salt on fingers when cleaning fowls, meat or fish will prevent slipping.

Headache will often yield to a foot bath without other treatment. Try it.

A little vinegar added to butter and sugar is an excellent remedy for hoarseness.

Too much food of any kind is never good for the complexion. Fruit is good, but it should be eaten in moderation.

Every night the housewife should rub cold cream into the base of her nails. To avoid the injurious effects of weeping and dusting she should always wear gloves.

Wash the face in tepid water, rub the skin thoroughly with a Turkish towel and apply a solution of three ounces of cologne and half an ounce of liquor of potash Follow this with a tepid soap bath.

The three "R's" of the worker should be regularity, rest and recreation. Unsuitable habits, never letting up and not knowing how and when to play have killed more business women than all their hard work.

Historic Posts of Hudson's Bay Co.

Many of the historic posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta and British Columbia will be distributed next year through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is even now conquering the passage of the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range.

One of the most notable of these old posts and which was used as a base for the supply of the posts in the Interior of British Columbia is Jasper House, situated on the Athabasca River and about 200 miles along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

Jasper House was built about 1800 and the records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that it was established in the forest on the shore of a small lake surrounded by high rocks, except on the lake side.

In 1817 the Factor in charge was Jasper Hawes, It is his Christian name which gives the name to this post, which, however, in the early years of 1st establishment was popularly called the "Rocky Mountain House," although the post of that name was afterwards officially established at the junction of the North Saskatchewan River and the Clearwater River in Alberta.

Jasper Hawes was celebrated for the great shock of yellow hair that he wore and the Indian and Half Breed hunters referred to him as "Tete Jaune," thus Yellow Yellowhead Pass, at the portal of which Jasper House is located, and beyond the Yellowhead, Tete Jaune Cache where the parting of the ways came for many a party of Coureurs des bois of the Hudson's Bay Company, covering the rich fur country of the interior of British Columbia. Even as the Buffalo trails which deeply indented the prairie in every direction a few years since are being rapidly obliterated by the march of settlement and the building of railways, so will the land marks of early Canadian frontier history be only a cold record in the files of the fur trading companies.

FIFTY YEARS A WRITER

HOW MISS BRADDON CAME TO WRITE NOVELS.

As a Girl, Popular Authoress Was Always Scribbling—Was Offered $50 For First Novel—Wrote First Installment of Lady Audley's Secret Overnight — Has Retained First Rank Ever Since.

To have delighted the world for half a century with an unceasing stream of fiction; to have published a novel for every year of her long life; and to be able to entrance the children of to-day as she entranced their grandparents in the middle of last century is the proud record of Miss Braddon, who at seventy-two seems still to possess the secret of perennial youth.

Mush water has run under the bridges of her beloved Thames since Mary Elizabeth Braddon laboriously wrote her first story by its banks at Chiswick in a child's round hand and between pencilled lines. The love of the pen was in the little one's blood; for her father, a London solicitor, had made "Rough Robin" famous in the world of sportsmen, and her mother was saturated with a passion for literature. And so Mary Elizabeth took to writing as naturally as a duck to the water.

As a schoolgirl, with her home still by the Thames at Barnes, she was always scribbling in her exercise books; and, under the eyes of her teachers, she furtively pencilled quite a long story, "The Old Armchair," which made her famous among her schoolfellows. But alas! for years she could not thaw the hard hearts of the editors. All the literary doves she sent out to them came back to her ark with the exasperating regularity of clockwork.

One day, however, when she was emancipated from the schoolroom, she awoke to find a letter awaiting her which revolutionized her world. It was from a Beverley printer, who had seen a sketch by her in a Yorkshire paper, and who offered her the sum of $50 to write a story for him, which should "combine the humor of Dickens with the plot-construction of G. W. M. Reynolds." It was a large order and a small guerdon, but the girl was transported with delight.

Before she was many days older she had transported herself and her mother to a Beverley farmhouse, and was reeling off the masterpiece of Dickens cum Reynolds at a thousand words an hour, weaving her plot as she rode about the Yorkshire lanes. She boldly christened her story, "Three Times Dead; or The Secret of the Heath"; and it was a very proud moment in her life when she handed the last sheets of the manuscript to the printer's boy. The book certainly did not make the printer's fortune, but renamed "The Trail of the Serpent," it had a new and vigorous lease of life.

Still fame refused to knock at her door, but not for long. A little later Mr. Maxwell, a publisher, projected a new magazine, the great feature of which was to be a serial for a famous writer. To his dismay, however, the serial, which had been extensively advertised, was not forthcoming at the proper time. Mr. Maxwell was in despair, until a letter came, signed "M. E. Braddon," offering to write a serial. "Too late," was his answer to the young authoress when she called on him. "But what is the latest day you can give me?" she persisted. "Well," said Mr. Maxwell, "if the manuscript of the opening chapters is on my breakfast-table to-morrow morning that would be in time."

Next morning Mr. Maxwell found the first chapters of "Lady Audley's Secret" among his correspondence; his venture was saved, and Miss Braddon was on the high road to fame and fortune. Such was the romantic genesis of one of the most popular books ever written.

Then followed in quick succession "Aurora Floyd," "Eleanor's Victory," and "Henry Dunbar," all eagerly welcomed by thousands of admiring readers; and Miss Braddon took her place, which she has ever since retained, in the foremost rank of the writers of fiction. Since these early triumphs there has been scarcely a year when she has not given the world at least one of her fascinating novels; in some years she has published two and in others three; until her fiction-children now number more than her own years.

And Miss Braddon's life has been as happy as it has been busy. For nearly forty years her home has been in a fine old Georgian house, once the abode of the Bishop of Lichfield, at Richmond—for nothing can wean her from the river she loves so well. Here, surrounded by her birds and dogs, and her wonderful collection of china and books, she has led an ideal life, writing her books in the peace of her beautiful garden or in her study, entertaining her friends with a charming hospitality, and devoted to her home and her three sons, all of whom have made a name in the world of letters.

In her younger days she might be seen almost every morning cantering in Richmond Park on Kaiser, her white-footed bay, her eyes sparkling and face flushed with health and exercise; and even to-day there are few horsewomen in England more graceful or expert. For the rest, she spends her leisure in gardening, music, and study, of all of which she is passionately fond. A simple, gracious life, spent in womanly ways remote from the glare of the limelight—that is what Miss Braddon loves, and it is this that has preserved her youth and powers unimpaired into the 'seventies.

As for her methods of work, she carefully maps out her books to the smallest details before putting pen to paper; then, with her writing-pad on her knees, she fills sheet after sheet with her small handwriting, clear as print, with a wonderful rapidity, never pausing for a word and rarely making a correction. From a thousand to fifteen hundred words an hour is her normal rate of production. She stops work at luncheon-time.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, and, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or ruffling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars!" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting or personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to ask for information with the only thing I have to give is real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. S. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm. I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No motion was ever undertaken in the matter.

For Rough Fingers.

The hand of the average sewer or embroiderer in the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wollahra Point, which is now one of the choice harbourside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru caressed their galleon on the beach at Woollahra Point.

Woman's World

A QUEEN'S PEN NAME.

How Carmen Sylva Found Her Quaint and Charming Pseudonym.

One of the happiest couples on a throne are King Carol of Roumania and his wife, Elizabeth, a daughter of Prince Hermann zu Wied-Neuwied. Although the royal pair are not blessed with children and Queen Elizabeth has never ceased to mourn the death of her only child—a daughter, who died quite young—the love the Roumanians have for their king and queen speaks volumes for their splendid characters.

Not only is Queen Elizabeth very popular among her people, but they are proud of her achievements as a poetess and a writer. She generally writes about Roumania and the Roumanians and has thus made the civilised world familiar with the lovable characteristics of the population of her small kingdom. Living in the midst of Slav races, Roumania proudly claims Latin descent, and the people think and live differently to the populations of the other principalities by whom they are surrounded.

Queen Elizabeth began to devote herself to writing soon after the death of her child, whom she worshiped, and keeps the suit of rooms where this daughter died undisturbed. It hurts her to go often to that castle, and she visits it regularly on the anniversary of the child's death only.

It was during an illness at Sinaia, the favorite country residence of the king and queen, that the latter, compelled to lead an invalid's life, began to spend much of her time writing poems and stories. Many of her friends, who admire the great genius of Queen Elizabeth, begged her to have her writings published and thus give the world a chance to enjoy the charm and poetry of the children of her brain. The queen was not averse to appear in print, but she insisted that a pseudonym must be found to effectually hide the identity of the royal author. In discussing the question of anonymity one day with the doctor in attendance on her Queen Elizabeth said: "I am queen of a Latin country and belong now to a Latin people. Therefore I must have a Latin name, but it must remind me of my home as well. Do tell me what is the Latin for a wood?' The doctor replied, "A wood is called sylva." "That sounds lovely," said the queen. "What is the Latin for bird?' "Avis." "I don't like this," was the reply. "It does not sound well. What is the Latin for song?' "Song is called carmen," was the answer. The queen expressed her delight at this and exclaimed: "I have found my pseudonym. In my mother tongue I am called 'Song of the Wood' (Waldesang), in Latin 'Carmen-Sylvae,' but Sylvae (the genitive) does not sound like a real name, so my name must be grammatically a little faulty, and I am to be called 'Carmen Sylva.'" The pseudonym was kept up for a little while, until the universal approval of the charming work of Queen Elizabeth on its own merits decided her to keep her nom de guerre, but drop the anonymity and mystery which surrounded it.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century, its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the accommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from attic or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I had to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

THE SUPREME TEST.

What the Lovely Maiden Feared the Most.

"Stillingia," said the young man, his voice tremulous with suppressed emotion, "are you going to put me on the puzzle? Is this where I get off?"

Unshed tears were in the lovely maiden's eyes. If she had shed them they would not have been in her eyes. But let that pass.

"I have not said so, Geoffrey," reluctantly she answered, "in so many words. But"—

"Listen, Stillingia," he burst forth impetuously. "Is there any other guy that's got the inside track? Am I playing second fiddle to some snooser with plastered hair, an ingrowing chin and a pull at the bank? If so"—

"No, Geoffrey, but"—

"Then why the Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego are you stalling me off! I may not be a pampered child of fashion, but I'm on the dead lev. I've never been caught with the goods, Girlie, ever since I was a kid you've been my one best bet, and you know it. I'm Old Faithful from Kleengonville. I've trailed along in your wake like a night police reporter on the track of a lovely holdup or a bug collector after a gorgeous butterfly. All my life I've been building bungalows in the air for you to move into some day. I'd rather look at your tintype than to eat four square meals. You are the niftiest, peachiest dream that ever"—

"Geoffrey," interrupted the beautiful girl, standing erect before him, pale but calm and resolute, "I know you love me, and I am touched as never before by your devotion, but something seems to tell me that we are not truly mated"—

Here her voice faltered.

"Geoffrey," she said, recovering herself, "we must not make a mistake that will wreck our whole lives! I must ask you one question."

"Well?"

The Village Romancer.

"Has that feller Pinkley returned home yet?"

"Nope. He's been gone two years now, and nobody knows a blessed thing about him."

"Well, dersed if I shouldn't think you'd be afraid he'd come home some day an' claim he found the south pole."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bravery Its Own Reward.

The Lady (to hero who had risked his life to save her little dog from a watery grave and looks for some reward)—Poor fellow, how wet and cold you are! You must be soaked through to the skin. Here! I'll give you some quinine pills. Take a couple now and two more in an hour's time.—Throne and Country.

No Worry.

"We have a strike in our factory every day, off and on."

"Why, I thought you had no labor troubles there at all?"

"No more we have."

"But how, then, can all this striking be going on?"

"The clocks do it."—Baltimore American.

An Amphibious Watch.

Mr. John Norris, a former chief constable of Coventry, whose death is just announced, was the possessor of a watch on which was engraved a view of the Tay Bridge, and which bore the following inscription: "The Tay Bridge disaster, December, 1879. This watch lay in the River Tay for six weeks; it stopped at the time of the accident, remained silent many days, started again, and worked nine hours under water." The watch had been lent to Mr. Beynon, an artist, of Cheltenham, who was drowned in the disaster. A charge of dynamite was afterwards used to raise the bodies from the river, and this doubtless started the watch again

NOT EXACTLY THAT.

Famous Men Who Have Made Malapropos Remarks.

Most of us are acquainted with "Punch's" joke concerning the sum of the house who, as he gallantly escorted the beauty of the evening to her carriage, gushingly remarked, "I have been waiting all the evening for this moment."

Twice in one evening the great novelist, Charles Dickens, was guilty of an embarrassing malapropism. "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately," he wrote to a friend, explaining the matter. "I took a young lady unknown down to dinner and talked to her about the Bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. And I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, Lord Fermoy—generally conceiving him to be an Irish member—on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and Marylebone representatives."

Even these situations, however, are not quite so embarrassing as that of a member of Parliament who, at a certain political reception, remarked to a neighbor, "I wonder who that homely old woman is over there?" pointing out a rather stout lady at the other end of the room.

"That, sir," was the reply, "is my wife!"

"Indeed! That is my daughter!"

The first Baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how, while on circuit with Justice Rook, they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical Psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be; or must not innocence appeal to Heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed; your griping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed."

By this time most of the adults had woke up to the application of the Psalm and remained silent, allowing the children and a few women to continue the second verse.

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

The Next Best.

"Hubby, I haven't had a new dress for a month."

"Times are slow for me, my dear. Better go in for literature and pretend to be superior to the fashions."—Kansas City Journal.

Her Discovery.

Husband—Think of it! Here is a hairpin I have found in the soup! Wife—Yes? Now I know where our things have gone. A shoe horn disappeared too!—Harper's Bazar.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the king's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

Read the pain formula on a box of Pink Pain Tablets. Then ask your Doctor if there is a better one. Pain means congestion—blood pressure somewhere. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets check head pains, pain anywhere. Try one, and see! 20 for 25c. Sold by all dealers.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good long-period on this, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point when its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for the necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the men who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other sundry considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and be shown in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply continues the market price, and the high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the declaration of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 20 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world that makes them of great value. The black diamonds are pure carbon, and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George E. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 225 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives live in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions, where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Man Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or—

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Menzel.

Wills In Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportions to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

Australian Cities.

In Australia, as in England, people flock to the towns. F. A. W. Gisborne of Tasmania, in an article in The Empire Review, mentions that Melbourne, with its 538,000 inhabitants, contains no less than 43.11 per cent. of the population of Victoria; Adelaide 45.41 of that of South Australia. The six capital cities contain 1,519,841 people, or 36.21 of the whole population of the Commonwealth. If we include the other towns, numbering almost 80, each of which possesses more than 3,000 inhabitants, we find that out of the 4 1-4 million people in Australia nearly 2 1-8 million consist of town-dwellers.

"Yes, sor," responded the coachman with the big volume under his arm; "that is why I bought this book."

"Ah! You want to learn how to go up in an airship?"

"No; I want to learn how to come down. That is why I bought 'The Descent of Man,' sor."—Detroit Free Press.

Beating Mrs. Lot.

"It was not so very wonderful that when Lot's wife looked back she turned into a pillar of salt."

"Not a very wonderful thing to have happened in the age of miracles, perhaps, but nothing so wonderful happens in these prosaic days."

"Oh, I don't know. We were going out Main street last evening and when my chauffeur looked back he turned into a telegraph pole."—Houston Post.

A Crazy Clock.

Visiting an old mate, who had the misfortune to be confined in a Yorkshire asylum, a collier noticed that the large clock in the reception hall was ten minutes slow.

"That clock is not right," he exclaimed.

"No, lad!" was the lunatic's reply "That's why it's here."—London Daily News.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fuss. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realise that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

A Brave Answer.

There was sharp fighting between the English and French in the Windward Islands in 1778 when General Meadows conquered St. Lucia not, however, without himself being severely wounded at the very beginning of the engagement. The general, though wounded, would not leave the field for a moment, and when the action was over he visited every wounded officer and man before he would receive the surgeon's attention himself. His heart was greatly cheered by an answer given to him by a young subaltern, Lieutenant Gomm of the Forty-sixth regiment, who in the heat of action was wounded in the eye.

"I hope you have not lost your eye, lieutenant," said the general.

"I believe I have sir," replied Gomm, "but with the other I shall see you victorious this day."

The brave young fellow had his wish.—London Scraps.

"Rita's" Methods.

There is this curious feature regarding the work of that popular English novelist, Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys, known to the world as "Rita." She only needs a title for a book, and that serves as a plot. The characters evolve themselves. "Peg the Rake" was suggested by a chance remark of her husband, who is an Irishman. "Rita" took the three little words to heart, and created the wild, irrepressible Peg, whose doings have entertained so many thousands. A chance remark, too, led to the title of "The Pointing Finger" — one of Rita's most dramatic stories, which has been adapted to the Newnes' Sixpenny Fr[illegible] It is a book

Melton Wood.

"Melton Wood" is the latest production of the German chemical industry. The new substance seems almost as paradoxical as "wooden iron." Wood that can be melted is obtained by subjecting it to a special process of distillation at a temperature of 140 degrees Cel. in vacuum. The process eliminates all organic acids, phosphates, and the like, nothing remaining except the skeleton fibres of the wood that can be melted down at a temperature of 808 degrees.

The new product is said to possess exceptionally valuable qualities; it is very fine grained, especially adapted to polishing, extraordinarily hard and durable. Printers' ink and dyes make splendid impressions on the new substance.

A great future is claimed for "melten wood," more especially in the printing and engraving trades, as its qualities for reproduction are unsurpassed. During the process of distillation it can be impregnated with antiseptic material, thus being rendered proof against decay or the attacks of insects. Experiments are being made with it in the buildings trades, and it is generally believed that it will soon become a staple article of commerce.

Arming the Yeomanry.

I understand that Mr. Haldane and the Army Council are seriously considering the question of rearming the Yeomanry. One of the many unwise deductions drawn from the South African war was that the sword as a weapon for cavalry was no longer useful. Since then the Yeomanry have been armed with rifles. Military experts are now returning to the "white weapon." During the recent manoeuvres the Yeomanry were more than once placed in a position when "the charge" was the only way out of an awkward and dangerous predicament. The fact that they had no weapon with which to charge naturally forbade "the order." I am assured the wise men of the War Office contemplate restoring the sabre to the Yeomanry cavalry.—Dundee Courier.

Shortest Street In London.

There can hardly be a shorter street in London than the one connecting Pall Mall with the southeastern corner of St. James' Square, from which the name John street has just been removed. It has only one house, which is No. 1; for, though there are two other doors in the street, one is numbered as belonging to Pall Mall and the other is the side-entrance of a public house. Presumably, therefore, the single house is now to be absorbed in St. James' Square, and the London Directory is to lose yet another of the slowly-diminishing total of John streets.

Crossing the Channel.

By what means will man next attempt to cross the Channel? The question naturally arises as one reads of the many curious and novel methods by which men have tried of late years to cross from Dover to Calais. It was only a day or two after Blériot's successful flight across the Channel that a man named Westlake announced his intention of crossing on a plank, two feet wide, 18 feet long, and two inches thick, fitted with a mast and sail and two empty oil-drums to give it buoyancy. Westlake, however, was picked up more dead than alive off the Belgian coast, but still hopes to accomplish the feat.

A few days later Thomas Walsrell set out to row across the Channel in a boat of his own construction, consisting of two planks, with sides a few inches high. He was ultimately picked up in the North Sea and landed at Rotterdam.

Some two or three years ago four old Etonians attempted to row from Dover to Calais in a four-oar sculling-boat, but before they got halfway across the Channel the boat was swamped and the crew nearly drowned.

Smuggling Opium.

All sorts of tricks and dodges are resorted to by the Chinese of Australia to evade the law prohibiting the importation of opium into the Commonwealth. At Sydney recently a Chinaman was noticed, when passing the customs officials, to have a very bulky pig-tail. On examination it was found to contain several pounds of the contraband drug. The profits from the traffic are so enormous as to encourage very desperate efforts to override the law, and the authorities believe that a regular system of importation is in operation, Europeans as well as Chinese being engaged in it. In fact, two custom officials and a water policeman are now awaiting trial in Sydney on a charge of conspiracy in smuggling. A coast line of 10,000 miles is all in favor of this nefarious traffic.

A Foolish Wish.

A local contemporary expressed in its editorial columns the other day the wish that the McBride Government in British Columbia would be defeated. That is like the boy who wished for the moon. Like the boy, the editor had no idea why he wished for Premier McBride's defeat, and he is just about as likely to be gratified. The people of British Columbia know what they are doing much better than outsiders. Still, if those Western people knew that the local editor really desired them to turn McBride out, they would undoubtedly think seriously.

A LIGHT OUT.

City Officials Called Upon to Hunt for Street Lights Out.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

There has been a whole lot of the Fire, Water & Light Committee's time wasted and a lot of the time of the police and fire chief's time wasted monkeying around with the street lamps reported out. Surely the aldermen and the civic officials have more important duties to perform than looking for and squabbling over two or three are lamps that happen to be out. True the city saves a few cents on each lamp out, but that is not what the citizens want. They want an up-to-date system of lighting. The idea of patrolling the streets looking for lamps that are out is a babish trick and unworthy of a city council and the scheme should never have been adopted. It creates ill feeling on all sides and the street lights are not improved. If I am not mistaken the Light and Power Company a year or so ago asked the council for permission to from the old-fashioned poor open arcs to the modern enclosed ones, but the aldermen in their wisdom, could not see where the city was going to get any free lights or reduced rates, and the request was refused. If I am not mistaken the company is still willing to make the change if the council wants better service. But for goodness sake cut out the freak idea of looking for a light out.

Yours truly,
PROGRESS.

IT COST $20,000

To Give John Dillon a Trial on a Murder Charge.

The following, which was taken from a Montreal exchange will furnish an idea of one way that Canadian money is squandered: —

"Almost $20,000 has been spent by the Government and city of Montreal on John Dillon, who was saved from the gallows for a short time by Mr. Justice Tremholme's decision last Thursday. The expenses of Dillon's trial totalled almost $10,000, and the two commissions sent to Ireland on his behalf cost $2.000. Also, as a result of the tragedy for which he is still condemned to die, $4,000 was paid to Constable Shea's widow, while the damages caused to the Mance street dwelling, which was the scene of the tragedy, amounted to $1,600. Chief Carpenter's expenses as a result of being wounded by Dillon, amounted to $1,500, and the boarding of Dillon in jail since then has cost $500. Then the preparations for the execution which did not take place last Friday morning entailed $250 expenditure.'

It would be interesting to know how much it cost the people to let Blythe, the wife murderer, spend his last years in jail.

ONE PUNCH MEANS

A Fortune for the Man Who Successfully Delivers It.

There isn't any doubt that the winner of the Jeffries-Johnson fight will establish a new record in the amount of money won in a single encounter in the ring. The fighting game is the most lucrative vocation in the world. Joe Gans went to Fort Erie, stepped into the ring with Frank Erne, shot out his right, and right there was created a new lightweight champion. That one punch netted Gans at least $100,000 worth of engagements.

Although never officially given out it is said that the gate receipts for the fight between Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns pulled off by Hugh McIntosh, the famous Australian promoter, at Sydney last December amounted to considerably over $100,000, so it would not in the least surprise the club managers of this country if some one should be compelled to offer more than $100,000 for the Johnson-Jeffries contest in this country. In fact, a well known Frisco promoter is willing to give that much, if not more, for the battle, which will undoubtedly break all records in this country for attendance.

Contests.	Gate Receipts

ZAM-BUK CURED HER BABY.

Mothers will find the following statement of more than passing interest, showing, as it does, how Zam Buk ends the skin-diseases of children even when ordinary remedies have completely failed. Mrs. C.W. Bowerbank, of 126, Denison Avenue, Toronto, says:—

"Not long ago my baby's face broke out in an eruption. The spots would crack and be very irritating and sore. At other times they itched fearfully, and caused the child to scratch and rub, thus making the sores very inflamed and painful. I tried all sorts of ointments and salves, but they somehow did not seem able to remove the trouble. Zam Buk proved very different, and a few applications gave the child relief. The sores are now healed completely.

"Since that time my little daughter has had occasion to use Zam-Buk for skin trouble. She broke out in blotches on her hands and arms, and in her case also Zam-Buk effected a cure.

"We now keep Zam-Buk handy as a household balm, and do not intend to be without it.

"Not only for skin diseases, but for cuts, burns and bruises, it is a fine remedy. The other day I burned my hand badly. As application of Zam-Buk seemed to take the fire out of it at once, and it soon healed. In the course of my experience I have tried pretty nearly all the salves and ointments obtainable, but there is nothing to come near Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is Nature's own healing balm, being composed of pure herbal essences. It is a sure cure for pimples and eruptions, eczema, ring-worm, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, poisoned sores, chronic wounds, bad leg, piles festering sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and Stores everywhere sell at 50c. a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto; 3 boxes $1.25. You are warned against cheap and harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

Rockefeller Said to have Got $106,198,000 in Seven Years.

New York, Nov. 22.—Wall Street statisians have figured it out that the Standard Oil Company has made profits of nearly $600,000,000 in the seven years from 1902 to 1909. This year's profit is estimated at $80,000,000. The approximate figures, allowing $80,000,000 for 1909, are $503,202,000. In this time the company has distributed $318,594,300 in dividends.

Mr. Rockefeller is supposed to own about a third of the Standard Oil stock. On that basis he received $106,198,000 out of the $318,594,300 paid to shareholders in the shape of dividends, or about $6,000,000 more than the capitalization of the company.

For the seventeen years since 1892 the net profits of the company ar estimated at $1,049,442,064, while the dividends for the same period have amounted to $670,427,300. The surplus after dividends amount to $397,014,764.

Came Face to Face with Forsaken Wife

Toronto, Nov. 25.—To unexpectedly come face to face with the wife he had deserted six years ago in England, was the uncomfortable position in which Charles E. King of 232 Cottingham street, found himself a few days ago, now he is in jail.

Until six years ago, Mrs. King, a talented English woman, lived happily with her husband, and three little daughters in the Old Country. Then he set out, supposedly on a business trip to Algiers, and from that time until a few days ago, was lost.

Mrs. King eventually came to Canada, and has been the companion to Mrs. Otter, the wife of Gen. Otter, The latter, who is an invalid, was with Mrs. King on a street car, when Mrs. King suddenly espied her wayward spouse, seated near the front of the car. She arose and walked up to him, and stood facing him. At first King denied ever having seen her before, but, fearing a scene, made an appointment with her at the corner of Bloor and Yonge Sts. He kept this, and, although he refused to give his address, mentioned that he could be reached by a letter to the General Post Office. In this way P. C. Bloodworth armed with a photograph, found him yesterday, and placed him under arrest.

It was learned later in the day that King had been living with a woman, who has styled herself Mrs. King. There was no marriage contracted, however, and the charge on which King was arraigned this morning was simply one of non-support. He made neither election nor plea, and was remanded until Monday on his own bail. Staff-Inspector Stephen will attempt in the meanwhile to effect a settlement between them and avoid court proceedings.

Powerful Deputation Want the Hydro-Electric Act Annulled

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The Federal Government was asked to disallow the Ontario legislation respecting the Hydro-Electric Power Commission by a deputation of citizens of Hamilton, London and Galt, which waited upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other members of the Cabinet yesterday.

The speakers said that the legislation was arbitrary and illegal; that it affected foreign investments, and that Galt had been forced to enter the scheme against its will.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that these was undoubtedly some force in the arguments of the speakers. The question of disallowance was under consideration, and the Government would have to decide as to the constitutionality of the legislation, and also the advisability of interfering with a Provincial Act of interest chiefly to the people of that Province.

The delegation was accompanied by the following members of Parliament Lloyd Haris (Brantford), Getman (Welland), Conmee and W. O. Scellar. It included J. Russell, Stanley Mills, George Hope, A. Hatch, J. M. Young, and J. Paterson, of Hamilton; Mayor Patterson, Hugh Camp, and A. Elliott, of Galt; C. B. Hewitt, E. P. Judd, and Mr. Puddicombe of London.

It is unlike,y that the Federal powers will interfere with the Hydro Electric scheme. Hon. George P. Graham is said to have told Sir Wilfrid that if they did he could not count on the Province returning him any supporters at the next election. Other Liberals followed suit.

The song hit of George M. Cohan's new production bears the same title as the play, namely, "The Man Who Owns Broadway." This show is now crowding the New York Theatre, and this song receives heavy applause. It will be given, words and music complete, with the next issue of The New York Sunday World. This song will be followed by another from "The Belles of Brittany," now appearing at Daly's Theatre.

THREE BONSPIELS THIS WINTER, TWO LOCAL AND ONE OPEN TO ALL

Peterborough Curlers Will Have a Very Busy Time This Season. —A Splendid Meeting.

Thirty-Two Skips were Selected

The Outlook for This Popular Winter Pastime is Exceedingly Promising.

Peterborough Curling Club will hold two local bonspeils and an open bonspeil, besides the district cup games, the tankard games and the many friendly games with outside clubs. The program for next winter is a very heavy one and there will be something doing all the time. There will be thirty-two local rinks and this will give every member an opportunity to get lots of playing. The second-rate players and the beginners will also get bonspiel experience through the two local bonspeils while the older and more skilful players will be kept busy.

About forty members of the club met in the Bank of Montreal Building last night with President W. G. Ferguson in the chair. The first business of importance was the selection of the skips, and a lot of time was spent over this as thirty-two men had to be selected. Then came the question of bonspeils and it proved to be a knotty one. There was a lot of opposition to the open bonspeil, the chief opponents claiming that the younger players were not developed in that way and that only a few "favored ones" were given an opportunity to participate. There was a strong feeling in favor of the local bonepeil and after a lot of discussion it was decided to hold two local bonspeils.

Then those who favored the open bonspeil got busy and moved that one be held this year the same as in former years. There was someopposition but finally a vote was taken and the chairman declared it a tie, thus it was up to the chairman to decide. He, however, thought it would be better to take another vote and il possible to make it unanimous one way or another. The second vote resulted in favor of the open bonspeil almost unanimously.

Canada's Navy to be All Canadian Built

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—It may be regarded as practically settled that if it is at all possible the vessels which will constitute the nucleus of the Canadian navy, or in other words, the three cruisers and three torpedo boat destroyers called for in the initial program agreed upon between Canada and the Admiralty, will be constructed on this side of the Atlantic.

After going fully into the question the Government has come to the conclusion that vessels quite equal to the British standard can be constructed in Canada. Negotiations have been in progress between the Government and representative British ship-building firms for some time and it is quite within the range of possibility that an agreement as to the establishment of yards in Canada may shortly be reached, and a contract for the first vessel let. While it is recognized that in the beginning it will cost a little more to build ships in Canada, the opinion prevails that the benefits which will accrue to the country by constructing the ships on this side will quite justify the Government in adopting the policy of a Canadian built navy.

FOWL SUPPER.

Big Crowd Attended St. Luke's Annual Dinner.

A large crowd attended St. Luke's fowl supper last night in Forester's Hall, Simcoe street. The affair was under the auspices of the ladies of the church, and they deserve great credit for the splendid success they achieved. A big crowd gathered at the hall and thoroughly enjoyed the splendid supper provided. After the inner man had been satisfied a fine program was run off in the lodge room. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's, occupied the chair and performed his duties in a most satisfactory manner.

CURED CONSTIPATION QUICKLY.

Tells of a Remedy That is Safe for Young and Old, for All Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayor states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system, that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue activity. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back."

No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM O.K.

Chief Howard and Staff Report Local Boxes in Full Working Order Last Night.

Our local citizens tonight can sleep in peace. They can, as usual say their respective versions of "Now I lay me down :— etc." Count the usual number of sheep jumping over a gate and take a ten hour voyage into Nodland, without fearing that their property will be destroyed by fires unreported at the fire-hall. As noted in yesterday issue of the Times, the whole fire-alarm system of Peterboro i. e. speaking of the Electric fire alarm connections were absolutely disorganized by the sleet and frozen rain storm of Monday night.

At 6 o'clock yesterday evening a Times representative asked Mr. Howard, Chief of the local Fire Brigade whether the fire alarm system, destroyed by ice had been partially or fully re-organized. Chief Howard replied: "Mr——————you can assure the people that every connection with the fire hall has been fixed, overlooked and thoroughly adjusted.

During the whole of yesterday Chief Howard, himself a practical electrician, and some of his staff, drove over the whole city inspecting the wires connecting the fire alarm boxes with the central fire-ball. Connection was made, some with great difficulty, and today the fire alarm system of Peterboro is working as well as though the devastating storm of Monday night had been the whispers of zephers blown from spice smelling tropic isles. The City is to be congratulated in having a practical electrician at the head of the local fire brigade, as a man unacquainted with the practical details of electrical wiring and such matters would have been lost in the circumstances.

Everybody Stop Work for Day of Protest

Chicago, Nov. 25.—For one day after Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison go to jail one million and a half men and women workers will quit work and protest, if Mrs. Raymond Robbins, president of the National Women's Trade Union League, has her way.

Mrs. Robbins, who has returned from the American Federation of Labor convention at Toronto, today began a campaign for her "day of protest." She has laid her plans before the executive council of the Chicago Women's Trade Union League, and it has been endorsed by that organization.

Blames Christian Science for Breaking Up Her Home

New York, Nov. 25.—Laying the breaking up of her home to her husband's adoption of Christian Science, Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy wife of the artist, is at the home of her brother-in-law, C. F. Hall, in this city, broken in health, but defiantly determined to regain possession of her daughter, Natalie, and rescue her from the alleged fanatical teachings of the artist, who, the wife says, is bringing the girl up in a bungalow in the hills near Zanesville, Ohio.

"I love Howard," Mrs. Christy said through the tears that she could not hold back, "and if it were not for Christian Science as taught by Mrs. Stetson, I would now be living happily with him. Mrs. Stetson and her practitioners have taught Howard that Marriage is wrong, and that there is nothing sacred in it. He has lost his former sympathy and feeling."

Hoarseness in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remddy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. 3

Lent Cement Mixer.

Mr. E. Conroy appeared before the Board of Works Committee and asked to rent the city's cement mixer for a week or so. The request was granted on condition that he return it in as good shape as it is at the present time.

The pleasant purgative effect experienced by all who use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and the healthy condition of the body and mind which they create, makes one feel joyful. 2

McLaughlin Sent on to Trial for Wife Murder

Man Who had been Foreman on Coroner's Jury Tells of Seeing Miss Nix and McLaughlin Together Since the Fire

Uxbridge, Nov. 25.—Archie McLaughlin, the young man whom a coroner's jury yesterday accused of murdering his wife and two baby boys, was this afternoon sent on for trial by Magistrate Hamilton on the charge of wife murder.

Wm. Foster, the foreman of Coroner Bascom's jury, was a witness this afternoon. He swore that he saw McLaughlin and Miss Nix together on some date later than October 20. The meeting between them was in the door of Miss Nix's home.

Asked to further recall the date, he said it was October 24 or 25.

Miss Nix stated yesterday that she had not seen McLaughlin since the fireorthree weeks before the fire.

The prisoner had another attack of weeping this afternoon. She raised of it was a photo of his dead wife reproduced in a Toronto paper. It had been clipped out, and as he sat looking at it the tears began to flow and they continued flowing for soma time.

THE LAWYER OBJECTED.

When Mr. Foster was called, H. P. Cook, McLaughlin's counsel, objected to him being called.

"It is most unusual for one who is to be called as awitness to be on a coroner's jury," he stated.

SCHOOL PUPILS.

Heard Miss Stelle Lecture on Art Yesterday Afternoon.

Between 400 and 500 children heard Miss Stelle's lecture on "Old Friends and New in the Realms of Art," yesterday afternoon. The affair took place in the Collegiate Assembly Hall and the pupils were greatly delighted. Miss Stelle is a very clever artist and lecturer, and she gives a talk that is attractive and interesting to all. During the afternoon about 50 lantern slides were shown. These were beautiful in the extreme. All the pictures were shown in their original colors and appeared very realistic. Among them were some by Ruebens, Michael Angelo, Millett, and some from the Dutch school. Those which interested the children most were Sistine's Madonna and Reynold's Angel Choir.

Miss Stelle will give her main lecture in the Collegiate Assembly Hall tonight at eight o'clock, and undoubtedly the hall will be crowded. The citizens of Peterborough have a real treat in store for them.

HOCKEY UNDER TENT.

Toronto Pros. are Talking of Erecting Big Sheet of Canvas.

Herb Birmingham and his proposed Eastern League hockey team does not expect to butt in at Mutual street rink. If Alex. Miln couldn't get time for his own Ontario pros to practice and play then Herby does not hope to. The plan just now is to put up a huge tent with boarded sides and ends at the National Rink on Brock Ave. The dreamers figure that $2,000 will cover the expense for the erection of the rink this winter if they are allowed to enter the league.

FURNITURE COMPANY

Wanting $50,000 Will Not be Located in Peterborough.

The knock down furniture and boat concern which laid a proposition before the Manufacturers' Committee some time ago has been dropped. It will be remembered that the American concern offered its patents and knowledge of the business in exchange for $50,000 in stock and that Canadians put up $50,000 in cash to establish the business. The capitalists did not look very favorably upon the proposition and it is doubtful if the concern will locate anywhere.

I have left lots of good things this year—Great big assortment of presents, larger stock and better toys (because most of them are musical and mechanical) lovely dolls that sleep and sit up, and dolls' chairs, beds, cradles, child's tea sets, horns, trains, drums, horses, cows, cats, rabbits, banks, games of every description, pistols, little cooking stoves, picture books. Oh such lovely illustrated books! Cups and saucers, lovely Xmas tree decorations, stockings full of things that boys and girls like, and so many things, I have not time to tell you all as you know I am very busy, but I don't want to forget one of my children, as I have something for you all.

Abandon Effort to Elevate the Bodies

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 25.—Efforts to carry the 150 bodies that have been discovered in the St. Paul mine to the surface, were abandoned for the time while an attempt was made to check a fire which again threatened the main shaft. If the efforts are not successful it is likely that the mine will be sealed today, and remain so for several weeks. That no men are alive in the mine is now admitted. A pile of corpses was discovered on a staircase at the mouth of the lower level. The bodies were in a horrible mass.

Many of the former workers in the mine were angry when they learned that the men would have been safe from the deadly gas were it not that the ventilating fan had been reversed after the fire had been discovered.

For a breach of the Liquor License Act, a hotelkeeper appeared in the police court yesterday morning, but the case was not proceeded with, owing to the absence of Police Magistrate Dumble. A number of witnesses for the prosecution have been subpoenaed and the evidence will be taken next Tuesday morning. Mr. Jas. Haverson, K.C., of Toronto, and Mr. G. N. Gordon have been retained to conduct the case for the defence.

OBITUARY.

The death occurred yesterday morning of Mary K. Hope, wife of Mr. Allan Wilson, at her late residence, lot 24, in the 14th concession of Otonabee. The deceased had only been ailing for a short time and her demise will be sincerely regretted by a large number of friends and acquaintances. She was 34 years of age and was a daughter of Mr. John Hope. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon from her late residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

W. H. O'Flynn.

The funeral took place Wednesday at Madoc of Herbert J. O'Flynn, eldest son of Mr. W. H. O'Flynn, of the above town at the age of 28 years. "Herbie" was well known here, having distinguished himself on the local C.L.A. intermediate team several years ago and playing here later at the Brock street rink for the Crescents of New York, when that club met the Peterborough seven. His death will be learned with sincere regret by his numerous Peterborough friends.

Herbie O'Flynn was a general favorite in both sporting and social circles and was a brilliant lacrosse and hockey player. His home was in Madoc, and while he was a member of the local lacrosse team he was a law student at Osgoode Hall. He did not complete his course, however, but went to New York, where he accepted a position with a brokerage firm. In New York his work at cover-point with the Crescents won him the approval of the press of that city.

DURING SLEEP.

Nature Repairs the Human Engine.

The activities of the day cause more or less waste of tissues in the human engine, which is repaired at night during sleep.

The man or woman who can sleep well at night, is sure of the necessary repairs, other things being right to make each day a time of usefulness and living a real joy.

But let insomnia get hold of you, and the struggle begins, of trying to work with a machine out of repair. A Nebo woman's experience with coffee as a producer of insomnia is interesting. She says:

"I used to be a coffee drinker and was so nervous that I could not sleep at night before about 12 o'clock, unless I would take some medicine. I was under the doctor's care for about 5 years and my weight got down to 82 lbs.

"The doctor said I would have to quit drinking coffee. Then my father got me to try Postum which he said had done wonders for him. I am past 43 and before I quit drinking coffee my heart would jump and flutter at times, miss a beat, then beat so fast I could hardly breath in enough air and I would get smothered.

"My tongue would get so stiff I could not talk and I could not hold a glass to drink from. Since I have been drinking Postum in place of coffee, I can sleep sound any time I lie down, and feel I owe everything to Postum. I now weigh 120 lbs. and am well."

Distress in the Stomach

Hundreds of Thousands of Bottles of Nerviline Used Every Year for Curing Cramps, Diarrhoea, and Stomach Disorders.

Deadly cramps—the symptoms are not to be mistaken. Suddenly and without warning the patient experiences such agony in the stomach as to contort the countenance and cause him to cry aloud for help.

LETTER No. 4977

Then it is that the wonderful power of Nerviline can make itself felt— it cures so quickly you would think it was made to cure cramps and cramps only.

"Last summer I was stricken with a frightful attack of cramps. I feared the pain in my stomach would kill me.

"My eyes bulged out and the veins in my forehead stood out like whipcords.

"My cries attracted a neighbor, who came to my assistance, and in a moment or two handed me half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in some sweetened water.

"It seemed as if an angel had charmed away the pain. In ten seconds I was well. Nerviline has a wonderful name in this locality, and is considered best for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, stomach and bowel disorders. I urge all my friends to use Nerviline.

"MANLEY M. LEGARDE,
Williamsburg."

No home is safe or can afford to miss the manifold advantages of having Nerviline on hand in case of accident or emergent sickness. 25c per bottle, five for $1. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

EXPERIMENTAL UNION.

The program for the 31st annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union have been published and distributed. The meeting will be held at Agricultural College, Guelph, the first three days of the Guelph Winter Fair, viz. Dec. 6, 7, and 8. On Wednesday and Thursday special sessions for the ladies will be held in Massey Hall, O.A.C. One of the officers referred to their union as follows:—

"When we started the co-operative experimental work in Ontario, twenty-four years ago, we believed it to be a move in the right direction. Although it was commenced in a very small way, there being only a dozen experimenters the first year, it has gradually increased in extent and in influence from that time forward. We now have hundreds of men throughout Ontario who have successfully conducted the co-operative experiments on their own farms from five to ten, twelve, or even fourteen years. It is impossible to estimate the influence of this work in overflowing the Agricultural College with students, in bringing twenty-five or thirty thousand farmers to visit the College annually, in doubling the output of the Ontario farms in the past sixteen years, and in the betterment of both the farmers and the farms of Ontario.

Historic Posts of Hudson's Bay Co.

Many of the historic posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta and British Columbia will be distributed next year through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is even now conquering the passage of the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range.

One of the most notable of these old posts and which was used as a base for the supply of the posts in the Interior of British Columbia is Jasper House, situated on the Athabasca River and about 200 miles along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

Jasper House was built about 1800 and the records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that it was established in the forest on the shore of a small lake surrounded by high rocks, except on the lake side.

In 1817 the Factor in charge was Jasper Hawes. It is his Christian name which gives the name to this post, which, however, in the early years of 1st establishment was popularly called the "Rocky Mountain House," although the post of that name was afterwards officially established at the junction of the North Saskatchewan River and the Clearwater River in Alberta.

Jasper Hawes was celebrated for the great shock of yellow hair that he wore and the Indian and Half Breed hunters referred to him as "Tete Jaune," thus Yellow Yellowhead Pass, at the portal of which Jasper House is located, and beyond the Yellowhead, Tete Jaune Cache where the parting of the ways came for many a party of Coureurs des bois of the Hudson's Bay Company, covering the rich fur country of the Interior of British Columbia. Even as the Buffalo trails which deeply indented the prairie in every direction a few years since are being rapidly obliterated by the march of settlement and the building of railways, so will the land marks of early Canadian frontier history be only a cold record in the files of the fur trading companies.

WAS NO PLACE TO LINGER IN

Farm Hand's Isle of Refuge Already Had a Tenant.

Prof. A. L. Lowell, the new president of Harvard, paused in one of his recent lectures and smiled.

"That governmental difficulty," he said, "was great—as great as the difficulty of Lincoln's farm hand.

"Two farm hands, Lincoln used to say, were set upon by a huge bull while crossing a rocky field. One managed to gain a tree. The other took refuge in a hole that proved to have an exit in the rear.

"The man who had chosen the hole was no sooner in at one end than he was out at the other. With a bellow the bull made for him. He turned and again shot like lightning through the hole. The bull once more bore down upon him, and once more he was in and out of his hole.

"This strange pursuit kept up some ten minutes or more. At first it mystified the farm hand up in the tree. Then it angered him.

"'Hey,' he shouted, 'ye danged nincompoop, why don't ye stay in the hole?'

"The bull was dashing from one end of the hole to the other at great speed, and the man was bobbing in and out desperately. He heard, however, his comrade's shout and found time before his next brief disappearance to shout back:

"'Danged nincompoop yerself! There's a bear in the hole!'"—Chicago Journal.

MR. GOSLINGTON IS SENSITIVE.

Can Stand a Man's Snubs, But Hates to Be Ignored by a Woman.

"I don't suppose I ought to be so sensitive," said Mr. Goslington, "but it seems to be the way I'm built. I can stand being snubbed by a man, but it hurts my feelings to be ignored by a woman.

"This morning coming in at a door through which from within I was about to go out was a woman. When I saw her coming I of course opened the door for her as politely as I could and stood back to let her pass.

"Did she as she passed through thank me or graciously incline her head to me or by any token acknowledge my deference to her? By not so much as the bat of an eye or the quiver of an eyelash; she simply ignored me; she passed me by as if I had been the knob on the door instead of the man holding the door open for her.

"Do you know that jarred on me. Hurt my feelings sorter. I don't suppose I ought to be so sensitive, but I seem to be built that way."

Prehistoric Oyster Shells.

That the oyster was in common use by primeval men has been conclusively shown by the discovery in the "kitchen middens" of Denmark of many thousands of oyster shells, showing every evidence of having been artificially opened. In ancient Greece also, the oyster appears to have been a recognized delicacy, for Dr Henry Schliemann, the eminent German archæologist, in his historic search for the ancient and somewhat mythical city of Troy, found many oyster shells in the ruins of the five prehistoric settlements of Hissarlik. But it was Rome in the height of her power and opulence that, by singling out the oyster as the piece de resistance of the Roman banqueting halls, conferred upon the oyster its just title as one of the most delicious and appetizing foods within the grasp of man.

Cheerfulness and Mirth.

"I have always preferred cheerfulness to mirth. The latter I consider an act, the former as a habit of the mind. Mirth is short and transient, cheerfulness fixed and permanent. Those are often raised into the greatest transports of mirth who are subject to the greatest depressions of melancholy. On the contrary, cheerfulness though it does not give the mind such exquisite gladness, prevents us from falling into any depths of sorrow. Mirth is like a flash of lightning that breaks through a gloom of clouds and glitters for a moment; cheerfulness keeps up a kind of daylight in the mind and fills it with a steady and perpetual serenity."—Joseph Addison.

Where Friendship Ceased.

"Never heard what broke up their friendship? Dear me! I thought everyone had heard that. Brown is engaged, you know."

"Oh! yes. I've heard that. Was White in love with the same girl?"

"No, no. Not at all. But White saw her portrait in Brown's room and asked whose it was.

"'It's a picture of my fiancee,' said Brown.

"White examined it critically, and then put it down, with the remark that she must be very rich. I don't know what happened after that but White was taken home in a cab, and neither of them was seen out of doors for a week."

Of Two Evils, the Lesser.

There are other destructive forces in nature, and even earthquakes have their uses. This happened at the time of the tremblor at Charleston, South Carolina, several years ago. A resident of the shaken city, while he felt that his duties required him to remain there to do what he might for the sufferers, sent his six-year-old son out of the danger and confusion to the youngster's grandfather in New York. Three days after the boy's arrival the Charleston man received this telegram from his father: "Send us your earthquake and take back your boy."

[illegible]

[illegible] Gallagher is not very [illegible] says a writer in the New York Press. His wife asked him [illegible] an advertisement for a maid, [illegible] but absently, and only [illegible] his errand at the moment before setting our for his home. He wrote and mailed the ad., making one slight mistake. He offered $5 per week, instead of per month.

The next morning, at six of the clock, the front door bell rang.

"See who that is," said the wife, irritably. He saw! Two Swedish maidens, one rosy German girl, a bonnie Scottish lass, a demure English woman, past her first youth; a number of females, age, appearance, manners, accent, all offering a rich variety, clamored for the privilege of serving in his $45 flat!

"You'd better get up—I didn't know times were as hard as this, poor things," he remarked to his wife.

She rose, and interviewed the various nationalities in a kimono. Her husband dressed hastily, with visions of an extra good breakfast floating in the air before him.

"Which did you take?" he asked, eagerly, as his wife returned.

These pages must not record the language before which a stricken man fled, dropping in at a restaurant for rolls and coffee. He entered his office and worded another ad., a sadder man, at any rate!

MADE THE EULOGY A FARCE.

Bishop Potter's Illustration of the Inadvisability of Relying Too Much on Notes.

The late Rev. Henry Codman Potter greatly objected to the use of notes. At one time he was addressing a number of young theologians on the importance of not being too closely confined to a manuscript. By way of illustration he told the following anecdote about a clergyman who was called upon to officiate at a funeral.

"When the minister arrived at the town where the deceased had lived he had just time to make a few inquiries about his traits and achievements, the results of which he noted on a memorandum. His eulogy at the service, as reported, was about as follows:

"'Our dear brother, whom we mourn to-day, was a man of rare character and ability. He had a mental capacity of a'—referring to his notes—'Daniel Webster, the tact of a'—again consulting his memoranda—'Henry Clay, the pertinacity of a'—another reference—'Ulysses S. Grant. We can only mourn him with profound and sorrowful regret now that he has gone to meet his'—another reference to his notes—'God.'"—Judge.

Mystical Number "Seven."

The number "seven" has a peculiar emphasis and frequency throughout the scriptures, and for that reason it is sometimes called "the perfect number."

We are told that the animals entered the ark by sevens. The years of plenty have generally come by sevens. The Mosaic law appointed not only the seventh day, but the seventh month, every seventh year a Sabbathic year, and every seven times the seventh year a jubilee. The feasts of the tabernacles continued seven days. The animals in many religious sacrifices were seven in number, and the golden lamp stand has seven branches.

Seven priests and seven trumpets went around Jericho seven days and seven times on the seventh day.

A similar regard for the number "seven" prevailed in Persia, India, and among the Greeks and Romans of early times. In fact its symbolic use probably antedates all authentic records, according to reliable authorities.

Despised Wood Is Valuable.

Time brings revenges, even in the timber trade, and a humble conifer long treated with contempt seems, literally, to be on the point of getting a rise in the world. "Hitherto the black spruce," says the Dundee Advertiser, "has been despised by our few British growers as of meager commercial value, the yellowish timber being soft and easily indented, though very light and long of grain. It has lately been discovered that, by virtue of the last named two qualities, this tree furnishes by far the best wood for aeroplanes. As yet the black spruce has rarely been planted by our sylviculturists save for ornament or shelter."

Playing on the Street.

In France children are not allowed to play in the streets, and women do not promenade on the highways, declares an automobilist who is surprised that the law should allow such things in this country, with the consequence of constant liability to accident. Children in this country are not taught to respect the rights of other people, and rush in front of automobiles and street cars in a way that is not known in any other country.

Brutal Indifference.

"It seems since his marriage Jack Thornley has developed into a perfect brute."

"You surprise me! What has he done?"

"Why, the other night while his wife was regaling him with all the particulars of that choice Verifast scandal she noticed that he seemed very quiet. And what do you think! He was sound asleep!"

Tickling, tight coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription. Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh nor unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless hoarhound mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. These leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for baby's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself and see! Sold by all dealers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all, don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my faith as well as with a signed and sealed 30 day "No help, No pay" contract.

I positively pledge to the sick over "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same—pass their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. If it does not the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. You can't [illegible] my medicine's idea in medicine. The books below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a "key hidden in the side nerve," no larger than a pinhead. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its nerve-force action or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys can have their vitality or power nerves. They tell how Dr. Shoop was especially ready to reach and revitalize those weak or failing inside nerves. All of these help tell why I am able to say "I'll help if I can".

This is why I say "Take no chances on a medicine whose maker dare not bank it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to loan my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So drop me a line please—and then give disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 11, Racine, Wis.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save mine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand and, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven sewing or ruffling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whereon it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the last words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars!" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting or personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to ask for information with the only thing I have to give is real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. S. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm, I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No motion was ever undertaken in the matter.

For Rough Fingers.

The bane of the average sewer or embroiderer is the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wellahra Point, which is now one of the choice harbourside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru caressed their galleon on the beech at Woolla-

A QUEEN'S PEN NAME.

How Carmen Sylva Found Her Quaint and Charming Pseudonym.

One of the happiest couples on a throne are King Carol of Roumania and his wife, Elizabeth, a daughter of Prince Hermann zu Wied-Neuwied Although the royal pair are not blessed with children and Queen Elizabeth has never ceased to mourn the death of her only child—a daughter, who died quite young—the love the Roumanians have for their king and queen speaks volumes for their splendid characters.

Not only is Queen Elizabeth very popular among her people, but they are proud of her achievements as a poetess and a writer. She generally writes about Roumania and the Roumanians and has thus made the civilised world familiar with the lovable characteristics of the population of her small kingdom. Living in the midst of Slav races, Roumania proudly claims Latin descent, and the people think and live differently to the populations of the other principalities by whom they are surrounded.

Queen Elizabeth began to devote herself to writing soon after the death of her child, whom she worshiped, and keeps the suit of rooms where this daughter died undisturbed. It hurts her to go often to that castle, and she visits it regularly on the anniversary of the child's death only.

It was during an illness at Sinaia, the favorite country residence of the king and queen, that the latter, compelled to lead an invalid's life, began to spend much of her time writing poems and stories. Many of her friends, who admire the great genius of Queen Elizabeth, begged her to have her writings published and thus give the world a chance to enjoy the charm and poetry of the children of her brain. The queen was not averse to appear in print, but she insisted that a pseudonym must be found to effectually hide the identity of the royal author. In discussing the question of anonymity one day with the doctor in attendance on her Queen Elizabeth said: "I am queen of a Latin country and belong now to a Latin people. Therefore I must have a Latin name, but it must remind me of my home as well. Do tell me what is the Latin for a wood?" The doctor replied, "A wood is called sylva." "That sounds lovely," said the queen. "What is the Latin for bird?" "Avis." "I don't like this," was the reply. "It does not sound well. What is the Latin for song?" "Song is called carmen," was the answer. The queen expressed her delight at this and exclaimed: "I have found my pseudonym. In my mother tongue I am called 'Song of the Wood' (Waldesang), in Latin 'Carmen-Sylvae,' but Sylvae (the genitive) does not sound like a real name, so my name must be grammatically a little faulty, and I am to be called 'Carmen Sylva.'" The pseudonym was kept up for a little while, until the universal approval of the charming work of Queen Elizabeth on its own merits decided her to keep her nom de guerre, but drop the anonymity and mystery which surrounded it.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century, its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the accommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from attic or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tanging with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I'ts hard to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

THE SUPREME TEST.

What the Lovely Maiden Feared the Most.

"Stillingia," said the young man, his voice tremulous with suppressed emotion, "are you going to put me on the paper? Is this where I get off?"

Unshed tears were in the lovely maiden's eyes. If she had shed them they would not have been in her eyes. But let that pass.

"I have not said so, Geoffrey," reluctantly she answered, "in so many words. But"—

"Listen, Stillingia," he burst forth impetuously. "Is there any other guy that's got the inside track? Am I playing second fiddle to some snooper with plastered hair, an ingrowing chin and a pull at the bank? If so"—

"No, Geoffrey, but"—

"Then why the Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego are you stalling me off! I may not be a pampered child of fashion, but I'm on the dead lev. I've never been caught with the goods, Girlie, ever since I was a kid you've been my one best bet, and you know it. I'm Old Faithful from Kleengonville. I've trailed along in your wake like a night police reporter on the track of a lovely holdup or a bug collector after a gorgeous butterfly. All my life I've been building bungalows in the air for you to move into some day. I'd rather look at your tintype than to eat four square meals. You are the niftiest, peachiest dream that ever"—

"Geoffrey," interrupted the beautiful girl, standing erect before him, pale, but calm and resolute, "I know you love me, and I am touched as never before by your devotion, but something seems to tell me that we are not truly mated"—

Here her voice faltered.

"Geoffrey," she said, recovering herself, "we must not make a mistake that will wreck our whole lives! I must ask you one question."

"Well?"

"Which side do you take in the north pole controversy?"—Chicago Tribune.

The Village Romancer.

"Has that feller Pinkley returned home yet?"

"Nope. He's been gone two years now, and nobody knows a blessed thing about him."

"Well, derned if I shouldn't think you'd be afraid he'd come home some day an' claim he found the south pole."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bravery Its Own Reward.

The Lady (to hero who had risked his life to save her little dog from a watery grave and looks for some reward)—Poor fellow, how wet and cold you are! You must be soaked through to the skin. Here! I'll give you some quinine pills. Take a couple now and two more in an hour's time.—Throne and Country.

No Worry.

"We have a strike in our factory every day, off and on."

"Why, I thought you had no labor troubles there at all?"

"No more we have."

"But how, then, can all this striking be going on?"

"The clocks do it."—Baltimore American.

An Amphibious Watch.

Mr. John Norris, a former chief constable of Coventry, whose death is just announced, was the possessor of a watch on which was engraved a view of the Tay Bridge, and which bore the following inscription: "The Tay Bridge disaster, December, 1879. This watch lay in the River Tay for six weeks; it stopped at the time of the accident, remained silent many days, started again, and worked nine hours under water." The watch had been lent to Mr. Beynon, an artist, of Cheltenham, who was drowned in the disaster. A charge of dynamite was afterwards used to raise the bodies from the river, and this doubtless started the watch again

NOT EXACTLY THAT.

Famous Men Who Have Made Malapropos Remarks.

Most of us are acquainted with "Punch's" joke concerning the sun of the house who, as he gallantly escorted the beauty of the evening to her carriage, gushingly remarked, "I have been waiting all the evening for this moment."

Twice in one evening the great novelist, Charles Dickens, was guilty of an embarrassing malapropism. "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately," he wrote to a friend, explaining the matter. "I took a young lady unknown down to dinner and talked to her about the Bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. And I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, Lord Farmoy—generally conceiving him to be an Irish member—on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and Marylebone representatives."

Even these situations, however, are not quite so embarrassing as that of a member of Parliament who, at a certain political reception, remarked to a neighbor, "I wonder who that homely old woman is over there?" pointing out a rather stout lady at the other end of the room.

"That, sir," was the reply, "is my wife!"

"Indeed! That is my daughter!"

The first Baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how, while on circuit with Justice Rook, they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical Psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be; or must not innocence appeal to Heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed; your griping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed."

By this time most of the adults had woke up to the application of the Psalm and remained silent, allowing the children and a few women to continue the second verse

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

The Next Best.

"Hubby, I haven't had a new dress for a month."

"Times are slow for me, my dear. Better go in for literature and pretend to be superior to the fashions."—Kansas City Journal.

Her Discovery.

Husband—Think of it! Here is a hairpin I have found in the soup! Wife—Yes? Now I know where our things have gone. A shoe horn disappeared too!—Harper's Bazar

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick clapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You lucky dog, I discover that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

Read the pain formula on a box of Pink Pain Tablets. Then ask your Doctor if there is a better one. Pain means congestion—blood pressure somewhere. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets check head pains, pain anywhere. Try one, and see! 20 for 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a Director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many secret and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Manitoulin Island. WHY THESE SHARES ARE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity has a good foundation to stand on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its accumulation and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial conditions of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other needful considerations, it has been decided to offer to the the public an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailed proves the inability of the manufacturers to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consequently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient resources on hand to warrant the distribution of a 10 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 31 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution on Stock, in case of that amount, will accordingly pay all on part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

THEREFORE YOUR SUBSCRIPTIONS AT OUR EXPENSE, as each comes by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to office, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life; in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 20 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes to-day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such—the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings, or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with these iron shavings and the interstices filled with cement sufficiently fine to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under blows or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinary macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"'They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: 'They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions'."

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

Flies and Bacteria.

A fly bacteriologically examined has been found to carry something like 100,000 bacteria.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of repute? It used to be said that the hurry of most Americans made it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that this defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far away from the haunts of the strangers are more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American dressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to their own maids to have their neat fingers repair the damage that the first wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show him or her the poor sewing. There is the perfunctory expression of regret and surprise, and the dress is sent to the workroom to be repaired and redelivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment.

Wise women take them as they are, are thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her attention is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to the outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The syrup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A saucerful of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Sarah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging.

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse than futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

"Rita's" Methods.

There is this curious feature regarding the work of that popular English novelist, Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys, known to the world as "Rita." She only needs a title for a book, and that serves as a plot. The characters evolve themselves. "Peg the Rake" was suggested by a chance remark of her husband, who is an Irishman. "Rita" took the three little words to heart, and created the wild, irresistible Peg, whose doings have entertained so many thousands. A chance remark, too, led to the title of "The Pointing Finger"—one of "Rita's" most dramatic stories, which has been added to the Newnes Sixpenny Famous Novels. It is a book rare merit to both sexes

THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world that makes them of great value. The black diamonds are pure carbon, and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George E. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 225 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives dive in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions, where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Men Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or——

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Menzel.

Wills In Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

WARNING.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal in this week's issue are warning their present subscribers to renew earlier than usual this season, as there is an enormous demand from new subscribers and there is apt to be a congestion at the close of the year. A Nice Industry.

Detroit has secured a very nice new industry. The promoters bought 50 acres of land several miles from the city hall and paid $6,000 per acre. They will erect $1,500,000 worth of buildings and will in two years employ 7,000 hands. They will also pay taxes and Detroit merely closed a few streets for them. That is a good company and one worth locating.

Soldiers' Team.

The 57th Regiment will be represented by a team in the City Hockey League. This was decided at a meeting of the Athletic Committee of the officers recently, and it was decided to make application to the league officials for admission. The red coats should have no difficulty in rounding up a good team if its men stick to the regiment. The officers are enthusiastic and will make every effort to put a winning team on the ice.

Houlihan—Tobin.

St. Mary's church was the scene of a very pretty matrimonial event on Tuesday morning, when Miss Mary Tobin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Tobin, St. Paul's street, was united in marriage to Mr. Dennis Houlihan, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Houlihan, Russe, St.

Venerable Archdeacon Casey celebrated the nuptial mass, which was attended by the intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was becomingly gowned in blue with hat to match was assisted by Miss Kate Houlihan sister of the groom, and was similarly attired. The groomsman was Mr. H. Tobin, sister of the bride.

The happy young couple left on the 7.10 G.T.R. train for Peterboro, where the wedding breakfast was partaken of at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. N. Tobin. On their return they will reside on St. Paul St.

The bride who is well and favorable known, was the recipient of a number of beautiful presents. Their many friends will wish them many years of happy wedded life.—Lindsay Post.

Telford—Lean.

A wedding of considerable interest took place in Bridgenorth Wednesday at noon, the contracting parties being Miss Elizabeth Bryant Lean, and Mr. John Clayton Telford, son of John Telford of Bridgenorth. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. Wm. Udy of Bridgenorth. Rev. Mr. Cruickshanks, pastor of the Bridgenorth Methodist church, was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was assisted by two bridesmaids, Miss Allie Telford, who was dressed in pale pink princess silk with applique trimming, and Miss Edna Fitzgerald of Peterborough, who wore cream silk with cream satin and lace trimmings. Both bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink carnations. Mr. G. Walter Fitzgerald of Peterborough, was groomsman. The bride was dressed in pale blue princess silk with lace trimmings. She wore the conventional veil and carried a bouquet of cream roses. Her traveling suit was of wisteria cloth.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played with sympathetic expression by Miss Pauline Udy. After the ceremony about thirty guests, other than the immediate relatives and friends of the bridal pair, sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Telford left on the 5.30 G.T.R. train for a wedding visit to Toronto, Buffalo and other points. On their return they will take up their residence at Fairview Farm, Smith.

ZAM-BUK ENDS YEARS OF PAIN!

Powerful Proofs of its Healing Value

As a household remedy, useful in emergencies such as are always arising in any home, and particularly where there are children, Zam-Buk is without equal. Here are some opinions of its merit:—

Mrs. Halliday, Wroxeter, Ont., says:—"I have proved Zam-Buk unequalled for cuts, sores, and diseases of the skin. In every case to which I have applied it, it has brought about a cure, and I recommend it to all mothers."

Miss Cassie Petrie, Victoria Mines, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, says:—"For a long time I suffered from pimples and unsightly spots on my face, and hearing so much about Zam-Buk, gave it a trial. It has now removed the eruption, and I would heartily recommend it for pimples and skin diseases."

Miss A. Bourgue, Notre Dame, Kent County, N.B., says:—"For months I suffered with a running sore on my leg, and although I tried several ointments and salves, none did me much good. The sore would just heal over, and then break out again. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and obtained a supply, together with some Zam-Buk Soap. I carefully washed the sore, night and morning, with the Zam-Buk Soap, and then applied the balm. A few weeks of TREE HOUSES OF THE PAPUANS.

Cool and Clean, But Not Built for Somnambulists.

The famous tree houses of Papua are rapidly disappearing before the march of civilization and settlement in the colony.

The tree house—a neat and well built habitation, placed at an enormous height among the branches of a forest tree and reached only by a swinging ladder—was primarily intended as a refuge from enemies. Now, however, that the government has brought the wild tribes under control the native prefers to live in a house that demands less skill in construction.

There are still many tree houses to be seen, though few or none are being built. In the northeastern district of Papua (where much valuable sugar, rubber and cocoanut land lies ready for taking up) the government officials on their regular tours of inspection often sleep at night in the house of some hospitable native village constable, who draws his ladder up at sundown to a doorstep 80 feet high in the air.

These tree houses are exceedingly cool, clean and picturesque, with the roofs of native made thatch and walls and floors of wattled boughs.

AGE NO MARK OF DISCRETION.

New York Police Statistics Prove a Most Lamentable Fact.

A woman shoplifter who had passed the Psalmist's allotted period, and who had a long record of offenses behind her, was sent to prison again the other day, and in the printed accounts much was made of her years, as if age and misdemeanor were strangers. As a matter of fact, among women, youth and misdemeanor are strangers if, we make the test of the matter the fact of falling into the law's clutches.

More than half the women offenders of New York are classified in the report of the state prison commission as "middle-aged or elderly women." Of the 6,644 women sentenced to the Blackwell's Island workhouse during the last year, 3,463 were more than 30 years old. About one in 15 of the number were legal minors. Disorderly conduct and public intoxication accounted for all but a few hundreds of the entire number.

There is really no surprise in these figures, for the spectacle of gray hairs without honor is not unfamiliar in any of our small parks. It would be superfluous to point the moral—and Horace has done it already in his sayings to Lalage and Chloe.

No Drums in the Middle Ages.

As we come to the Middle Ages, when the nations of modern Europe were struggling into existence, we find that at first, the drum was not used at all. So, although melody had been known and practiced for many centuries, rhythm had been quite forgotten. For what there is left to us of the music of the Middle Ages contains no bars, and we know that it was slowly and monotonously chanted, without the least accent.

In the eleventh century, however, things began to improve, more particularly as the Crusaders brought into Europe all sorts of percussion instruments from the east. Various kinds of drums, tambourines and cymbals were then seen in Europe for the first time since the days of savages, and they have been used, with very little change, ever since.—St. Nicholas.

How One Got His Name.

"An example of a curious Christian name may be found," says a correspondent, "nearer your offices than most of the cases you have printed. The facts are these. The father of a boy baby wished him to be christened Thomas. The mother favored the name of Robert. When they arrived at the church the matter was still undecided. The father informed the curate that the child's name was Thomas.

"'Oh, no!' gasped the mother distractedly.

"The curate regarding the woman as a fighting spirit promptly baptized the boy Otho.

"The grave of Otho Titchener is to be seen in the churchyard of St Giles', Cripplegate."—London News.

Had All the Symptoms.

The learned hobo was dispensing knowledge for the benefit of his less enlightened companion.

"Have you ever been bitten by a dog?" he asked.

"Many's de time," replied the unenlightened one.

"Are you not afraid of hydrophobia?"

"Nix on de hydro."

"'Tis a curious disease. When a person contracts hydrophobia, the very thought of water makes him sick."

"Is dat on de level? Youse ain't stringin' me?"

"It is a scientific fact."

"Den I bet I've had it all me life, an' never knowed wot was de matter wid me!"

One Way He Could Help.

An eastern college graduate applied for work in a Michigan lumber camp. He was told to get busy on one end of a cross-saw, the other end being in charge of an old and experienced lumberman. At first all went well, but at the end of the second day the young man's strength began to wane. Suddenly the old man stopped the saw and spat.

"Sonny," he said, not unkindly, "I don't mind yer ridin' on this saw, but if it's jest the same to you I wish you'd keep yer feet off the ground."—Everybody's.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the heart and kidneys. The old-fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is mostly wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the root of failing organs of these organs," said he. Much health disorder has its commencing at "health savers." When these nerves fail, then these organs very surely falter. This vital truth is why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is now daily doubling its thousands and winning its millions of friends. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is for sale at most all druggists everywhere. One Night Trip to the World's Art Galleries, Miss Stolle's Lecture

Was Greeted by a Very Large Audience in the Collegiate Assembly Hall Last Night

Miss Frauline Stolle of Boston, was greeted by a very large audience in the Collegiate Assembly Hall last night. The capacity of the hall was taxed and the lecture of Miss Stolle wasextremely interesting and most thoroughly enjoyed by every one. The illustrations were the most beautiful of the kind ever shown here and one could hardly tell the difference between them and the original paintings. and as each was shown the facts connected with them were explained as well as the historical features which have made them famous.

The Woman's Art Association is to be congratulated upon bring Miss Stolle here.

Mrs. (Col.) Stevenson occupied the chair, and in introducing the lecturer she expressed her graitude at seeing so many present, as it spoke well for art loving Peterborough. A couple of musical selections were rendered and then Miss Stolle started her talk on "Old Friends and New in the Realms of Art."

Among the pictures shown were:—The Awakening, Judas Iscariot, Thy Will Be Done, The Old Monk, Prof. Moss, A Little Madonna of Modern Art, Castle on Cave Rocks, The Angel Delivering Peter from Prison, Burn-Jones' Adoration, the Venetian Beauty, King of Shadows, Reuban's the Woman, and Childhood, Vogler's Fisher Women, Raphael's Madonna, Michael Angelo's Joy of Motherhood Raphael's Sistine Madonna, Watt's Hope, Millett's the Gldaneys—Shavant's Patron Saint of Paris. There were a great many other pictures given and with each a short but comprehensive description. It was like visiting the best art galleries of the world, and those who missed this one night trip to England, France and Italy, missed a great treat.

Big Prohibition Fight Closes Today in Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 27 :—The fight between those who favor the amendment of the State Constitution in the interest of prohibition and those in opposition closed today in a whirlwind finish and Monday the people will vote the rejection or adoption of the amendment. The campaign has been one of the hottest Alabama ever experienced and has attracted the attention of the entire country for the reason that the result is expected to prove more farreaching in its effect upon the national temperance movement than any election held in recent years.

The prediction is being freely made that if the constitutional amendment is defeated at Monday's election the doors of Alabama will be opened to the saloons within three years. The defeat of the amendment would be accepted by the anti-prohibitionists as a repudiation of the temperance laws under which Alabama has become one of the dryest" States of the Union, and little doubt is felt that the downfall of the measure would be followed by an energetic campaign for control of the next legislature, to be elected in 1911. The fight will be carried before this body, and the argument will be used that the people are tired of drastic prohibition laws and that this feeling of dissatisfaction was manifested in the election wherein the prohibition amendment went down in defeat.

If the amendment is adopted it will seal the fate of the saloon in Alabama for years to come—probably for all time. It is, therefore, a fight to the death so far as the saloon interests are concerned. Without the amendment in the constitution they could sit by and quietly wait for a favorable opportunity to launch a fight for the abolishment of the rigid prohibition laws. With the amendment in the constitution the task would be practically hopeless. Not only would they have to get a majority of two-thirds in the legislature to have a vote upon the removal of the amendment, but they would have to go before the people and obtain its repudiation in a popular election.

The result of the contest cannot be predicted with any degree of certainty. Today the anti-prohibition-

World's Temperance Sunday Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be celebrated in the international Sunday school world as the World's Temperance Sunday. The international series of lessons have adopted this date when the matter of Biblical temperance may be considered by all students of scriptures.

In many localities in this and other countries the day will be kept in a becoming manner by large mass meetings of the children of all Sunday schools; for the International Sunday School Association, like the national temperance societies, has tended to unify all Christian workers in one grand cause—the emancipation and uplift of humanity. The arrangements in Peterborough have been completed, and in the afternoon the Bible classes and all scholars of the Sunday schools will march to the Grand Opera House at 3.30, where they will be addressed by Mr. E. L. Bengough in a "Chalk Talk," brief address by the Rev. J. J. Ferguson of Orillia.

At 8.15 a mass meeting will be held in the Grand Opera House when W. K. Ireland of Owen Sound, J. J. Ferguson of Orillia, and E. L. Bengough will give short addresses.

Everybody will be made welcome to the night meeting.

MOVE BOAT HOUSE.

Lakefield Won Its Action Against Mr. W. J. Brown.

The action brought by the village of Lakefield to compel Mr. J. G. Brown to move his boat house off Water street, was tried by Mr. Justice Britton at the assizes in Peterborough this week. Judgment was given in favor of the village and Mr. Brown will have to remove the boat house which has caused all the trouble, and pay the village their costs.

DIRTY POLICE COURT.

Magistrate Complains About the Filth and Bad Smell.

Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble complained to the city fathers last night that the police court room was very filthy and dirty and foul smelling. Every person, he said, remarked on the dirtiness and horror of it. It is not scrubbed out ones in three months and a place like that where all the hoodlums and dirty fellows in the community congregated should be purified and sweetened every few days.

The aldermen were of the opinion that there were enough employes about the city hall who were paid enough salary to have this work done regularly and properly and the aldermen promised to look after it.

KING EDWARD ST.

Donated by Mr. D. W. Dumble to the City for Public Uses.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said he had laid out some lots and opened up a new street which he wishes to give to the city. He named the street King Edward street, like the school and park. He has laid out a 46-foot street with a 20 foot reserve. He did not think that he should have to give full 66 feet as his lots were only on one sideand he thought the people owning the property south should pay the rent. His 20-foot reserve will be laid out with trees and grass. It is through the old Walter Boswell property and it makes a short cut to the school and park and he has sold a number of lots already and he wants the council to accept the street so he can fyle his plan and get it register-

Ald. Morrow and Ald. Phelan moved that the request of Mr. Dumble be granted.

1910 CHICKS.

Prizes are Offered by Lindsay Poultry Association.

The Lindsay Poultry Association have issued their prize list for the poultry show on January 25, 26 and 27 next, and they are bidding for quite an attractive and valued exhibit of poultry on those dates. The prizelist is undoubtedly a good one but when it comes to calling for entries of birds bred in 1910 to be exhibited in January 1910, it seems that the Lindsay people are going at too fast a clip in order to introduce new features. The prize list in question invites quite a number of 1910 birds of various breeds to be present at Lindsay's January show and exhibit their feathery charms for the wonder and admiration of all concerned. Whether these 1910 birds are to be bred in the usual way the prize listdoes not say but as incubators are to be kept busy hatching poultry at Peterborough's poultry show on January 4, 5 and 6 their products may possibly be in time to stand a fighting chance with nature's own 1910 birds at Lindsay's exhibition later on in the month.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. 6

No Sewer Connections for Residents of Twps. Say the Aldermen

The Board of Works considers it serious proposition to begin supplying sewer service for residents of the townships adjoining the city. In fact the board refused to have anything to do with it and sent it on to the Committee of the Whole Council. TheToronto Savings & Loan Co., and several private owners of property just north of the city limits asked for sewer connection and that opened up the question. Ald. Bradburn said that before the city built any sewers outside the corporation those benefitting by them should be required to pay to the city not only the cost of the sewer, but also the difference between the taxes paid to the township and those paid by city residents on similar property. If the council adopted the scheme the question would be settled for all time to come as the rural residents would never ask again.

It is granting such things as sewers, water, sidewalks and electric lights to township taxpayers that keep these people from coming into the city. They want all the city privileges and conveniences without paying a cent towards the city's revenue. Peterborough's territory is plenty big enough to look after without going to the country.

Big Furniture Factory May be Located Here

Mr. J. E. Gillett, of Millbrook, the well-known furniture dealer, is authority for the statement that a big furniture manufacturing firm is being organized to locate in Peterborough in the near future. Interested with Mr. Gillett are some local men and several outside furniture manufacturers, and it is figured that considerable American capital will be invested. Mr. Schierholtz of New Hamburg, will in all probability be one of the leading capitalists. They will manufacture upholstered furniture altogether and this city is considered the best location in the Province. Mr. Gillett is greatly in favor of Peterborough, and he hopes that a factory employing from 150 to 200 hands will soon be established here. He added that a good site and reasonable electric power will be great inducements.

Has Issued Writ Against City for $5,000 Damages

A short session of the City Council was held last night when bylaws were passed confirming contracts for heating and plumbing in the new library and for snow plowing. The contract for electric wiring was not let as some difficulty has arisen and the Property Committee wished to have it referred back for further consideration.

Clause four of the Property Committee's report referring to the electric wiring for the new public library. The committee decided to recommend that F. R. J. MacPherson & Company's tender be accepted, but owing to some trouble over the work at the library, it was decided that that clause be referred back to committee for further consideration.

The Fire, Water & Light Committee, the Property Committee and Board of Works and Committee of the Whole, Manufacturers' Committee reports were adopted.

Bylaws were passed confirming the acceptance of King Edward street, and confirming the heating, plumbing and lighting contract.

Ald. Duncan moved that a big willow tree on Weir street be moved. It is half down and the other half is nearly down. There is also one on King street to be removed.

BIG SUIT ON.

Mrs. Torphy, who tripped on the plank walk in Ashburnham last spring, had representatives appear before the council to press her claim for damages. Mrs. Torphy was badly hurt and will be afflicted for life. The council decided to take no action on the advice of the city solicitor. Since then,however, Mrs. Torphy has issued a writ for $5000 damages.

The mayor was instructed to see the city solicitor.

Sam Spanelli Paid the Death Penalty

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 26.— Sam Spanelli, the young Italian peasant, expiated his crime of murder on the scaffold early this morning. Spanelli last thoughts were of his mother, and his last hours on earth were spent in composing a letter to his parent, telling her that his life must be given up to satisfy the law for taking another's life. Radcliffe, who had been engaged to do the hanging, failed to show up or to send any word in reply to urgent messages, the gap being filled at the eleventh hour by a man who gave the name of Ike Thompson of Owen Sound, who arrived late last night.

The Local Option Campaign

The matter appearing under this heading is supplied by the Local Option Campaign Committee.

The liquor men are distributing a small leaflet falsifying conditions in the State of Maine. Now any person with any degree of intelligence can easily see that a large State like Maine would not have made it part of their constitution had there been any evidence to show that in every respect prohibition was not workable and highly successful. We must expect some falsification but such wilful misrepresentation only makes the case of the rum seller all the more hideous.

THE SALOON A QUEER BANK.

"I am sick and tired of going to the polls to vote for a party whose representatives are engaged in a business which I detest and loathe. The devil conquers sometimes, but not always. The time will come when the people will rise in their might and put an end to the saloon business. The saloons are banks that declare no dividends, and give no return except the guarantee of misery and poverty."—Rev. Father McGurk.

FATHER MADDOCK BLAMES THE VOTER.

"I blame the voter who authorizes the issuance of the liquor license, as primarily responsible for the evils of the traffic. Would any philanthropist say that the license money compensates for the want, misery and woe produced by the traffic?"

One vote may decide this great question. Will that vote be yours?

A very serious tactic of the liquor party is to influence good voters to stay at home on voting day saying local option is going to pass anyway. If temperance people listen to such foolish arguments the case will certainly be lost. There will no doubt be a majority vote, but it requires a very much larger number than a mere majority. The local league must accept the three-fifths conditions graciously, but every man and woman who has a vote should record it on January 3rd, and make up your mind that you will vote early rain or shine.

What an awful shame if the failure of one man to vote should mean defeat.

YOUR VOTE NEEDED NOW.

There are some chaps in Peterborough who say that they would gladly vote if they thought that local option would win. After local option wins your vote will not be needed.

WE NEED IT NOW.

There ought to be little sympathy for the men who are taking over the bars in Peterborough over $200,000 annually in this veritable poison.

Here is a man who has been warned over and over again andyet the habitual use of whiskey has so dead. ened his conscience, and stupified his brain that he continues his work in a befuddled condition, and is now forever down and out with no possibility of return. What a fool you say Yet remember the same results are found in morphine and cocaine, and it ought to be made hard to obtain what disorders brain. life and home happiness. Who will compensate the home and family.

Here is another Peterborough man beloved by all who knew him, worthy of all honor at one time, yet continues his social drinking and treating until the habit is formed and he finds it requires the increased doses to satisfy his awful craving. That man today would be worth $6000 a year to his company, but the awful appetite for strong drink overcame him—who will compensate his family—what price can blot out the stained memory of a life that might have been otherwise. Every man in the shocking business knows the dreadful effects on the character, comfort and homelife of every one who drinks in his saloon. And what compensation to a city with a $6000 citizen put out of business.

The business, too, is such a cursed traffic in human character that it mocks the law, laughs at decency, and defies the public press, and we have the information that "A local hotel keeper" was pulled. Why are men afraid? If it is all right—If it is as legitimate a trade as others, why this shuffling to screen and cover certain men, while others are held up to public gaze?

If all who have the power to blot out this nefarious business would remember that it is a death dealing poison that holds its victim—and at the last biteth like a venomous serpent—the doom of the saloon is already assured.

ALCOHOLISM AND PHYSICAL DEGENERACY.

The following explains itself;

The strongest sentences in French and British municipal posters have been combined by the International Reform Bureau's Council for New South Wales. His Grace the Archbishop of Sydney, chairman, in the poster below, which is recommended for adoption by mayors, city councils, boards of health, and boards of education in all lands.

From proceedings French Supervising Council of Public Aid, 1902. Report by Prof. Debove Dean of the faculty of medicine.

Alcoholism is the chronic poisoning which results from the habitual use of alcohol, even when the latter would not produce drunkenness.

It is an error to say that alcohol is necessary to workmen who engage in fatiguing labor; that it gives heart to work, or that it repairs strength. The artificial excitation which it produces gives place very quickly to nervous depression and feebleness.

The habit of drinking entails disaffection from the family, forgetfulness of all duties to society, distaste for work, misery, theft and crime. It leads at the least to the hospital for alcohol engendera the most varied maladies; paralysis, lunacy, disease of the stomach and fiver, dropsy. It is one of the most frequent causes of tuberculosis. Finally, it complicates and aggravates all acute maladies. Typhoid fever, pneumonia, erysipelas, which would be mild in the case of a sober man quickly carry off the alcoholic drinker. The hygenic faults of parents fall upon their children. If the latter survive the first months they are threatened with idiocy or epilepsy, or, still worse they are carried off a little later by tuberculosis, meningitis or phthisis.

For the health of the individual, for the existence of the family, for the future of the nation, alcohol is one of the most terrible scourges.

The continued use of alcohol, whether in form of beer, wine or spirits, even though not to the extent of drunkenness, often leads to chronic poisoning.

Of 61,215 people the average death rate per year by insurance tables will be 1,000. Of 61,215 liquor sellers, the death average is 1,642. Of 61,215 Rechabites (abstainers) the death average is 560.

Sir Frederick Treves, physician to King Edward, declares that alcohol is an insiduous poison, and should be subject to the same strict limitation as opium, morphia or strychnine and that its supposed stimulating effects are delusive.

9,000 Americans Came to Canada

During the Last Fiscal Year, According to Government Blue Books

Ottawa, Nov. 25.— More United Statesers have taken out naturalization papers in Canada than any other nationality. The report of the Secretary of State says so. It was issued today. Canada now has 114,-135 naturalized citizens. Of these 25,731 took out their papers in the past fiscal year of 1908-09. There are 9,000 Americans in the list, followed by almost 4,000 Russians, 3,000 Austrians, and so on, in decreasing numbers through fifty-six nationalities, some of which nobody ever heard of before. To be explicit, there are with us numbered with the righteous of this countryt, nineteen Bucowinians. Of such is the kingdom of Canada. Incidentally it may be remarked that 715 Canadians, who had left their country, applied to be let in again and were.

Mrs. Robinson Taken to the Penitentiary

Sudbury, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Annie Robinson, the self-confessed murderer of two infant babes, was taken to Kingston this morning in charge of Governor Keaney and his wife.

With the departure of Mrs. Robinson, the community sees the close of a case disclosing the most revolting crimes in Canadian history. The prisoner will serve ten years in the penitentiary and will be 55 years of age when the term expires.

Verylew people were aware of her presence at the train. Broken hearted, despondent, draped in black, she caused very little flutter, although some curiosity among the intending passengers at the depot.

Three Persons Found Dead in Bed at Aurora

Aurora, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Rebecca Flintoff, her granddaughter, Laura McDonald, and a boarder, Fred Blake, were found dead yesterday in the home of Mrs. Flintoff on Machell avenue here. The discovery of the bodies was made about noon, when Mrs. C. W. Flintoff, a niece of Mrs. Flintoff, became suspicious that something was wrong. With a neighbor she went to the home of Mrs. Flintoff,and after knocking at the door and getting no response an entrance was forced. When the back door was forced in the smell of coal gas was so strong as to almost overcome those who had secured an entrance.

Fred Blake, who was a boarder, was foubd dead in his bed, and on going into the room occupied by Mrs. Flintoff and her granddaughter, both were found dead. Drs. Hillary and Stevenson gave it as their opinion that the three persons had been dead at least twenty-four hours.

Deliberate Murder in Buffalo Library

Buffalo, Nov. 26.—Without any explanation or warning but with a deliberation that made the accomplishment of his murderous purpose simple, Charles Strohl, an employe of a bakery, walked into the reading room of the Buffalo Public Library today, pulled a revolver and shot and instantly killed Franz Stantz, who boarded with Mrs. E. Decola, on Broadway.

The murderer rushed out of the building, pursued by a number of people, and turning into an alley, exchanged shots with his-pursuers, one shot striking an officer in the hand, disabling him. By this time fifteen hundred people had gathered, Strohl, taking shelter behind a brick wall, occasionally looking over and fired. For over fifteen minutes he held the crowd at bay. Finally, after the police had fired forty or fifty shots, they executed a flank movement. Strohl broke for another cover, but was finally cornered and caught.

"I'd have blown you all to —— if you hadn't got back of me," he snarled. Three police revolvers covered him. When finally taken he was found to have two revolvers and over half a box of cartridges. He had reloaded and fired his revolvers several times.

LABOR REPORT.

Mr. J. Arthur Sharp, correspondent, reported as follows:

Labour conditions generally were very favourable during October, the result being that there were very few idle men in the city or district. The demand for men in all branches was about equal to the supply. All the factories were working full time and in some they were working overtime. Building operations were fairly active, but fell off somewhat during September according to a comparisonwith the amounts of the building permits for that month in 1908. Last year, September saw permits issued to the total of $57,230 whereas during the past month the amount was $46,485 of which $22,-000 was made up by the Knox Church building. The Colonial Weaving Company has just completed a new factory and is installing about $20,000 worth of new machinery which will result in doubling the output of the plant. The Central Mill started work again this month after being shut down for the last three months; it now has a capacity of 400 barrels of flour a day and will run night and day. The assessment returns show the population of the city to be 16,907, an increase of 416 over last year.

A RUSH OF BUSINESS.

It Came Just at the Time He Wanted to Sell His Place.

One of the leading men of Louisville, reported to be one of the richest, got a bad start in business. He began by being a photographer, but found that the business didn't come up to expectations. He therefore wisely decided to sell out and start at something else. He finally interested some people in the proposition and appointed a time when they should come and look things over.

He now has the reputation of being shrewd, and that this is not a complimentary designation only is indicated by what happened then. He inserted an advertisement in the daily papers in small enough type not to attract everybody's attention and yet conspicuously enough to win consideration from those who make a point of looking for bargains, announcing that on a certain day he would take pictures free of charge. By a coincidence the day he set was the day when the prospective purchasers of his business were to be there.

The ad., as usual, paid, and that afternoon his gallery was crowded with visitors. They thronged in and out, and he could not take care of them rapidly enough, even with the aid of several assistants. When the folks he intended to do business with came he greeted them with a crown of disappointment, explaining that he was simply so busy that he couldn't see them then and asked them to come back in the morning, when things would likely have slackened up. They agreed and went away duly impressed.

He sold out to them next day, and it is perhaps superfluous to add that he got more for his outfit than he would have done if it hadn't been for the modest little advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW INSECTS BREATHE.

System of Tubes That Run the Length of Their Bodies.

Landlubber animals have lungs, and sea creatures have gills. But insects have neither one nor the other. They have a complex system of tubes running throughout the whole length of the body by means of which air is conveyed to every part of the system. As they are destined to contain nothing but air, they are strongly supported to guard against collapse from pressure.

This support is furnished by means of a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, much in the same way that a garden hose is protected with wire. There are generally two of these tubes which run the whole length of the insect's body.

Many flies, as larvae, live in the water. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates act and absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three feather-like protections. By means of these the larva causes currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

The gnat also lives in the water as a larva. But it has no gills; therefore it cannot breathe the oxygen in the water, but must breathe air. This is done by means of a spiracle situated at the tip of its tail. Indeed, the tail is prolonged into a little tube. The larva floats along head downward in the water with this tube just above the surface to enable it to breathe. After some time it is provided with two little tubes, which act in the same manner.—Chicago Tribune.

NOT EXACTLY THAT.

Famous Men Who Have Made Malapropos Remarks.

Most of us are acquainted with Punch's" joke concerning the sum of the house who, as he gallantly assisted the beauty of the evening to her carriage, gushingly remarked, "I have been waiting all the evening for this moment."

Twice in one evening the great novelist, Charles Dickens, was guilty of an embarrassing malapropism. "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately," he wrote to a friend, explaining the matter. "I took a young lady unknown down to dinner and talked to her about the Bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. And I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, Lord Fermoy —generally conceiving him to be an Irish member—on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and Marylebone representatives."

Even these situations, however, are not quite so embarrassing as that of a member of Parliament who, at a certain political reception, remarked to a neighbor, "I wonder who that homely old woman is over there?" pointing out a rather stout lady at the other end of the room.

"That, sir," was the reply, "is my wife!"

"Indeed! That is my daughter!"

The first Baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how, while on circuit with Justice Rook, they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical Psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be; or must not innocence appeal to Heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed; your griping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed."

By this time most of the adults had woke up to the application of the Psalm and remained silent, allowing the children and a few women to continue the second verse.

"Rita's" Methods.

There is this curious feature regarding the work of that popular English novelist, Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys, known to the world as "Rita," she only needs a title for a book, and that serves as a plot. The characters evolve themselves. "Peg the Rake" was suggested by a chance remark of her husband, who is an Irishman. "Rita" took the three little words to heart, and created the wild, irrepressible Peg, whose doings have entertained so many thousands. A chance remark, too, led to the title of "The Pointing Finger" — one of "Rita's" most dramatic stories, which has been added to the Newnes' Sixpenny Famous Novels. It is a book of rare interest to both sexes.

EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life; in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 20 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes to-day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such —the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings, or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with these iron shavings and the interstices filled with cement sufficiently fine to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under blows or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinary macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"'They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: 'They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions'."

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

Flies and Bacteria.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the heart and kidneys. The old-fashioned way of doing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is nearly wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or failing nerves of these organs," said he. Both inside organs has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to diagnose and reason mind Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A two days' test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to lid a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, and, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or ruffling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whereon it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars?" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting or personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to ask for information with the only thing I have to give is real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. S. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm. I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No mention was ever undertaken in the matter.

For Rough Fingers.

The base of the average sewer or embroiderer is the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wollahra Point, which is now one of the choice harbor-side residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru careened their galleon on the beach at Woollahra Point.

FIFTY YEARS A WRITER

HOW MISS BRADDON CAME TO WRITE NOVELS.

As a Girl, Popular Authoress Was Always Scribbling—Was Offered $50 For First Novel—Wrote First Instalment of Lady Audley's Secret Overnight — Has Retained First Rank Ever Since.

To have delighted the world for half a century with an unceasing stream of fiction; to have published a novel for every year of her long life; and to be able to entrance the readers of to-day as she entranced their grandparents in the middle of last century is the proud record of Miss Braddon, who at seventy-four seems still to possess the secret of perennial youth.

Much water has run under the bridges of her beloved Thames since Mary Elizabeth Braddon laboriously copied her first story by its banks in Chiswick in a child's round hand and between pencilled lines. The love of the pen was in the little one's blood; for her father, a London solicitor, had made "Rough Robin" famous in the world of sportsmen, and her mother was saturated with a passion for literature. And so Mary Elizabeth took to writing as naturally as a duck to the water.

As a schoolgirl, with her home still by the Thames at Barnes, she was always scribbling in her exercise books; and, under the eyes of her teachers, she furtively pencilled quite a long story, "The Old Armchair," which made her famous among her schoolfellows. But alas! for years she could not thaw the hard hearts of the editors. All the literary doves she sent out to them came back to her ark with the exasperating regularity of clockwork.

One day, however, when she was emancipated from the schoolroom, she awoke to find a letter awaiting her which revolutionized her world. It was from a Beverley printer, who had seen a sketch by her in a Yorkshire paper, and who offered her the sum of $50 to write a story for him, which should "combine the humor of Dickens with the plot-construction of G. W. M. Reynolds." It was a large order and a small guerdon, but the girl was transported with delight.

Before she was many days older she had transported herself and her mother to a Beverley farmhouse, and was reeling off the masterpiece of Dickens cum Reynolds at a thousand words an hour, weaving her plot as she rode about the Yorkshire lanes. She boldly christened her story, "Three Times Dead; or The Secret of the Heath"; and it was a very proud moment in her life when she handed the last sheets of the manuscript to the printer's boy. The book certainly did not make the printer's fortune, but renamed "The Trail of the Serpent," it had a new and vigorous lease of life.

Still fame refused to knock at her door, but not for long. A little later Mr. Maxwell, a publisher, projected a new magazine, the great feature of which was to be a serial for a famous writer. To his dismay, however, the serial, which had been extensively advertised, was not forthcoming at the proper time. Mr. Maxwell was in despair, until a letter came, signed "M. E. Braddon," offering to write a serial. "Too late," was his answer to the young authoress when she called on him. "But what is the latest day you can give me?" she persisted. "Well," said Mr. Maxwell, "if the manuscript of the opening chapters is on my breakfast-table to-morrow morning that would be in time."

Next morning Mr. Maxwell found the first chapters of "Lady Audley's Secret" among his correspondence; his venture was saved, and Miss Braddon was on the high road to fame and fortune. Such was the romantic genesis of one of the most popular books ever written.

Then followed in quick succession "Aurora Floyd," "Eleanor's Victory," and "Henry Dunbar," all eagerly welcomed by thousands of admiring readers; and Miss Braddon took her place, which she has ever since retained, in the foremost rank of the writers of fiction. Since these early triumphs there has been scarcely a year when she has not given the world at least one of her fascinating novels; in some years she has published two and in others three; until her fiction-children now number more than her own years.

And Miss Braddon's life has been as happy as it has been busy. For nearly forty years her home has been in a fine old Georgian house, once the abode of the Bishop of Lichfield, at Richmond—for nothing can wean her from the river she loves so well. Here, surrounded by her birds and dogs, and her wonderful collection of china and books, she has led an ideal life, writing her books in the peace of her beautiful garden or in her study, entertaining her friends with a charming hospitality, and devoted to her home and her three sons, all of whom have made a name in the world of letters.

In her younger days she might be seen almost every morning cantering in Richmond Park on Kaiser, her white-footed bay, her eyes sparkling and face flushed with health and exercise; and even to-day there are few horsewomen in England more graceful or expert. For the rest, she spends her leisure in gardening, music, and study, of all of which she is passionately fond. A simple, gracious life, spent in womanly ways remote from the glare of the limelight—that is what Miss Braddon loves, and it is this that has preserved her youth and powers unimpaired into the seventies.

As for her methods of work, she carefully maps out her books to the smallest details before putting pen to paper; then, with her writing-pad on her knees, she fills sheet after sheet with her small handwriting, clear as print, with a wonderful rapidity, never pausing for a word and rarely making a correction. From a thousand to fifteen hundred words an hour is her normal rate of production. She stops work at luncheon-time.

THE LAWS OF CASTE.

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Behar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and in other parts of Europe. In notifying this fact to the Kayastha Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas. Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever.

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas received in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayaschitta" as mentioned by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without furnishing the Supreme Being as mentioned by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the customs of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you will live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry, and shall have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

THE WAY OF IT.

A man and woman ride
Within a street car cooped,
But if one be not fair,
With age or tottering stooped,
We notice in the car
That them they will be grouped:

Him.

A married pair go out,
And in an auto race
He has no eye for aught
Save tearing holes through space,
And therefore we observe
'Tis them each takes a place:

Him.
Her.

A youth and maiden ride
Upon a winter day,
Their sleigh skims lightly on,
And all with frost is gay,
And we observe they sit
In just about this way:

Him.
Her.

—New York Times

An Old Story.

"Chesty says that his boy is wonderfully smart."

"Yes, but Chesty ought to know better than to build any experience on that. I can remember when Chesty's father said the same thing about him.'

Tribesmen Active.

The Indian Northwest frontier is presently in an unsettled state, owing to the activity of the Khostwal tribesmen. The border police have been strengthened as the Khostwal men recently made an attack on Batochkil in the Kurram, and lost several men killed and wounded in the fray. Owing to their reverse they have apparently collected in some numbers, and are bent on revenge. The disturbed conditions in the neighborhood of Banna still continue. As bands of the Khostwals hang about, the Tochi road to Miranshah has to be picketed, whenever officers are traveling to or from Banna, and escorts have to be provided for officers of the militia journeying from post to post. A sense of insecurity is felt also in British territory since the mail tonga for Kohat was attacked fifteen miles from Banna. On that occasion the Naib Tahsildar of Miranshah was carried off, but released by the raiders owing to the hot pursuit of the border military police. The tonga was carrying English mails, but fortunately none of the bags were taken. Only one bag of Indian letters was stolen, and this was recovered.

Getting Rich In Australia.

What thrift and energy may do, even for the farm laborer in Australia, is well illustrated by a case which recently came before the Wagga Land Board. One of the applicants for a selection was a lad between 18 and 19 years of age. It was shown in evidence that while working as a farm laborer the applicant had saved sufficient money to buy farm horses, costing in the aggregate $350, and that he still had $300 cash in hand. During harvest time he had received $9 per week and his keep for driving five horses in a stripper; while ploughing he received $6.25, and for the rest of the year $5 per week and keep. A member of the board remarked that if the Premier would have a report of this case printed and circulated in England, there would be no difficulty in securing desirable young men of the farm-laboring class as immigrants; the trouble would then be to keep them away. One resident of the district intimates that he could place at once ten young men of this type at $6.25 per week.

Her First Part.

Miss Wynne-Matthison, who is taking a leading part in the new Adelphi piece, "The Great Divide," found her first efforts to gain a footing on the ladder of theatrical fame in London far from encouraging. It is true that she recited and acted as an amateur in Shakespearian and other roles from the age of ten, but when she came to seek for professional engagements she found she could get nothing but a one-word part in a musical comedy; that was thirteen years ago. Since then Miss Matthison, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy, has achieved much, and holds the distinction of being Sir Henry Irving's last leading lady. She is probably the last woman to whom he ever spoke, for she was playing Fair Rosamond to his Becket on the night of his tragic death.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that read has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realize that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farward manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

An Amphibious Watch.

Mr. John Norris, a former chief constable of Coventry, whose death is just announced, was the possessor of a watch on which was engraved a view of the Tay Bridge, and which bore the following inscription: "The Tay Bridge disaster, December, 1879. This watch lay in the River Tay for six weeks; it stopped at the time of the accident, remained silent many days, started again, and worked nine hours under water." The watch had been lent to Mr. Beynon, an artist, of Cheltenham, who was drowned in the disaster. A charge of dynamite was afterwards used to raise the bodies from the river, and this doubtless started the watch again.

Suiting Her Convenience.

Count D'Orsay, on his first visit to England, chanced to be seated at dinner next to Lady Holland. That remarkable and many-sided woman was in one of her imperious humors. She dropped her napkin; the count picked it up gallantly. Then her fan, then her fork, then her glass and, as often, her neighbor stooped and restored the lost article.

At last, however, the patience of the youth gave way and on her dropping her napkin again he turned and called one of the footmen behind him:

"Put my plate on the floor," said he; "I will finish my dinner there; it will be so much more convenient to Lady Holland."

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity has a good low-priced article, and as result, healthy conditions exist in the course of the development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economics and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a successful and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other special considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and the share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both, Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 32 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will normally, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to call on, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

Molten Wood.

"Molten Wood" is the latest production of the German chemical industry. The new substance seems almost as paradoxical as "wooden iron." Wood that can be melted is obtained by subjecting it to a special process of distillation at a temperature of 140 degrees Cel. in vacuum. The process eliminates all organic acids, phosphates, and the like, nothing remaining except the skeleton fibres of the wood that can be melted down at a temperature of 800 degrees.

The new product is said to possess exceptionally valuable qualities; it is very fine grained, especially adapted to polishing, extraordinarily hard and durable. Printers' ink and dyes make splendid impressions on the new substance.

A great future is claimed for "molten wood," more especially in the printing and engraving trades, as its qualities for reproduction are unsurpassed. During the process of distillation it can be impregnated with antiseptic material, thus being rendered proof against decay or the attacks of insects. Experiments are being made with it in the buildings trades, and it is generally believed that it will soon become a staple article of commerce.

Arming the Yeomanry.

I understand that Mr. Haldane and the Army Council are seriously considering the question of rearming the Yeomanry. One of the many unwise deductions drawn from the South African war was that the sword as a weapon for cavalry was no longer useful. Since then the Yeomanry have been armed with rifles. Military experts are now returning to the "white weapon." During the recent manoeuvres the Yeomanry were more than once placed in a position when "the charge" was the only way out of an awkward and dangerous predicament. The fact that they had no weapon with which to charge naturally forbade "the order." I am assured the wise men of the War Office contemplate restoring the sabre to the Yeomanry cavalry.—Dundee Courier.

Shortest Street in London.

There can hardly be a shorter street in London than the one connecting Pall Mall with the southeastern corner of St. James' Square, from which the name John street has just been removed. It has only one house, which is No. 1; for, though there are two other doors in the street, one is numbered as belonging to Pall Mall and the other is the side-entrance of a public house. Presumably, therefore, the single house is now to be absorbed in St. James' Square, and the London Directory is to lose yet another of the slowly-diminishing total of John streets.

A Queer Wo

A queer woode found in Guatem called the rose of that it grows on agua and round the volcano of Fue anet petals, the c covered with bark the stem, usually a of solid wood the flower means eternal.

Crossing the Channel.

By what means will man next attempt to cross the Channel? The question naturally arises as one reads of the many curious and novel methods by which men have tried of late years to cross from Dover to Calais. It was only a day or two after Blériot's successful flight across the Channel that a man named Westlake announced his intention of crossing on a plank, two feet wide, 18 feet long, and two inches thick, fitted with a mast and sail and two empty oil-drums to give it buoyancy. Westlake, however, was picked up more dead than alive off the Belgian coast, but still hopes to accomplish the feat.

A few days later Thomas Waterall set out to row across the Channel in a boat of his own construction, consisting of two planks, with sides a few inches high. He was ultimately picked up in the North Sea and landed at Rotterdam.

Some two or three years ago four old Etonians attempted to row from Dover to Calais in a four-oar sculling-boat, but before they got halfway across the Channel the boat was swamped and the crew nearly drowned.

Smuggling Opium.

All sorts of tricks and dodges are resorted to by the Chinese of Australia to evade the law prohibiting the importation of opium into the Commonwealth. At Sydney recently a Chinaman was noticed, when passing the customs officials, to have a very bulky pig-tail. On examination it was found to contain several pounds of the contraband drug. The profits from the traffic are so enormous as to encourage very desperate efforts to override the law, and the authorities believe that a regular system of importation is in operation, Europeans as well as Chinese being engaged in it. In fact, two custom officials and a water policeman are now awaiting trial in Sydney on a charge of conspiracy in smuggling. A coast line of 10,000 miles is all in favor of this nefarious traffic

A Crazy Clock.

Visiting an old mate, who had the misfortune to be confined in a Yorkshire asylum, a collier noticed that the large clock in the reception hall was ten minutes slow.

"That clock is not right" he exclaimed.

"No, lad!" was the lunatic's reply. "That's why it's here."—London Daily News.

THE JONESES' VACATION.

A game that children of any age will enjoy and which takes little preparation is the Jones' vacation. One of the girls is selected as Mrs. Jones and one of the boys as Mr. Jones. You have ready a suit case, and at a given signal Mr. and Mrs. Jones must unlock it and put on the things they find inside. It is a good idea to have a hat, a long coat, a veil, scarf, gloves and pocketbook for Mrs. Jones and a coat, hat, collar (a large one), necktie and gloves for Mr. Jones. They must dress in these as quickly as possible, for some one is timing them, and then they must lock the suit case and rush off with it to the train. That must be the farthest point you can select, usually the front door. After they have hit the front door a good hard thump they must rush back again, take off the things and pack them again. Now it is the turn of another couple to be Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and when they all have tried the couple who made the trip in the shortest time are judged the winners.

It is well to use coats and hats that you do not need to treat carefully, for naturally they are apt to get rumpled in the excitement of the game. Don't forget the collar, in which you should put a large stud, for it always is interesting to see any one in a hurry struggle with a collar button.

WARNING.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal in this week's issue are warning their present subscribers to renew earlier than usual this season, as there is an enormous demand from new subscribers and there is apt to be a congestion at the close of the year. The new premium picture, "The Soul's Awakening," is causing a perfect furore of enthusiasm in all parts of the Dominion. It is certainly a beautiful picture and is appreciated more and more the oftener one sees it. It is 19 x 24 inches, ready for framing. A copy is sent to every subscriber for 1910, and along with such a paper as The Family Herald and Weekly Star at one dollar a year certainly is the best bargain of the year. Clergymen of all denominations are urging parents to become possessors of a copy of this interesting picture.

Historic Posts of Hudson's Bay Co.

Many of the historic posts of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta and British Columbia will be distributed next year through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is even now conquering the passage of the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Range.

One of the most notable of these old posts and which was used as a base for the supply of the posts in the Interior of British Columbia is Jasper House, situated on the Athabasca River and about 200 miles along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

Jasper House was built about 1800 and the records of the Hudson's Bay Company show that it was established in the forest on the shore of a small lake surrounded by high rocks, except on the lake side.

In 1817 the Factor in charge was Jasper Hawes, It is his Christian name which gives the name to this post, which, however, in the early years of 1st establishment was popularly called the "Rocky Mountain House," although the post of that name was afterwards officially established at the junction of the North Saskatchewan River and the Clearwater River in Alberta.

Jasper Hawes was celebrated for the great shock of yellow hair that he wore and the Indian and Half Breed hunters referred to him as "Tete Jaune," thus Yellow Yellowhead Pass, at the portal of which Jasper House is located, and beyond the Yellowhead, Tete Jaune Cache where the parting of the ways came for many a party of Coureurs des bois of the Hudson's Bay Company, covering the rich fur country of the Interior of British Columbia. Even as the Buffalo trails which deeply intented the prairie in every direction a few years ago are being rapidly effaced and the building of railways, so will the land marks of early Canadian frontier history be only a cold record in the files of the fur trading companies.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE."

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure the Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Prohibition Fight

ists are loudly proclaiming that they see victory in sight. The fact that a number of leading citizens through out the State who were formerly numbered with the prohibitionists have taken an active part in the campaign to defeat the constitutional amendment leads those who have borne the brunt of the fight against so-called radicalism to believe that the turn of the tide has come. They see, or profess to see in the strong opposition to constitutional prohibition a breaking away from the movement which has swept Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and other States into the prohibition column and which has made many parts of Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and other Western and Southern States close the door against the saloon.

While admiting that there have been many desertions from the ranks the prohibitionists express confidence in their ability to carry the amendment and assert that they have made more than enough converts from the opposition forces to offset the votes of those who have gone to the other side. They hold that the fight is one of "saloon or no saloon," and tacitly admit that prohibition in Alabama stands or falls with the amendment.

In the effort to abolish the liquor traffic Alabama has gone to legislative extremes seldom or never before witnessed in the war on the saloon, and it is upon this fact that the anti-prohibitionists base their hope of a reaction. If this reaction develops, its effect will undoubtedly be felt in other States where the temperance movement has been making progress, and its influence, it is believed, will be to check the movement. If, on the other hand, Alabama endorses its prohibition laws by writing prohibition in the constitution, then it will give new courage to the temperance forces throughout the country and other States will no doubt bring forward laws as far-reaching as those now on the statute books of Alabama. The election, in other words, is going to prove a big boost to one of the sides in the temperance controversy, and the fight was made with a thorough understanding on both sides as to its bearing upon the future of the temperance movement in the country at large.

NASAL CATARRH PRODUCES DEAFNESS RELIEF IN PE-RU-NA

Mr. R. J. Arless, 401 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Quebec, is an old gentleman of wide acquaintance, having served thirty-eight years in the General Post-office of Montreal, a record which speaks for itself. Concerning his use of Peruna, see letter given below.

MR. R. J. ARLESS.

"I have been afflicted with nasal catarrh to such a degree that it affected my hearing.

"This was contracted some twenty years ago by being exposed to draughts and sudden changes of temperature.

"I have been under the treatment of specialists and have used many drugs recommended as specifics for catarrh in the head and throat—all to no purpose.

"About three years ago I was induced by a confrere in office to try Peruna.

"After some hesitation, as I had doubts as to results after so many failures, I gave Peruna a trial, and am happy to state that after using eight or ten bottles of Peruna I am much improved in hearing, and in breathing through the nostrils."

VOL. XXXII NO. 278 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, MONDAY NOVEMBER 29, 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

"And this for the very simple reason that we have for a quarter of a century been making eyes at Canada ourselves. She is our very best girl in the marriageable class of colonies, and when this fair maiden of the snows becomes of age, and of a mind to enter upon new relations of life, the fellow that gets her has got to be a bigger and better man than Uncle Sam." FROM THE NEW YORK AMERICAN

Would This be the Atitude of the United States in the event of a German Invasion?

American People Like Germany and Germans the Best

Received Some Assurances That Canada Has a Very Tender Feeling for Uncle Sam.

Would Not Stand for Germany or Any Other Power Being a Proprietor of Canada.

The following editorial appears in the New York American of Nov. 26. It is interesting as representing a possible United States attitude towards this country in the event of an Anglo-German conflict. The editorial spreads itself over three columns under the heading:

"A PREVIOUS ENGAGEMENT WITH CANADA, IF YOU PLEASE.

Toronto, Nov. 24, 1903.— Editor New York American: A prominent German financier, in an interview with the Toronto Daily News made this remarkable statement:

"Had England and Germany came together, the prize for which Germany would have fought a Canada."

Will the New York American please tell us over here, who buy a great many of your Sunday editions, what your Monroe doctrinism would say in case the prize would be claimed as a result of a contest between these two titans?

Canadians would be greatly interested to have your reply.

Truly yours,
E. SMITH.

The Canadian asks a frank question, and is entitled to a frank reply.

Between Germany and England it is undeniable that the American people like Germany and the German people best. We believe that the Germans are better real friends than England to this country of ours, and we have far more Germans in the body of our best citizenship.

But for all that, we Americans would look with grave and serious disapproval upon the annexation of Canada by Germany as a prize of war. And not by Germany only, but by any other nation. We do not discriminate against Germany as a new proprietor of Canada. The protest is general.

And this for the very simple reason that we have for a quarter of a century been making eyes at Canada ourselves. She is our very best girl in the marriageable class of colonies and when this fair maiden of the snows becomes of age, and of a mind to enter upon new relations of life, the fellow that gets her has got to be a bigger and better man than Uncle Sam.

Moreover we have received some shy assurances that Canada has a very tender feeling for Uncle Sam.

The flirtations of past years have not progressed to the "popping of the question," but they are so well remembered and so frequently renewed that any wise dowager of nations ought to be able to forecast the ultimate result.

The Americans are Not Proposing to Conquer or Absorb Canada

The ultimate union of Canada and this country will be based upon such good reason and such evident common sense that the world will wonder why it was so long delayed. A little less of selfishness and a little more of statesmanship would have brought them together long ago.

The laws of human nature and the analogies of history must inevitably demonstrate to Canada that her amputation from her own continent and her unnatural connection with another is not to her advantage.

The American market is indispensable to Canada, and Canada is necessary to the perfect development of the United States. The Americans are not proposing to conquer nor absorb Canada, but to welcome it to co-equal rights in the happy family of states.

NO LAGGARD IN LOVE.

It is inconceivable that a people essentially as American as ourselves, whose homes lie along our border for 3500 miles, can indefinitely continue to be political aliens, giving allegiance to a power across the sea. Geographical proximity, commerce, political institutions, absence of international hatred and prejudice—all have a silent tendency to bring about the consummation Americans hope for now and Canadians probably wish.

There is a well-understood, even if tacit, engagement between Canada and America, and the fellow, big or little, who tries to play the role of "Buttinski" here is going to find out that our Uncle Samuel is no more a laggard in love than he is a dastard in war.—From the New York American.

10,000 People Saw Varsity Defeat the Ottawa Rough Riders

(Special to The Times.)

Toronto, Nov. 27.—"Varsity, Varsity—Rah! Rah! Rah!" By the overwhelming score of 31 to 7 Toronto Varsity, winners of the Intercollegiate Rugby Union, defeated the Ottawa Rough Riders, Interprovincial champions, at Rosedale field on Saturday afternoon before a crowd of nearly 10,000 people. This was the largest gathering of football enthusiasts that ever witnessed a game in Toronto.

Weather conditions would have been ideal but for the fact that the field was a trifle heavy and slipuery as a result of a heavy frost over night. The temperature left nothing to be desired by the spectators, if it were a trifle too warm for the players. A bright sun shone nearly all through the game, but there was practically no wind.

Financially the game was a great success. Officials of the Canadian Rugby Union estimates the receipts at $6200. This overshadows any other game as a money-maker. Much more than this was spent to see the game but a big slice was taken in by speculators, who got as big as $10 and even $15 for a pair of grand stand seats.

When the final whistle blew, there were scenes of the wildest excitement. No player on either side was allowed to walk to the dressing rooms. All were carried off by energetic supporters, the stars being nearly torn asunder by their many friends. The bands both of Ottawa and Varsity headed the parades around the grounds, and a mob surrounded the players, who plunged for the ball. Big George Kennedy of Ottawa, collared it, but Varsity got even by carrying off the big score board. The bands later paraded the downtown streets heading great throngs of enthusiasts.

The score by quarters was first, Varsity 11, Ottawa 0; second, Varsity 7, Ottawa 1; third, Varsity 1, Ottawa 6; fourth, Varsity 12, Ottawa 0.

The outcome of the game was hardly in doubt from the start, and never after the close of the first quarter, but as shown by the score Ottawa opened the second half with a yeoman struggle.

Porto Ricans Appeal to Taft for Relief

(Special to The Times.)

Washington, Nov. 27.—More than 600,000 workers in Porto Rico are in a deplorable condition according to representatives of organized labor in that island, who today appealed to President Taft for aid.

A committee representing the Free Federation of workingmen of Porto Rico, called upon President Taft at the White House and laid before a petition setting forth the alleged condition.

The petitioners seek an increase in the wage scale, relief from the "mercilessness" of the so-called giant sugar trust, increased educational facilities for the children of working men, an improvement of the "extremely bad" sanitary conditions, the inspection of factories and workshops, the abolition of conviet labor, the prohibition of the employment of children under 14 years of age in factories, the application of the eight hour and the employers' liability act and citizenship for Porto Ricans.

The charge was made that the legislative assembly dominated by the U.S. party, has committed itself against the enactment of labor law to better the conditions of working men in that island, while capital is afforded every opportunity to utilize its resources and encroaching power to the detriment and injury of the laboring classes.

WILL EXPLORE PEARY'S FIND.

In Arctic Circle Says Prof. McMillan of Freeport.

Freeport, Me., Nov. 28.—An expedition to explore Crockett's Land, the territory discovered by Commander Peary in his dash for the pole, will start next July, according to Prof. Donald B. McMillan, who was one of the Peary party. Prof. McMillan, who has been an instructor at Worcester Academy, says that he will give up teaching and make Aretic exploration his life work. He declined to give any details of his proposed expedition to Crockett's Land.

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS.

Cause, Rush of Blood, Fulness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it seizes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute.

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

HE USED A KNIFE.

Englishman Spent Week-End in the Coop for Stabbing.

An Englishman also spent the week end behind the bars and the magistrate will ask him this morning why he stuck a knife into another man's wrist. No doubt he will have a good and sufficient reason, if not he is liable to get a government job and free board for the winter months.

PATRICK'S TRIAL TODAY.

Famous Case Will Come Again Before Courts.

(Special to The Times.)

New York, Nov. 29.—Albert T. Patrick, the convicted murderer of William Marsh Rice, whose long and persistent fight for freedom has attracted the world's attention, will appear in the appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn today on a writ of habeas corpus obtained through his counsel. Patrick argued his own case in the same court a few months ago and a decision was rendered against him.

BIG FIGHT ON TODAY.

Alabama Voting on Total Prohibition.

(Special to The Times.)

New York, Nov. 29.—A special election will be held in Algbama today to vote on the adoption or rejection of a prohibition amendment to the State Constitution. The fight between the prohibitionists and the anti prohibitionists has been an extremely hitter one and the result of the election is awaited with general interest because of the effect it may have on the progress of the temperance movement in other States.

YOUTH ON TRIAL.

For Murder of a Young Lady in Boston.

(Special to The Times.)

Boston, Mass., Nov. 29.—The case of James M. Harmon, jr., who is charged with the murder of Miss Maud Hartley a year ago will be called for trial today in the court at East Cambridge. Young Harmon and Miss Hartley, who was still in her teens, lived in Somerville and had been playmates and friends since childhood. On the morning of the tragedy Harmon laid in wait for his victim and shot and killed her as she was about to board a car on her way to work. It was not known at the time that any serious love affair existed between the two and no adequate motive has ever been advanced for the killing. It is believed that a plea of insanity will be made by the defence.

HE TRIED TO DRIVE

Into the River and Was Put in the Cells Over Sunday.

The police got a drunk on Saturday night who tried to drive down Simcoe street and across the C.P.R. spar line into the river. He had a beautiful jag and had no idea of where he was going or what he was doing. Had he got across the tracks he would have dropped over the embankment into the deep channel. He spent the night and all day Sunday in the coop and this morning the magistrate will ask him for an explanation.

HAD TO CUT

Its Way Through the Ice on Saturday in Rice Lake.

The steamer Monarch made a trip Saturday morning from Gore's Landing, and as long as the lake and river remains open the trips will be continued. The stout little traveler had considerable difficulty Saturday morning in negotiating the ice in the lake and as a result was an hour and three quarters late. The ice is not very thick, but it covered the lake for a large area according to one of the passengers. It was rather thick in places and the Monarch was compelled to proceed slowly in order to prevent its bow from being torn by the jagged ice. The season is already over two weeks' longer than last season, and as long as the weather permits the vessel will continue working. It was unable to call at Norwood that morning, owing to the ice, but the river was open and the remaining part of the trip was easily made.

THE WEATHER.

Three Thousand Little Folks in Procession to Grand Opera House

This Date in History

1803—San Domingo proclaimed its independence.
1830—The last Polish revolution commenced at Warsaw.
1878—Louis Antoine Godey, who published the first magazine exclusively for women, died in Philadelphia. Born in New York, June 6, 1804.
1838—Mexico declared war against France.

Big Crowd at Grand Opera House Last Night

Notwithstanding the inclement weather and the multiplicity of meetings during the day there was a very large audience in the opera house at 8.30 last night. The speech of Mr. W. K. Ireland, a merchant of Owen Sound, was listened to with very marked attention. The fact that he spoke with every assurance of the unqualified success of local option in his own city was greatly appreciated by the immense audience.

Mr. Bengough gave an interesting sketch referring to the increasing demand of the bars for the boys of our cities and the cartoon had a telling effect upon the hearts of the people.

Everybody was delighted with the bright and racy description of conditions in Orillia as outlined briefly by the Rev. J. J. Ferguson, who showed a thorough adquaintance with the affairs in his progressive town.

Scarlet Fever Scourge Makes Big Gap in Home

TRAGEDY IN ONE HOME.

John Strain, aged 7, died November 21st.

James Strain, aged 3, died November 22nd.

Ernest Strain, aged 2 months, died November 24th.

Lizzie Strain, aged 5 years, in hospital.

Millie Strain, aged 3 years, in hospital.

Baby at home with complication of scarlet fever and diphtheria.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—Sorrow in its deepest form afflicts the home of Isaac Strain, at 452 Delaware Ave., Three of his children died this week from scarlet fever, and two more are now in the Isolation Hospital and one is at home with the disease.

Ofcourse the house is quarantined, and the mother and father, with two other children are there. Strain is a laborer, and at present out of employment.

Little Johnnie Strain, aged seven years, died early last Sunday morning.

His brother Jimmie, aged 3 years, died on Monday, and the two rest in the same grave in Prospect cemetery.

When Jimmie died the poor mother collapsed. She gave up all hope, and said all the others would die. When Johnnie died, a double grave had been ordered, for his passing away was a foregone conclusion.

Rev. G. R. Fasken and Mr. Coady, the undertaker, say they endeavored in vain to get a nurse from a charitable institution, although they tried for hours. They communicated with the Health Department, but the telephone service was bad. They wanted to get the other afflicted children into the hospital, but when they did get the Medical Health office they were told that there was not enough accommodation, and that there were already seven cases ahead that could not be cared for.

Baby Earnest Strain, only nine months old, died on Wednesday, and the next day there was another burial. The funeral services were of the most pathetic description in Cody Bros. undertaking establishment.

The other two children were admitted to the Isolation Hospital as soon as Dr. Sheard was made aware of the seriousness of the case. They are Lizzie, aged five, and Millie, aged nine.

Another baby is at home with a complication of diphtheria and scarlet fever.

Miner's Plucky Act to Rescue Comrade

London, Nov. 27.—A miner's gallant rescue of a comrade at the bottom of a pit shaft wasdescribed at an inquest.

A new pit is being opened at Newbiggin, and William Bolton, chargeman sinker, was being lowered down the shaft on the top of the "grab" to ascertain how the pump was dealing with the water in the bottom of the shaft. He was standing on the top of the "grab" holding the chain in both hands. When he had gone down a few yards the chain broke, and Bolton was thrown to the bottom of the shaft.

Arthur Peebles, a fellow-workman, heard a crash in the shaft and saw the "grab" chain flying out of the pit mouth. He solved the problemof how to get to the bottom of the shaft by sliding half way down the steam pipe, and then descending by means of the shaft tubing. He found Bolton badly injured in five feet of water. Bolton was rescued alive, but died on Monday.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable foe children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take.

A Monster Parade in Which Over Three Thousand Scholars Took Part.

At three o'clock the Sunday schools of the city began to move in procession to the Grand Opera House. Headed by the Salvation Army Band in two sections the northern and southern columns proceeded as follows:— Grace Methodist George street Methodist, St. Paul's, Bethany, Gospel Hall, Murray street Baptist, St. Andrew's, Salvation Army, and from the south, St. James, Park street Baptist, Knox and Charlotte street Methodist.

Proceeding along Charlotte street to George street and Opera House, it was soon discovered that the capacity of the Grand would be more than taxed. When every avgilable space was occupied and crowded, the large remaining section comprising four Sunday schools were escorted by the band to Charlotte street hall which was again filled to overflowing, many not being able to gain admission.

Mr E. L. Bengough, Toronto's capable cartoonist gave a most interesting and instructive temperance talk in the Grand Opera House.

At Charlotte street the Rev. J. J. Ferguson, B.D., of Orillia, held the young people in excellent spirit by a happy address and a few sketches from Mr. E. L. Bengough delighted everybody.

It was generally observed that never in the history of Peterborough had such a sight been witnessed.

TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.

Special Preachers in Many of the City Churches.

The world temperance Sunday was celebrated in the city yesterday by exchange of pulpits in many churches and the preaching of temperance sermons. The Rev. J. J. Ferguson of Orillia, preached in George street Methodist church in the morning and in St. Paul's at night. The Rev. E. A. Pearson occupied the pulpit in Murray street Baptist church, the Rev. J. R. Webb was the preacher in St. Andrew's, Mr. W. K. Ireland in Knox church and the Rev. J. G. Potter in St. Paul's.

Confirmation.

On Sunday, Dec. 14th, Rt. Rev. Bishop Reeve of Toronto, will administer the rite of confirmation in St. John's church. The confirmation class will meet on Wednesday night.

A DEATH WARRANT.

Has Been Issued by the Czar Against Airships.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 28.—An imperial edict published today forbids the flying of any airship of any description within a radius of ten miles of St. Petersburg, or near any fortifications in Russia. Venturesome aviators who transgress this edict will be shot without warning.

Thus the Czar puts the official taboo on aviation. The new science has never found favor in Russia, and various repressive measures regarding it have been adopted.

Coming to Peterborough.

Dr. Sam Small who for many years was associated with Sam Jones in world-wide evangelistic work will visit Peterborough a week from tomorrow and will assist in the services in St. Andrew's church and will lecture in the Guild Hall the following Monday night. It is also possible that arrangements will be made for him to speak at a mass meeting in the Grand Opera House.

Buffalo, Nov. 26.—Without any explanation or warning but with a deliberation that made the accomplishment of his murderous purpose simple, Charles Strohl, an employe of a bakery, walked into the reading room of the Buffalo Public Library today, pulled a revolver and shot and instantly killed Franz Stanta, who boarded with Mrs. E. Decola, on Broadway.

Quebec Conservatives Now Want McBride

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Nov. 27.—Of course the sweeping victory of Premier McBride in British Columbia has raised the hopes of the Conservatives of both races, although some people do not look upon the triumph as one that will change in the near future the present order of things at Ottawa.

QUEBEC INTERESTED.

It would be useless, however, to lose sight of the fact that Hon. Richard McBride has certain champions in this province who consider the British Columbia Premier the young Moses who is to lead the Conservatives out of the opposition desert and up into the land of promise. Inthis contingent there are several members of the House of Commons, and one very prominent M. P., who is among the English-speaking Conservatives of this province. It is also to be noted that the same men who are booming Mr. McBride are the same who were shouting for Whitney some months ago.

OBITUARY.

George Scott.

A very sad death occurred just after midnight on Saturday night when George Scott passed away at the Nicholls hospital after a brief attack from pneumonia. The deceased was a moulder and was employed at Peter Hamilton & Co.'s foundry. He was a native of Peterborough, and lived nearly all his life here where he was well known and where he had a large circle of friends. As a workman he was highly regarded by his employers and his untimely demise will be much regretted. The late Mr. Scott who was 43 years of age, is survived by a wife, one son and one daughter. His mother and three brothers and three sisters also survive. The brothers are Rev. John Scott, pastor of Broadview Presbyterian church, Toronto, Robert of Orillia, Leslie of Messina, N. Y., and the sisters are Mrs. John Allen, city; Mrs. Wilson, Spokane, Wash.; and Mrs. Thompson, who lives at home with her mother. To the bereaved family is extended sincere sympathy. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, and interment will take place at Little Lake cemetery.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

Important Gathering in Milwaukee Starts Today.

(Special to The Times.)

Milwaukee, Nov. 29.—Noted leaders in the industrial, financial and labor world will assemble in Milwaukee for the third annual convention of the National Society for the promotion of Industrial Education. Prominent manufacturers, financiers, and labor chiefs are interested in the movement and all sections of the country will be represented at the gathering.

Heaviness at Pit of the Stomach

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a weighty sensation in my stomach, and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs." The above letter comes from Mrs. P. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Roseman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

TRUST THE PEOPLE.

Brantford Expositor: "Trust the people" seems to be an accepted principle in Brantford. This year we have referendums on the Collegiate, Market and Hospital issues, and before long the local option question will be submitted." Why not trust the people in national affairs also? Why not refer the proposal to create a navy to the electors and let them settle it?

EXPERIMENTAL UNION.

The program for the 31st annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union have been published and distributed. The meeting will be held at Agricultural College, Guelph, the first three days of the Guelph Winter Fair, viz. Dec. 6, 7, and 8. On Wednesday and Thursday special sessions for the ladies will be held in Massey Hall, O.A.C. One of the officers referred to their union as follows:—

"When we started the co-operative experimental work in Ontario, twenty-four years ago, we believed it to be a move in the right direction. Although it was commenced in a very small way, there being only a dozen experimenters the first year, it has gradually increased in extent and in influence from that time forward. We now have hundreds of men throughout Ontario who have successfully conducted the co-operative experiments on their own farms from five to ten, twelve, or even fourteen years. It is impossible to estimate the influence of this work in overflowing the Agricultural College with students, in bringing twenty-five or thirty thousand farmers to visit the College annually, in doubling the output of the Ontario farms in the past sixteen years, and in the betterment of both the farmers and the farms of Ontario.

Tickling, tight coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very very different than common cough medicines the System, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh nor unsafe. The tender leaves of a mountain lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. These leaves have the power to relax the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for baby's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babe. Test it should not fail by all dealers.

Woman's World

A TRIBUTE TO GENIUS.

Envoys of Many Nations Honor Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe stirred a brilliant assemblage in the Metropolitan Opera House, in New York city, during the Hudson-Fulton celebration by reading the poem composed by her and dedicated to the occasion which brought together the envoys of many nations.

Although Mrs. Howe is more than ninety years old, the poem and her recitation showed that she is still mentally and physically vigorous.

She stood alone in the center of the stage, and when she began to read her poem in a firm, clear voice the great gathering also stood.

The tribute which her bearers paid to Mrs. Howe was impressive. Although the applause was deafening, there was a certain note of reverence and respect, and there were tears in the eyes of the aged woman when she acknowledged the homage of great men of many nations.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE, AGED NINETY.

Here is Mrs. Howe's poem:

FULTON.

By JULIA WARD HOWE.

From Collier's. Reprinted by permission.)

A river flashing like a gem,
Crowned with a mountain diadem,
Invites an unaccustomed guest
To launch his shallop on her crest.
A pilgrim whose exploring mind
Must leave his tardy pace behind—
"My bark creeps slow; the world is vast.
How shall its space be overpassed?"

Responsive to his cry appears
A visionary, young in years,
Commissioned with prophetic brain
The mystic problem to explain—
"Where fire and water closest blend,
There find a servant and a friend."

Yet many a moon must wax and wane,
With sleepless nights and days of pain,
Pleading a monarch's court before,
Shrewd processes and study sore,
Ere on the silver tide shall float,
Swifter than thought, young Fulton's boat.

And not alone for Hudson's stream
Avails the magic power of steam.
Blessings of unimagined worth
Its speed shall carry round the earth.
Knowledge shall on its pinions fly,
Nor land nor race in darkness lie.
Commerce her hoards shall freely bring
To many an urgent summoning.
And Want and Wealth in sundered lands
Shall closely clasp redeeming hands,
While master minds new gospels span,
The holy brotherhood of man.

Rest, Fulton, in thine honored grave.
Remembered with the wise and brave.
Thy message visits every sea,
Herald of benefits to be.
So nearly may our world relate
The mighty movements of her fate,
So Doom and Dangers wide apart
Appeal to every human heart.

And, as one sun doth compass all
That shall arise or may befall,
One flat on creation's night
Bestowed the blessed boon of light,
So shall all life one promise fill
For Freedom, Justice and Good Will.

Mary Harriman a Country Girl.

Mary Harriman, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, has as keen an instinct for guarding the cents as her father demonstrated in his business career. As the manager of the 30,000 acre farm in Arden, N. Y., she works with an eye to profit. The responsibility of the farm is not new to her. For several years she practically held control, her father seldom interfering and then doing little more than offering a suggestion. Harriman was proud of his daughter's talent for management. They were a familiar sight driving together over the farm, Harriman, as a rule, holding the reins over one of his fast trotters. Miss Harriman cares more for her farm than for society. She is essentially a country girl. Society never has attracted her, and there is little likelihood it will gain her interest now. She is a keen judge of a horse and seldom gets the worst of a trade.

A Nervous Face.

Do not neglect the nervous face. When a child grimaces or twitches there is trouble ahead. The sooner it is taken in hand the less probability there will be of chronic grimacing or, worse yet, St. Vitus' dance. Frequently this twitching begins when the child is very young; sometimes it arises from older people foolishly laughing at the little one's contortions, and they are kept up until they become a nervous affection.

Do Not Use Creosote.

Creosote should never be put into a hollow tooth for toothache. It relieves the pain, but in time destroys the substance of the tooth. Leave creosote to expert use.

"Rita's" Methods.

There is this curious feature regarding the work of that popular English novelist, Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys, known to the world as "Rita." She only needs a title for a book, and that serves as a plot. The characters evolve themselves. "Peg the Rake" was suggested by a chance remark of her husband, who is an Irishman. "Rita" took the three little words to heart, and created the wild, irresistible Peg, whose doings have entertained so many thousands. A similar remark, too, led to the title of "The Pointing Finger" — one of "Rita's" most dramatic stories, which has been added to the Newnes' Sixpenny Fiction Novels. It is a book quite different to both sexes.

MENDING CLOTHES.

How to Make the Stern Man's Garments Last Longer.

Lots of little things may be done to make a man's garments last longer and look better than if he has no womankind to care for him and his wardrobe. A man's clothes are expensive and usually well made, but the best tailoring in the world can't prevent buttons coming off or coats wearing shiny at the seams.

Now, every man has a theory about the way a button should be sewed on. He knows it should have a "neck," and nothing will persuade him that his women folk share this knowledge. He is therefore firmly convinced that if he sewed the buttons on they would never come off. He wouldn't believe it if you told him that the fault lay not in omitting to give the button a "neck," but in neglecting to finish it off properly after the neck had been twisted. At least half a dozen firm stitches are needed to do this well.

If trousers fray at the edge and it is necessary to turn up a slightly deeper hem, open the hem out all around, brush it and soap it on the wrong side. This makes it set well, giving it a firm ironed appearance. Of course it is necessary after slip stitching the hem to press on the wrong side with a damp cloth between the cloth and the iron.

Shiny seams and shoulders must be sponged gently with warm water to which a little ammonia has been added. Sponging with cold tea will do wonders toward restoring a black suit. Inking the seams is a time honored method which cannot be recommended, as the ink is apt to leave stains and noticeable marks.

When putting away clothes brush them thoroughly and hang them out in the sun for eight hours. Repeat the brushing process. The object of exposing them to the sunlight is to cause any moth eggs in the fabric to hatch, and then the young caterpillars are easily dislodged by the second brushing. Having done this, put the suit or whatever it may be away, with some moth preventive, taking care to place the preventive especially down the front of the vest, on the lapels of the coat or anywhere grease is most likely to be.

When darning large holes in underwear place a piece of fine net under and extending a half inch each side of the tear. Herringbone over the joint with half the stitch on the webbing and half on the garment itself. When the ribbing is quite worn out it may be replaced by the special ribbing sold at most outfitters.

Men's gloves should be mended with wax thread—not silk, as that cuts. Use No. 40 cotton drawn across a piece of beeswax. Be sure to finish off the ends carefully.

Lastly, do all these things in time. Don't wait to have your attention called to them. He doesn't want to be reminded before starting out to business, and your business, equally important, if not so well defined, lies in just these little things, which make all the difference between a comfortable, happy man and a neglected one.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

A few shreds of candied orange peel will give a delicious flavor to a bread pudding.

Always use lard to grease your cake pans, as the salt in the butter causes it to stick to the pans.

It is better to wipe over meat with a wet cloth than to immerse it in water or let water run over it.

A sponging with a solution of one part ammonia to ten parts of water is said to brighten the colors in a faded carpet.

Don't light the kitchen fire unless there is water in the boiler. If not, the rush of cold water is liable to crack the boiler.

If you want to keep your desserts on the top of the ice place a newspaper over the ice and your dishes never slip off or tip over.

Select a dozen or so of the smoothest and largest splints from the new broom and lay them away to use in testing cake when it is baking.

Don't fill an oil or any other kind of stove or lamp when it is lighted. This seems superfluous advice, but with the coming of cool weather cannot be too often repeated.

When one's foot is slightly injured and the bedclothes add to the discomfort a small hatbox placed in the bed is found useful. The foot can be slipped into it, and the box supports the weight of the covers.

To disinfect a room dissolve gum tragacanth in water, put strips of paper into it and strip all places where the fumes are liable to escape. Water quickly dissolves this glue, making it easy to remove the paper afterward. Possibly muslin strips would prove much better for the purpose.

Cold bluefish, or, in fact, almost any good cold fish, except coarse fish, such as salt cod, may be utilized in a salad. Season with plenty of salad dressing, tiny slices of young onions and minced parsley. Serve upon a bed of lettuce. A few peas and any leftover vegetables may be used to advantage in such a salad if they are cut into small dice.

Bran Bath Bags.

Take a pound and a half of new bran, three-quarters of a pound of almond meal, eight ounces of powdered orris root and five ounces of shaved castile soap.

Make muslin bags five or six inches square and put in three tablespoonfuls of the mixture. The quantity given above will fill a dozen and a half bags.

The bran bags add delightful refreshment to the bath.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the heart and kidneys. The old-fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is sadly wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or failing nerves, of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days' test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

Clearing Sale of China and Glassware commences this morning at Times Bookstore.

Get Well First

Don't risk even a penny—until health first returns.

And I mean just exactly that. I am the one physician who says to the sick "Get well at my own pocket, not for your health first if it fails to bring you help." For 20 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively planted in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and unproven medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative. When the Stomach nerves, or the Heart or Kidney nerves fail, these sick organs lose their vitality. Dr. Shoop's Restorative brings them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money until health returns. Then Pay. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely provided. Just write me first for an order. This will save delay and disappointment.

If desirable call Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but all are not advertised to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line now—for I have appointed an honest and responsible druggist in almost every community, everywhere, to loan my test bottles, my way. Tell me which medicine to the sick. Tell me which book you desire. The book below will surely open up new and helpful hope to those who are not well. Send coupon and get it free to consult me today you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice. My best effort is yours for the asking. Simply plan. My best effort to surely restore you simple health, so write me today, while you think of it, how, while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, and, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or rolling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs Far Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars!" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting or personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to ask for information with the only thing I have to give is real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. S. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm, I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No motion was ever undertaken in the matter.

For Rough Fingers.

The bane of the average sewer or embroiderer is the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wollahra Point, which is now one of the choice harbor-side residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru caressed their galleon on the beach at Woollahra Point.

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Cure Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. And Preventics are so safe and harmless. No Quinine, nothing harsh nor sickening. Fine for feverish restless children. Box of 48 at 25c. Sold by all dealers.

FIFTY YEARS A WRITER

HOW MISS BRADDON CAME TO WRITE NOVELS.

As a Girl, Popular Authoress Was Always Scribbling—Was Offered $50 For First Novel—Wrote First Instalment of Lady Audley's Secret Overnight — Has Retained First Book Ever Since.

To have delighted the world for half a century with an unceasing stream of fiction; to have published a novel for every year of her long life; and to be able to entrance the readers of to-day as she entranced their grandparents in the middle of last century is the proud record of Miss Braddon, who at seventy-two years still to possess the secret of perennial youth.

Much water has run under the bridges of her beloved Thames since Mary Elizabeth Braddon laboriously wrote her first story by its banks at Chiswick in a child's round hand and between pencilled lines. The love of the pen was in the little one's blood; for her father, a London solicitor, had made "Rough Robin" famous in the world of sportsmen, and her mother was saturated with a passion for literature. And so Mary Elizabeth took to writing as naturally as a duck to the water.

As a schoolgirl, with her home still by the Thames at Barnes, she was always scribbling in her exercise books; and, under the eyes of her teachers, she furtively pencilled quite a long story, "The Old Armchair," which made her famous among her schoolfellows. But alas! for years she could not thaw the hard hearts of the editors. All the literary doves she sent out to them came back to her ark with the exasperating regularity of clockwork.

One day, however, when she was emancipated from the schoolroom, she awoke to find a letter awaiting her which revolutionised her world. It was from a Beverley printer, who had seen a sketch by her in a Yorkshire paper, and who offered her the sum of $50 to write a story for him, which should "combine the humor of Dickens with the plot-construction of G. W. M. Reynolds." It was a large order and a small guerdon, but the girl was transported with delight.

Before she was many days older she had transported herself and her mother to a Beverley farmhouse, and was reeling off the masterpiece of Dickens cum Reynolds at a thousand words an hour, weaving her plot as she rode about the Yorkshire lanes. She boldly christened her story, "Three Times Dead; or The Secret of the Heath"; and it was a very proud moment in her life when she handed the last sheets of the manuscript to the printer's boy. The book certainly did not make the printer's fortune. But renamed "The Trail of the Serpent," it had a new and vigorous lease of life.

Still fame refused to knock at her door, but not for long. A little later Mr. Maxwell, a publisher, projected a new magazine, the great feature of which was to be a serial for a famous writer. To his dismay, however, the serial, which had been extensively advertised, was not forthcoming at the proper time. Mr. Maxwell was in despair, until a letter came, signed "M. E. Braddon," offering to write a serial. "Too late," was his answer to the young authoress when she called on him. "But what is the latest day you can give me?" she persisted. "Well," said Mr. Maxwell, "if the manuscript of the opening chapters is on my breakfast-table to-morrow morning that would be in time."

Next morning Mr. Maxwell found the first chapters of "Lady Audley's Secret" among his correspondence; his venture was saved, and Miss Braddon was on the high road to fame and fortune. Such was the romantic genesis of one of the most popular books ever written.

Then followed in quick succession "Aurora Floyd," "Eleanor's Victory," and "Henry Dunbar," all eagerly welcomed by thousands of admiring readers; and Miss Braddon took her place, which she has ever since retained, in the foremost rank of the writers of fiction. Since these early triumphs there has been scarcely a year when she has not given the world at least one of her fascinating novels; in some years she has published two and in others three; until her fiction-children now number more than her own years.

And Miss Braddon's life has been as happy as it has been busy. For nearly forty years her home has been in a fine old Georgian house, once the abode of the Bishop of Lichfield, at Richmond—for nothing can wean her from the river she loves so well. Here, surrounded by her birds and dogs, and her wonderful collection of china and books, she has led an ideal life, writing her books in the peace of her beautiful garden or in her study, entertaining her friends with a charming hospitality, and devoted to her home and her three sons, all of whom have made a name in the world of letters.

In her younger days she might be seen almost every morning cantering in Richmond Park on Kaiser, her white-footed bay, her eyes sparkling and face flushed with health and exercise; and even to-day there are few horsewomen in England more graceful or expert. For the rest, she spends her leisure in gardening, music, and study, of all of which she is passionately fond. A simple, gracious life, spent in womanly ways remote from the glare of the limelight—that is what Miss Braddon loves, and it is this that has preserved her youth and powers unimpaired into the 'seventies.

As for her methods of work, she carefully maps out her books to the smallest details before putting pen to paper; then, with her writing-pad on her knees, she fills sheet after sheet with her small handwriting, clear as print, with a wonderful rapidity, never pausing for a word and rarely making a correction. From a thousand to fifteen hundred words an hour is her normal rate of production. She stops work at luncheon-time.

THE LAWS OF CASTE.

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Behar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and in other parts of Europe. In notifying this fact to the Kayasthas Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas. Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, and that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever.

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas received in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayaschit" as translated by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without invoking the Supreme Being as inculcated by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the customs of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you will live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry, and shall have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

THE WAY OF IT.

A man and woman ride
Within a street car cooped.
But if one be not fair,
With age or toiling stooped,
We notice in the car
That these they will be grouped:

Him.
Her.

A married pair go out.
And in an auto race
He has an eye for aught
Save tearing holes through space,
And therefore we observe
'Tis thus each takes a place:

Him.
Her.

A youth and maiden ride
Upon a winter day.
Their sleigh skims lightly on,
And all with frost is gay.
And we observe they sit
In just about this way:

Him. Her.

—New York Times

An Old Story.

"Chesty says that his boy is wonderfully smart."

"Yes, but Chesty ought to know better than to build any experience on that. I can remember when Chesty's father said the same thing about him."

Tribesmen Active.

The Indian Northwest frontier is presently in an unsettled state, owing to the activity of the Khostwal tribesmen. The border police have been strengthened as the Khostwal men recently made an attack on Batochkil in the Kurram, and lost several men killed and wounded in the fray. Owing to their reverse they have apparently collected in some numbers, and are bent on revenge. The disturbed conditions in the neighborhood of Bannu still continue. As bands of the Khostwals hang about, the Tochi road to Miranshah has to be picketed, whenever officers are traveling to or from Bannu, and escorts have to be provided for officers of the militia journeying from post to post. A sense of insecurity is felt also in British territory since the mail tonga for Kohat was attacked fifteen miles from Bannu. On that occasion the Naib Tahsildar of Miranshah was carried off, but released by the raiders owing to the hot pursuit of the border military police. The tonga was carrying English mails, but fortunately none of the bags were taken. Only one bag of Indian letters was stolen, and this was recovered.

Getting Rich In Australia.

What thrift and energy may do, even for the farm laborer in Australia, is well illustrated by a case which recently came before the Wagga Land Board. One of the applicants for a selection was a lad between 18 and 19 years of age. It was shown in evidence that while working as a farm laborer the applicant had saved sufficient money to buy farm horses, costing in the aggregate $350, and that he still had $300 cash in hand. During harvest time he had received $9 per week and his keep for driving five horses in a stripper; while ploughing he received $6.25, and for the rest of the year $5 per week and keep. A member of the board remarked that if the Premier would have a report of this case printed and circulated in England, there would be no difficulty in securing desirable young men of the farm-laboring class as immigrants; the trouble would then be to keep them away. One resident of the district intimates that he could place at once ten young men of this type at $6.25 per week.

Her First Part.

Miss Wynne-Matthison, who is taking a leading part in the new Adelphi piece, "The Great Divide," found her first efforts to gain a footing on the ladder of theatrical fame in London far from encouraging. It is true that she recited and acted as an amateur in Shakespearian and other roles from the age of ten, but when she came to seek for professional engagments she found she could get nothing but a one-word part in a musical comedy that was thirteen years ago. Since then Miss Matthison, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy, has achieved much, and holds the distinction of being Sir Henry Irving's last leading lady. She is probably the last woman to whom he ever spoke, for she was playing Fair Rosamond to his Becket on the night of his tragic death.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realise that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

An Amphibious Watch.

Mr. John Norris, a former chief constable of Coventry, whose death is just announced, was the possessor of a watch on which was engraved a view of the Tay Bridge, and which bore the following inscription: "The Tay Bridge disaster, December, 1879. This watch lay in the River Tay for six weeks; it stopped at the time of the accident, remained silent many days, started again, and worked nine hours under water." The watch had been lent to Mr. Beynon, an artist, of Cheltenham, who was drowned in the disaster. A charge of dynamite was afterwards used to raise the bodies from the river, and this doubtless started the watch again.

Suiting Her Convenience.

Count D'Orsay, on his first visit to England, chanced to be seated at dinner next to Lady Holland. That remarkable and many-sided woman was in one of her imperious humors. She dropped her napkin; the count picked it up gallantly. Then her fan, then her fork, then her glass and, as often, her neighbor stooped and restored the lost article.

At last, however, the patience of the youth gave way and on her dropping her napkin again he turned and called one of the footmen behind him:

"Put my plate on the floor," said he; "I will finish my dinner there; it will be so much more convenient to Lady Holland."

WHY THESE SHARES ARE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for the necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY SHORT CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the ones who had built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all its ups in the world, furnished the best guarantee for a safe investment and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and after careful consideration, it has been decided to offer to the public an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

The company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is unfortunately real and regular, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high quality guaranteed proves the stability of the manufactures to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits should be consequently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the capacity has enabled the company at least to warrant the distribution of a 10 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 32 provides that a dividend if per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in the year in that account, will equally pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

WHERE WOMEN WILL RULE.

Colony to Be Founded in Australia Where Mere Man Will Not Count.

English bachelors and benedicts are watching with a good deal of sardonic interest for the outcome of an experiment about to be tried in Australia. It is a colony where no man will be allowed to hold a rood of land. The whole thing will be of women, by women and for women. Mrs. Emily Crawford, president of the Householders' League of England, is one of the leading spirits in the movement, and another is a woman doctor, Miss Hetty Sawyer. Mrs. Crawford, by the way, was one of the judges of women's work at the Chicago World's fair.

The new colony has a fine situation, on high ground facing the sea, about forty miles from Albany. There is a small lake on the land, and there are mineral springs of much local repute for rheumatism and gout. The women are going to establish a resort after the plan of the German "Bad," only no gambling will be allowed. They count on making this a paying thing, and a "Bad" owned, run and inhabited by women ought to be attractive to bachelors with gout and large pocketbooks.

Some one asked Mrs. Crawford why she and her colleagues went away to Australia to try their experiment.

"It's merely a question of the parliamentary vote," she said. "In England there's no security for women's financial enterprises. We pitch our tents in Australia because there women have the franchise. We want the protection and advantage which this affords."

Even women with husbands are excluded from ownership, though they may live in the colony if they like and bring their husbands and also their children, for whom, by the way, there will be schools. To the everlasting confusion of those who say that the enfranchisement of women would be a deathblow to domesticity, schools for teaching girls household arts will be in the majority.

THE ROSARY.

I will not set myself up as a judge of poetry, says Schumann-Heink in Bohemia Magazine, but the writer of "The Rosary" furnished the material for a great song. He made his picture clear, told his story with strength and directness. His first verse is narrative, the second contemplative, and then comes the climax. He moves toward it surely and strongly, reaching an impassioned height in that agonizing cry "Sweetheart!" That is a poem to wake an echo in every heart that has suffered the pain of loss. And what human heart is without that wound?

The song is so familiar I need not describe how Nevin has expressed this story of an aching heart in music. But if you study the melodic outline of the song it may surprise you to discover the connection that exists between the poet's imagery and the musical form. All of us do not "tell our beads," as the saying is, but we know that the rosary is a string of small beads, with a larger bead strung between each set of ten smaller ones. Now note the composer's phrase, how it slips along in eight notes, just as the small beads would slip through our fingers. And at the end of every such phrase comes a long note and a pause. This is repeated over and over after the manner of the pious devotees of the rosary. Now observe the melodic outline of the climax on the line "To kiss the cross—sweetheart—to kiss the cross." The first part is sung on one note. The voice goes up and then down on the word "sweetheart," and the concluding phrase is sung on one note, as was the beginning. The composer has actually made the sign of the cross in his notation to convey the idea of the crucifix, which the devotee of the rosary kisses in concluding his devotion.

I had sung the song a great deal before I noticed this, and I have often wondered since how many of those who hear the song are conscious of it.

Has Cupid Shot His Death?

Girls of the marriageable age are "entirely selfish"—at least, that is what a French scientist, Leon de Nerville, declares. He bases his conclusion upon the answers to 300 letters which he sent to as many girls, asking them if they desired marriage—if so, why so; if not, why not.

"Almost without exception," says the professor tragically, "they ignored the idea of love in their answers. It is surprising, repellent. Girls of the age for men to love are entirely selfish."

Twenty-six of the girls who said they wanted to get married wanted it that they might have greater freedom and go unchaperoned. Seventeen thought husbands would give them a chance to travel. One hundred and six wanted their own homes. Eleven wanted to escape their fathers' homes. Eight said if they had husbands they would be free to amuse themselves. Just three looked forward to having children. Two gave love as a reason for wishing marriage. Of the six who did not want marriage three gave ill health as a reason. Two hated men, and one wanted a career.

The 300 letters were evenly divided among French, English, German and American girls. Not one French girl used the word love; to them marriage was a means of escaping chaperonage. The English, too, furnished a large plurality of those who saw in marriage a chance for freedom and pleasure.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A NOBLEMAN'S WEALTH.

How the Duke of Buccleuch Came by His Money.

There are not wanting those who assert that the "Bold Buccleuch," the founder of the wealth owned by the family to-day, was a "bad Buccleuch"; in fact, that he was nothing more or less than a raider, who acquired cattle and land by might without a thought of right. They were stirring times in which he lived, however, and he was no worse, if no better, than hundreds of other English and Scottish noblemen who made sacrifices to uphold their King by warfare, and obtained rewards as best they could.

This much can be said for the founder of the family—he never lacked pluck and a bold front. As Sir Walter Scott he carried on a predatory warfare against the English, and on the conclusion of a peaceful arrangement between Queen Elizabeth and James he was sent to England as a hostage by the latter. When brought before the haughty Queen Bess, she imperiously demanded of him how he had dared to kill so many of her soldiers. But for once the proud Queen met her match, for the ready answer came, "What is there that a man dare not do?" Struck by the reply, she turned to a lord-in-waiting and said, "With ten thousand such men our brother of Scotland might shake the firmest throne in Europe." The "brother" alluded to, of course, was James VI., who, on becoming James I. of Great Britain, lost little time in making Sir Walter Lord Scott of Buccleuch for his gallant deeds.

This was in 1606, and it was the first of a long list of titles which was subsequently to come to the Buccleuchs. Much land had been acquired by the bold Buccleuch in Haddington, Berwick, Selkirk, and Dumfries, but it was not until 1663 that the head of the family was created a duke. The story of how this honor came to him makes interesting reading. In 1651 Francis of Buccleuch died leaving two daughters, Mary and Anna, Mary being the elder by four years. The latter died, however, and Anna, who as heiress to the Buccleuch estate was regarded as a great matrimonial prize, was married to an illegitimate son of Charles I., who had created him Duke of Monmouth.

Immediately after the marriage the King created the Duke of Monmouth Duke of Buccleuch, with the Earldom of Dalkeith, and although he was afterwards executed for rebellion the titles were unaffected, being held jointly by his wife, and came to her descendants.

It was by the marriage of Francis, second Duke of Buccleuch, to the daughter and heiress of the Duke of Queensberry that the immense estate of Dumfries, amounting at the present time to 283,514 acres, were secured by the Buccleuch family. Other acres were acquired by fortunate marriages, until the total swelled to close on 460,000, which is the number of acres owned by the Duke of Buccleuch at the present time. The annual rental of his estates is £ of which amount £ is derived from the

The biggest potatoe in the world has just been heard from. It was grown in Haliburton county by Mr. Wm. Watt of Cardiff, and weighs 3¼ pounds now and when taken out of the ground it tipped the scales at 3½ pounds. Another man in the same vicinity has 59 potatoes that weigh 90 pounds.

Great Crop of Tobacco.

Kentucky's barley and other grades of tobacco in the 1909 crop will be the largest quantity ever known, nearly 400,000,000 pounds. This was announced by those Louisville banks which have been gathering figures from their correspondence in the various counties where the weed is grown. The barley crop they announce amounts to 200,000,000 pounds alone. Prices this year per pound average from 12 to 14 cents, with 10 cents and 20 cents as minimum and maximum respectively.

Paid the Costs.

The case of the four young men charged with creating a disturbance in a church at Dummer, came up before Magistrate Edmison. His worship was of the opinion that some disturbance had been raised, but as the young men were of good standing and respectable, he thought it would not be advisable to register a conviction against them. They were accordingly allowed to go on payment of costs. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defendants and Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the complainant.

Hastings Iron Mine.

A big mining deal took place last week which should have an important bearing on the future of this part of Hastings County, when Mr. Wm. Rankin of Hermon disposed of his iron property for the tidy little sum of $100,000. The purchasers are a syndicate of Pittsburg capitalists. Mr. Arthur Coe of Madoc was associated with Mr. Rankin in the ownership of the mine which is said to be one of the best in Canada. The price which was paid for it would indicate that it was not brought with a view to speculation but will likely be developed at once and made a shipping proposition.—Hastings Star.

Canal Notes.

The dredge Little Lake is making good progress eating her way up to the bridge. She is digging down to the solid rock bottom so that the cribwork can be put in for a coffer dam, the cribwork will be used instead of the concrete base. The work from the bridge up to the bridge has to be done by hand as the dredge cannot go under the bridge, and though this is a cold job good progress is being made with the aid of a cable and drag hitched on to the steam derrick. The canal engineering staff have moved up to Rice Lake where most of them will put in the season surveying the Lake. They have been laying guide marks all season and as soon as the lake freezes over will commence sounding to complete the survey.—Hastings Star.

Lakefield School.

A pleasant event took place at the public school on Wednesday afternoon when the scholars presented Mr J. L. Garvin, the retiring principal, with a handsome silk umbrella, gold mounted and suitably engraved, accompanied by an address. Mr. Garvin was completely taken by surprise but thanked the donors for their kindly remembrance.

Mr. W. B. Harvey, assistant principal of the Omemee High School, has been engaged as principal of the Lakefield Public and Continuation School, in place of Mr. J. L. Garvin, who resigned to accept the position of Mathematical master in the Penetanguishene High School. Miss Gregory of Exeter, Ont., has been engaged to fill the position until January 1st, when Mr. Harvey will take charge.

Game Warden Busy.

Constable Jones, of Fenelon Falls, having reason to believe that illegal trapping and shooting was being done at Burnt River, went out there to investigate. In one place he visited he found four muskrat skins, and were confiscated. As game warden during the hunting season Mr. Jones was empowered to impose fines, and he accordingly taxed the possessor of the twenty-one pelts, $15, and the other man $10, with costs in each case of 45c. These are light penalties, considering what might have been inflicted had the officer wished to be severe, but they will serve as a warning. Future offenders will be almost sure to get a much heavier fine if caught, as both Constable Jones and the department are determined to enforce the law.

Two More Fighting Wonders for Britain

Britain Lays the Keel of longest Man-of-War Ever Constructed—It will have 70,000 Horse-Power

London, Nov. 29.—The keel plates of two monster warships, the Orion, the improved Dreadnought battleship, and the Lion, the cruiser battleship, were laid today at Portsmouth and Devonport, respectively. The built of the material for both vessels is ready and the arrangements have been made for their completion within two years.

The construction of the Lion will mark a notable stage in the evolution of the cruising battleship. She will have 70,000 horse power, while her immediate predecessor had 45,000. She will displace 21,000 tons, and her length will be 700 feet, constituting her the longest man-of-war ever laid down.

What is technically known as her "run of deck" indicates an intention to equip the cruiser battleship with ten 12-inch guns, thus placing her as regards armament on an equality with the latest battleships.

She will have probably a nominal speed of 27 knots an hour.

Scotch Lecture Given in St. John's Church

Rev. Mr. McLean of Cobourg, was greeted by a very large audience in St. John's church last night when he delivered a brilliant lecture, which abounded with interest, on Scotland. The reverend gentleman is a Scotchman and one who has traveled all over the country and is thoroughly acquainted with all parts of the country. Several selections in Scotch were given by Mr. Morphet and Mr. Geo. Chandler, and a piano selection by Mr. Cameron. Mr. D. Hughes-Chalmers occupied the chair and with a display of his usual wit introduced the lecturer.

Rev. Mr. McLean opened with several very laughable Scotch stories and then briefly outlined the history of his native country. The lecturer then took the large and appreciative audience on a personally conducted tour of Scotland and each view that was shown was briefly described. Talking up the religious life of the Scotch the speaker showed that it was really the Scotch who had evangelized the English. The Episcopal church in Scotland today, however, was a large and rapidly growing organization.

In conclusion the speaker paid a high tribute to Rev. Canon Davidson, who he succeeded as rector at Cobourg. He said that after twenty years the results of the good work done by the Rev. Canon Davidson still lingered.

A vote of thanks was tendered the Rev. Mr. McLean, and the evening came to a close by singing "Auld Syne."

RECKLESS LUXURY.

Champion Prize Fighters Spend Their Money Easily.

The sad death of Willie Britt, Stanley Ketchel's young manager, was partly due to sudden wealth easily acquired. Britt, always a soldier of fortune, brought Ketchel East last spring and arranged two battles with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, which netted about $25,000. Of this amount the reckless young manager received nearly a third and with it he proceeded to cut a wide swath. Nothing was too good for him. Late suppers with an abundance of wine, automobiles, fine clothes and other luxuries soon put a crimp in the bank roll, and when Ketchel failed to knock Papke out inside of twenty rounds Britt lost $2,500 in wagers—all that was left, Britt borrowed more money and bet every dollar of it on Ketchel to beat Jack Johnson. When the big negro won by a knockout Britt was penniless, his vision of a great fortune was gone and his heart was broken. It was the same old story. Squandered wealth earned in pugilism proved to be a fatal weakness.

It has often been said that no persons supported by the public live in such reckless luxury as star pugilists and their closest associates. A great fighter may reign only for a few years at the head of his class, but during that period he is generally a high roller and goes the route. He has a far more rugged constitution than the rich man's son who was never meant for hard work, for he is compelled to undergo a course of training for a strenuous battle every now and then which provides temporarily renewed physical endurance.

"If the ordinary man lived like some of these pugilists," said a veteran trainer the other day, "he'd be a physical wreck in less than a year. A majority of these fighters, however, do a certain amount of daily exercise to keep their weight down and in that way they do not feel the effects of a spree.

"If the wise pugilist gets a heavy cold what does he do? Retire to bed like most men? Not much. He does a heavy sweater and goes out for a run on the road. He simply sweats it out if he can, and if he can't, why he is then forced to seek medical aid like an ordinary individual. That seldom proves to be the case, however, for open air exercise and cold baths generally do the work.

THE CONFLICTING ISSUES.

The question of the imposition of a small revenue tariff upon British imports became a question of practical politics about the time Joseph Chamberlain resigned from the Balfour government to give the propaganda the strength of his powerful and undivided attention, says the Ottawa Journal.

And the question of the existence, or amendment of the House of Lords becomes a practical issue the moment the Peers vote to reject the Lloyd-George budget, now sent to them for approval.

The Liberal party of England is lined up solidly against all proposals leading to the imposition of a custom tariff upon the British Isles. And the Liberals will be equally solidly lined up against the House of Lords should that body reject the present budget, as it is now apparent will be done.

It is unfortunate that these two questions should be mixed up and equally to the fore in the coming general election, for while the opposition to a British tariff, and the opposition to the House of Lords as at present constituted is largely synonomous, the supporters of a British tariff and the supporters of the House of Lords in its present form by no means coincide.

Therefore, Lloyd's offer of three to one that the present government will be returned to power probably represents fairly accurately the balance of probability, and while this prospective Liberal victory will be hailed as a defeat for the British tariff party, it will simply mean that the present British Government and its party had the good fortune to be united on the two vital questions upon which the issues of the day have forced the parties to take a stand, while the opposition, united in opposing the Liberals as a government, were more or less divided among themselves on the two great issues of the election.

STEAM PLANT FAILED.

Winnipeg Street Railway and Factories are Up Against It.

A city without a good river at its back has a poor chance for permanent and constant power supply. Winnipeg steam plant is no good, as will be seen by the following:—

Winnipeg, Nov. 27.—The prolonged power famine is leading to certain cleavages of the general public to just how limited power available should be doled out and to the general condemnation of the Winnipeg Electric Company which has fallen down so sadly in the emergency. Its much-vaunted reserve steam plant in the city has proven a scrap heap incapable for the most part of getting up steam without risk of blowing the whole works sky high. Twelve to fifteen thousand men are in enforced idleness by the shutting down of the Lac Du Bonnet power plant indefinitely it seems, and to alleviate these, the board of trade is urging the company to devote more of the actual energy it does produce to running mills, elevators and factories.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE."

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure the Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Mayors are Plentiful Deputations are Busy

A number of citizens waited upon Ald. W. G. Morrow yesterday for the purpose of inducing him to stand for be mayoralty at the January election. The Finance Minister is not particularly anxious for the position, but he had not refused to stand. He asked for a few days to consider.

Last week a deputation waited upon Mr. Wm. Langford praying that he would don his war paint again and guide the destines of Peterborough for the next year or two. Mr. Langford is also considering for a few days.

From time to time Ald. H. W. Morgan has been waited upon by friends who admired his course in the council the past few years, and urged him to take up the fling and lead the people into the promise land. Ald. Morgan is not considering. He is working, and when election day arrives he will be found with a strong following.

Ald. Robt. Hicks has been approached by not a few admirers. He had not definitely decided but his friends are anxiously waiting and they claim to have hopes. A three-cornered fight would be very interesting.

Ald. Buller and Ald. Gillespie have their friends who have been after them to enter the fight, but those two aldermen have stated that they would remain in the council for the balance of their term.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.

Whoever stands for the mayoralty it should be understood that all will present to the people a platform on which they will stand during the year. A good lively campaign with several public meetings will do much to arouse the people to a full realization of their position in the world. There are too many drones in Peterborough so far as municipal politics are concerned. These drones are never heard from until the tax collp comes to hand and they have to dip down in their jeans. Then they rush to the press with complains and even some of the papers make a howl about high taxes in one column and howl because there are not more public buildings in another column. A real, hot campaign, and real hot speeches from the candidates would waken the drones and keep them alive in the early stages. They would then understand where the money came from and how it was spent. Peterborough has slept long enough.

Judgment Reserved in the Appeal Case of T. Cavanagh

Yesterday morning a small coterie of those personally interested in the case of the Cavanagh appeal gathered in the judge's chambers to hear the appeal against the magistrate's decision against Mr. T. Cavanagh, whereby Cavanagh was accused and the accusation sustained, of a third offense against the liquor license laws of Ontario.

Several witnesses were heard for the prosecution. The main residue of their evidence was to show that, on the date charged, Mr. Cavanagh passed through his hotel office and took out a flask of whiskey and handed the same to the customers.

Mr. W. H. Moore, at yesterday's trial, acted for the prosecution, and Mr. Jas. Haverson of Toronto, argued for the defence.

After all the various witnesses were heard, Mr. Moore made a strong appeal against quashing the original conviction. Mr. Haverson showed how the two first witnesses against Cavanagh made many discrepancies. How the judge should not, as argued by Mr. Moore, follow the decision made by the magistrate, quoting authorities from a case tried in Nova Scotia to establish his case and in other ways trying to quash the conviction.

His honor said he would give judgement on Saturday next.

HAROLD JARVIS

And Mrs. Shafer Drew a Big Crowd at St. Andrew's.

Harold Jarvis and Mrs. Wyrich-Shafer drew an immense crowd to St. Andrew's church last night. This was the second visit of these two popular entertainers to Peterborough this season and the church was crowded to the doors. The concert was under the auspices of the choir and as a result they will have a good sum to assist in their work. The program was as follows:—

Mrs. Wyrich-Shafer gave the following selections:—"The Flood," by Ian MacLaren; "About Wee Johnnie," by Patterson; "Laddie," "Some Confusing Scotch Words." All were encored and she responded gladly.

Harold Jarvis was in splendid voice, even better than on the previous visit. He gave "The Cameron Men," "The Wee Bit o' Heather," "The Highland Man's Toast," "The Standard on the Braces O' Mar." These also were all encored.

CANADA'S FORESTS.

Stereopticon Views and Lecture in the Council Chambers.

This Tuesday evening, in the City Council Chamber, at eight o'clock sharp, under the auspices of the Peterborough Board of Trade, there will be delivered a lecture, illustrated by stereopticon views, on Canada's Vanishing Forests, and what should be done for their protection. The lecturer will be Mr. James Lawler, who is the secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association. He is sent out by the association for the purpose of showing Canadians by words and pictures the dangers that confront Canada from the ruthless burning and cutting away of her forests. All the civilized countries of the world are increasing their demands for timber. When these demands center on Canada our forests will not last long unless we take measures to perpetuate and develop them. It is for this purpose that this may be done that the lecture is given. Besides the loss to trade from the destruction of the forests, agriculture, navigation and waterpowers are adversely affected, and game disappears, thus removing one of the best sources of revenue and recreation. These developments are being strikingly illustrated all over Canada at the present time and some of the pictures are of a startling character. The lecture is delivered free to the public and ladies as well as gentlemen are invited.

Fell Dead into Arms of Intended Bride

Montreal, Nov. 29.—The tragic death is announced of Max Kert, a young railway contractor, while discussing the date of his marriage with his affianced, Miss Stone, of this city. The deceased is a son of Isaac Kert, a well-known contractor, and but a few days ago returned home after completing a contract of his own on the Canadian Northern in the Quebec district. He is about 33 years of age, and although so young has been successful in amassing about $30,000 out of his work in the past year or two. On Saturday evening after a drive with Miss Stone he was at her home taking some refreshments when he suddenly exclaimed "My God, my heart is bursting!" and a moment later fell dead in the arms of his intended bride.

Weeding Out Process Required for Cattle

After all is said and done those who know the live stock industry agree that the adrest way of improving the live stock market is to improve the quality of stock sent to the market. A uniformly good product, generally, commands a uniformly good price. This rule holds good in connection with live stock. Sometimes lack of supply forces high figures for inferior animals, but this state of affairs is short-lived and unsatisfactory. The general tendency is for inferior stock to depreciate prices for all grades.

There is no reason, therefore, why every farmer who markets live stock should not endeavor to have superior animals. Pure-bred sires of all classes of stock are available at reasonable prices. With due precautions in selection of the same, and a careful weeding out of the progeny from females now on hand there soon would be much improvement in stock marketed that all would be convinced that the market had improved.

Make preparations for doing your part before spring opens.

MONEY IN DAIRY COWS.

Is it not time that all dairy farmers in Canada came to think seriously of what might easily be accomplished by a little, a very little, extra effort? Very few would pass by the opportunity of picking up five or six five-dollar were not difficult. There is a huge sum of money waiting for owners of dairy cows.

Not only is present cash value assured for the application of a little brain power, but a solid and permanent improvement of dairy conditions, a distinct raising of the whole status of dairy farming, a measurable gain in contentment and self-respect, a notable and enviable addition to our reputation among the nations of the world as high-class dairymen would quickly result.

Unfortunately we have to go on record even in these days of widespread and easily dairy knowledge as owning lots of cows that produce only 2,500 or 2,500 pounds of milk during their best six, or seven months. Such cows are no credit to their owners, and such owners scarcely do credit to the dignified title of dairymen. As Canadians we should jealously guard against such a condition of affairs being possible. It is easy to detect those poor cows by recording weights of milk, and it is injurious to any district to retain such wretched specimens—mongrels, not real dairy cows. The queen of the dairy, the select cow will do infinitely better if handled right by men who put dairy intelligence into daily operation.

SPANISH DANCES.

Miss Vera Braugh Amuses the Local Public With Spanish Songs and Dances Adapted from the Spanish.

Yesterday the "Princess," Peterborough's leading place of cheap, clean amusement, was crowded during both afternoon and evening by well pleased audiences. The moving pictures were above, away above the average. They included a Biograph masterpiece entitled "The Restoration," a strong drama, and Edison's latest success entitled "Tragedy and Comedy." Miss Ethel Lawrence, the girl with the bewitching smile, sang to loud applause, and Miss Vera Braugh won a warm spot with the audience by her well rendered Spanish songs and well executed dances. This girl, who has not yet reached the 20-year-old mark certainly has a great career before her. The performance of yesterday will be renewed today. Your girl, your sister or your wife will not be shocked at anything displayed at the Princess.

Counted the Tickets and Delayed the Train

Toronto, Nov. 29.—The C.P.R. train which left Montreal at 9.45 yesterday morning due to arrive at Toronto at 6 p.m., was about 40 minutes late through an unusual cause. Near Peterborough the train was boarded by a representative of the auditor-general's department, who started in to check up the conductor's ticket, first discovering that there were six short. He stated that he would make another check when the train reached Toronto, but the conductor immediately stepped and held up the train until he had rechecked, when everything was discovered to be O.K., and the train then proceeded.

THE WEATHER.

Easterly winds, generally fair, not much change in temperature.

A NORWOOD BOY.

The First Canadian Bishop in China.

Rev. Dr. Wm. C. White will be ordained a bishop in St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, today, St. Andrew's Day. He will be the first Canadian bishop in China. The reverend gentleman was a native of Norwood and he was well known throughout the district. His many friends will rejoice in his excellent and his success.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Shores of the Azores Littered with Wrecks

Many Ships were Destroyed and Many Lives lost in the storms of Saturday and Sunday

Lisbon, Nov. 29.—The shores of the Azores are today littered with the wrecks of ships that were destroyed in the storm that swept the coast on Saturday and Sunday. Estimates of the dead run from 100 to 200. It is known that twenty fishermen were drowned from a single boat that went on to the Santa Maria rocks off the island of Pico.

FRENCH ROADS.

Built By the Nation are the Greatest in the World.

The French national roads form perhaps the finest road system in the world, and both in construction and management they serve as the model for the other French roads. They traverse the country in all directions, connecting the principal places. Most of them run in straight lines, and are planted on both sides with shade trees; they have wide berms at the sides, covered with grass, beyond which are the ditches. Large stone posts of uniform size and shape are placed at each kilometer (five-eighths of a mile), and a smaller stone monuments mark the hectometers (328 feet). The posts are painted white, and the larger ones bear inscriptions indicating the distance between various points. They cross rivers and sometimes valleys, over bridges of the most substantial kind, generally of masonry, many of which rank among the finest works of the kind in the world, and are as handsome as they are substantial.

No encroachments are suffered to intrude upon the width of these roads. They pass through the villages in a great swath, not a sign, or a post, or a cornice, or a doorway being allowed to protect by so much as an inch upon their sacred precints. They pass majestically on, in their full width, typical examples of what they were intended to be—the king's highway.

A friend from home, whom I met in Paris, told me of an adtomobile trip he had taken into the country a day or two before. He said he wished I could see a piece of road they went over; it was as straight as an arrow for miles and miles, was planted with great trees standing on broad margins of lawn. It was a truly wonderful sight; he wished he could direct me to it for it was well worth a visit. The road which had so impressed him was simply a piece of one of the 23,750 miles of national roads. From every height obe may see their long, straight lines of great trees running across the country and disappearing on the horizon.

HAMBURG BELL.

Has Been Sold for $50,000.—She Was Once Bought for $5,000.

John Madden, who brought Hamburg Belle two years ago for $5,000, and sold her the other day for $50,000 to H. M. Hanna of Cleveland, has been in the public eye for some years as the best salesman of thoroughbred horses the world ever saw, but that he should repeat his successes with trotters for working material is a surprise to a good many people who did not know Madden was a first-class judge of trotting horses and their blood lines before he had anything to do with thoroughbreds.

Way back in trotting horse history, Madden, then a youngster, had one of the most prominent trotters in the land, a daughter of Electioneer, on the grand circuit, and sold her for a big price. Then he went over to England where the American trotting stallion Warlock was doing duty as a fullfledged hackney, if the stud bills were to be believed, and brought that horse back home to be sold at a big advance on the purchase price, his blood having become in demand.

So when Madden went to the runners he was a fine horseman and a finished salesman. When he came back to the trotters about the first thing he did was to pick up the two-year-old trotter Siliko, which he saw beaten a head in the Kentucky Futurity for his age. Madden didn't try to buy the winner, but he took Siliko at the asked price and turned him over to "Knap" McCarthy the following spring to be trained. The colt won the three-year-old Kentucky Futurity, first money $10,000, and three months later was sold to go abroad for $75,000. When E. T. Bedford, the Standard Oil man who bred Hamburg Belle and raced her to a record of 2.13¼, sold the mare to Madden in the fall of 1907, he evidently did not dream he was letting go of a champion. But Madden wanted the mare. He gave her to Andrews to train, and last year she won every race in which she started, closing the campaign by putting up the fastest three-heat race in the books. Now she carries a mark of 2.01¼ and Madden got $50,000 for her.

Bands Played While the Women Prayed

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 29.—Bands of music were placed at each of the four voting places in Birmingham today to drown out the prayers and singing and pleadings of the women and children who gathered early today to influence votes for the constitutional amendment for prohibition. When the women began singing and praying the bands struck up. Business in Birmingham is practically suspended today. — Police guard the polls.

Ice Broke and Six were Drowned

NAMES OF DROWNED.

Mary Gill, aged 15, Sparrow Lake.
Daniel Gill, aged 13, Sparrow Lake.
Elwood Ingram, aged 6, near Kingston.

Gravenhurst, Nov. 29.—The first drowning accident of the skating season in Sparrow Lake occurred at Franklin's Bay, Sparrow Lake, on Saturday night about seven o'clock, when Mary Gill, aged 15 years, and her brother, Daniel Gill, aged 13, lost their lives.

Miss Kitty Gill of 13 McKenzie ave. is a sister of the two Sparrow Lake victims. There are other relatives in Toronto and many friends. The spot where the children were drowned is well known to Sparrow Lake summer resorters.

The two were skating with a number of others on the lake, when the ice gave way, letting them and two other young people, Miss Mary Jones and Cyril Gill, into the icy water.

Cyril Gill managed to get out and assist Miss Jones and also helped her on to the ice, but the unfortunate girl again broke through before she could get to the shore.

FUNERAL ON TUESDAY.

Mr. Hugh Gill, the father, is a highly respected resident and farmer of Sparrow Lake, and the double fatality was a great shock to the whole neighborhood.

The bodies were recovered a few hours later.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday from St. Paul's church, Gravenhurst.

THREE WALKED ON ICE.

Quebec, Nov. 29.—A sad accident has occurred at Alma Lake, St. John. Three children while crossing the Petite Desbarge River on their way to visit their hare snares, sank through the ice and were drowned. Two of the children belonged to widow Francois Martel. The third to Edouard Cauchon. The bodies were recovered.

On Saturday two brothers broke through the ice on West Lake, Wellington, not far from Kingston, Ont., and one of them, Elwood Ingram, was drowned. The other, Garratt Ingram, was so exhausted when rescued that he may not live.

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares Nerviline is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P. E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but NERVILINE was unable to relieve my horse of CURES his pain and suffering till I started to QUICKLY use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as Nerviline'—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes Large bottles 25c., five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

RESCUED MINERS.

The rescue of twenty men who had been for a week imprisoned in the burning coal mine at Cherry, Ill., is one of those almost incredibly true stories of suffering and of heroic devotion that appeal to every nature. The number of endangered men, the frantic despair of their families at the pit mouth, the valor of the brave fellows who went down knowingly to their death in vain attempts at rescue, the final discovery of the little band of survivors—all this is a recital to make the hearts of the most blase beat faster.

speak of the St. Paul mine as a living tomb. But one in twenty of those who were shut in by the flames have been brought out alive. They had walled themselves within a little chamber of temporary safety from the flames and gas, and gave in air which was steadily exhausted by their breath they sank gradually into stupor, like mice under the glassell of an air-pump glass bell of an air-pump, but not until by their own efforts to dig for water they had probably aggravated their sufferings. One wrote his will simple terms of affection for his "good wife" that can scarcely be read without tears.

Then, towards the last, time stood still for them as it mercifully does for men caught in such disasters. In e wonderful case of three the wonderful case of three children dug out of the ruins of Messina after nearly three weeks of burial in the dark and cold, they also thought their imprisonment had been much brief than it was. In hunger, exhaustion and scant air men drift insensibly into a stupor that seems sleep but is the chill ante-chamber of death. Timely rescue and prompt restoratives may snatch them away again to live and love and sunlight, but fate will not wait long.

Such a story of perseverance, of heroism and of marvellous survival should enforce its practical lesson. Such wanton waste of brave men's lives need not so often occur if there were in mining regions properly equipped rescue corps, taught and drilled to save other men's lives without uselessly squandering their own. If there had been such a corps at Cherry no lives need have been lost among the rescuers and many more of the entombed might have been saved.

Rheumatism promptly driven from the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy. Don't waste time with common remedies. A test will surely tell. In tablet or liquid form. Sold by all dealers.

THE LONGEST WORD.

A Short Cut to Some English Claimants to the Honor.

This moot point has never been satisfactorily settled. About 1870 The Liverpool Daily Courier came out with a new word of gargantuan dimensions, "velocipedestrianistically," pianologist."

An Edinburgh journal followed with "ultradisestablishmentarists," an extension of Archbishop Benson's previous "antidisestablishmentarian," given in his diary.

A junction might be effected if one is anxious to see a friend carried out in a state of collapse (to the refreshment room) that a good long word is "ultrantidisestablishmentarianism" (only thirty-three letters).

Then there is another short jawbreaker, "antitransubstantiationistically," which appeared in a highland paper. It is highland enough in all conscience.

Sir Walter Scott has in his journal a word, "floccipaucinihilipilification," which, like a wounded snake, drags its slow length along."

Then Rabelais takes some doing with his "antipericumetanarbogedamphicribrationis."

Wyntoun in his Chronicle supplies us with "honorificabilitudinitatibus," which Shakespeare uses in "Love's Labor's Lost" (twenty-seven letters). Dante also has it in the ablative singular form in his "De Vulgari Eloquentia."

Byfield in a treatise on the Colossians (1615) wrote "incircumscriptiblenesse."

But the Englishman's real jawbreaker is a Welsh word over which Mr. Justice Lawrence once at the Anglesey assizes asked an explanation from Mr. Bryn Roberts, M.P. "What is the meaning of the letters 'P.G.' after the name Llanfair?" The answer was, "It is an abbreviation for the village of Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwilandysiliogogoch. How is this pronounced! It will take some beating. This word of fifty-four letters if repeated often enough is said to be an excellent cure for the toothache.

But the jocular man will tell us there are longer words, "smile" and "beleaguered," for instance, because one is more than a "mile" and the other more than a "league," and another will insist that the longest word in the English language is "longer," for, however long any other word may be, it is always "longer." This is on the principle of the wily Scot who bet his chum that Glasgow was not the biggest town in Scotland. "How's that?" he was asked. "There's a bigger "What is it?" "Bigger," was the prompt reply.—London Academy.

Viscount Morley.

"Honest John is a title often applied to Mr. John Burns, but the prior claim to it rests with Viscount Morley, Secretary of State for India. He earned it years ago by his solidly unchanging attitude on all questions once he has made up his mind.

First entering Parliament as member for Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1883, John Morley soon gained the confidence of Gladstone, and was Chief Secretary for Ireland in the Home Rule Government of 1886. He took up the same office on Gladstone's return to power in 1892, and was thus largely responsible for both the Grand Old Man's Home Rule Bills.

From 1895 until he was raised to the Peerage Lord Morley represented the Montrose Burghs.

Besides being a politician, Lord Morley is journalist, barrister, and author. He was the first editor to become a Cabinet Minister in this country, and was actually engaged in writing a "leader" when he received the letter offering him the post. He accepted, and then returned to finish his article.

Over twenty years ago John Morley made his celebrated declaration: "Be sure that from henceforth no power on earth can separate the question of mending the House of Commons from that other question of mending or ending the House of Lords."

A $20,000 Animal.

So much has recently been heard of the North and South Polar regions that one is inclined to forget that other parts of the world possess tracts where the foot of man has never trodden.

Probably, towards the end of this month, Mr. Walter Goodfellow, the well-known traveler, is to lead an expedition into the interior of Dutch New Guinea, a land which is totally unknown. Zoological exploration is the object in view, and the expedition has been organised by Mr. W. R. Ogilvie-Grant to commemorate the jubilee of the British Ornithologists' Union.

An abundance of various zoological treasures is expected to be found, the most interesting of all being a very large mammal, whose footprints have already been observed.

A member of the expedition of Dr. Lorentz, the Dutch explorer, two years ago, is said to have actually seen the animal, and described it as very large, striped black and white, with a nose like a tapir, and a face like a devil.

It is considered that the discovery of a huge tapir-like mammoth would alone justify the expenditure of $20,000, which is the estimated cost of the expedition.

Singer's 70,000-Mile Tour.

Mme. Ada Crossley, the eminent contralto, has just returned to London from Australia. She covered 70,000 miles in eleven months, and sang at 115 concerts. Mme. Crossley has won success after a grim struggle. She was induced to give a concert in one of the small halls in London before a gathering of friends. There were no flaring advertisements or newspaper puffs, but one or two critics were invited to be present to hear a "promising" artiste. Imagine their surprise when they found they were listening to one of the most beautiful voices ever heard. That was her first footing on the ladder of fame. "Who is this girl?" asked Queen Victoria, and added, "She has a beautiful voice, and is a true artiste." Mme. Crossley was "commanded" to sing before the Queen five times within two years—a unique record.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

LABOR IN AFRICA.

Recruiting Workers Among Natives a Hazardous Position.

The labor agent—the recruiting sergeant of commercialism—leads an ordinary enough life in other cities, but in Africa the work takes on the charm of adventure. For on the "dark continent," the labor agent's work, which consists of recruiting natives for work in the mines, has to be done in the remote districts often hundreds of miles away from any white settlement. Then it is that the agent has to literally take his life in his own hands.

"Up to 10 years ago," says Stanley P. Hyatt, who has served many years as labor agent for the big diamond mines of Kimberley and elsewhere, "a good many labor agents, even in nominally British territories, were little more than slave raiders. I have met them going out with a dozen armed 'police,' whose business it was to surprise a village after nightfall and capture all the likely looking men. In the Portuguese colonies the raids were carried out on an even larger scale by regular uniformed troops, though latterly the ugly temper of the natives themselves has made the business a risky one. I remember well an alarm in one of the big villages, when within a couple of minutes there were over a hundred sturdy savages, armed with long bows and poisoned arrows, crouching in the jungle just beyond the huts, waiting for the raiders.

"On another occasion some Portuguese native soldiers tried to exploit what was to them a new district. I saw them going down, but never heard of their coming back, although I had a camp a few miles away. Months after I learned the story of their fate. They passed through a number of tiny, poverty stricken villages, where they found no one but women, though everywhere they were told of the big kralls on ahead down to the southwest, and so they tramped on, right into the deadly thorn jungle, where the m'chopi, the 'archera,' or 'bushman,' are, and the archers killed them to the last man. It was a grim trick to play, but the old chief who told me the story chuckled over it. To him it evidently had a humorous side."

TOLD OF GRETNA GREEN

MEMORIES OF SCOTLAND'S GREAT MARRYING GROUND.

Coming Case In Courts Where Alex. Bosville of Yorkshire Challenges Title of Lord Macdonald, Hinges on a Gretna Green Wedding and Revives Old Stories — How Earl of Westmorland Married an Heiress.

Memories of Gretna Green will be revived by a most remarkable peerage claim that will be heard shortly in the Scottish courts. Staid lawyers will have to recount one of the most romantic marriages ever celebrated in that little hamlet on the borders of England and Scotland, and rival legal luminaries will vie with one another in tearing a famous love-story to pieces and putting it together again.

The claimant is Mr. Alexander Bosville of Yorkshire, and he challenges the right of the present Lord Macdonald, who is also known as the "Lord of the Isles," to his peerage and estates. The origin of the dispute goes back for more than a hundred years, for the nineteenth century was very young when the third Lord Macdonald eloped with the daughter of the Duke of Gloucester. They fled to Gretna Green, and were married.

Subsequently, the lady gave birth to a son and a daughter. The daughter eventually became Countess of Hopetoun, and was the great-grandmother of the present Marquis of Linlithgow. A few years passed, and Lady Macdonald became very religious. She looked upon her marriage at Gretna Green with suspicion, and her husband to please her, agreed to have the ceremony performed again—this time in a recognized church.

The second marriage, however, was said to have rendered the first one illegal; and, consequently, it was a son who was born after the second ceremony who succeeded to the title and estates. In turn, he was succeeded by his son. A brother of the latter is the present holder of the title. Meanwhile, the first son of Lady Macdonald succeeded to large estates in Yorkshire, and took the name of Bosville. He had a son, too, and the claimant to the peerage is the grandson of the disinherited Alexander Macdonald, or Bosville.

What the Scottish Courts have to decide is whether the second marriage made the first one null and void. All the available records of Gretna Green are certain to be dragged into the light of day, and many famous stories of aristocratic couples who preferred to be united by the eccentric priests who officiated in the little hamlet rather than risk an open ceremony amidst friends and enemies will be heard.

That truth is stranger than fiction these records prove. For instance, the story of how the Westmorland family became united with the famous London banking firm, the Childs, reads more like fiction than fact. The head of the firm in those days was an immensely wealthy man, with one daughter, a girl of remarkable beauty.

The Earl of Westmorland fell in love with her, proposed, and was accepted. All seemed well with the young couple, because the earl never thought for a moment that he would be disapproved of by her father, and his amazement was great when, on putting his case before the banker, he received the answer, "Your blood, my lord, is good, but money is better."

But the earl was not to be baulked, and he arranged an elopment. At midnight the pair stepped into a chaise drawn by four horses, and they began to race to Gretna Green, the nobleman having arranged for relays of horses on the way.

A Shap he engaged all the horses available, so that nobody else could secure them. Mr. Child, however, was soon on their track; and, so powerful was his money, that he caught them up while they were changing horses at Hesketh, a place in a forest, between Carlisle and Penrith. In a passion, the banker jumped out, and shot one of the leading horses of the earl's carriage.

Meanwhile, one of the latter's servants ran behind Mr. Child's carriage, and cut the leather which attached the body of the carriage to the springs on which it was dependent. The earl drove on with his three horses, leaving the injured one to its fate; and Mr. Child had not gone far before the body of the carriage fell on the frame, and he was compelled to wait for another chaise. Of course, the eloping pair got married at Gretna Green long before the infuriated banker caught them up again.

It was an extraordinary coincidence that the very last marriage of social importance contracted at Gretna Green should have had for one of its principals a granddaughter of the Earl and Countess of Westmorland referred to above. This was Lady Adela Villiers, daughter of an Earl of Jersey, who was united to Colonel Ibbetson in 1843. The officer survived until 1898.

In the forthcoming legal battle the surviving registers of the famous old hamlet will be produced; but the most interesting records were destroyed years ago by the daughter of the officiating parson of that day.

In a fit of madness, she set the room which held them on fire, and herself perished in the flames along with the first and greatest register Gretna knew.

Hamlet's Politics.

Lord Esher had an amusing experience on one occasion while speaking for a young politician, fresh from college, in the South of England. The candidate's speech, perhaps, was more than judiciously besprinkled with quotations from "Hamlet." After a fine peroration, containing huge chunks of the play, he announced that Lord Esher was prepared to answer any questions. A man stood up. "I can't quite make it out," he remarked "whether he is a tariff reformer or a free trader." "Who?" asked Lord Esher. "The man this speech is about." Puzzled, he again inquired what man he meant. "Hamlet," was the reply.

What "Consols" Are?

The "man (or woman) in the street" often has but a hazy idea of "Consols," as would be shown by the notion disclosed in evidence only the other day at a London police court, when a thriftily-minded young person explained that she expected that £15 invested therein would yield her 10s. in the £ interest. She but erred with the elder Weller of immortal memory. Dickens' lovers will well remember Sam Weller's scorn upon discovering that his father supposed "redneck counsels" to be alive. Of course, the word "consols" is an abbreviation in connection with Government funds. In 1751 certain varieties of stock, forming part of our National Debt, were consolidated into one fund under the name of "Consolidated Annuities." The term "Consols," it may be mentioned, has been extended for convenience to various other Government securities.

A Miserly Parson.

Rev. Morgan Jones, a sadly miserly man, was once curate-in-charge at Blewbury. He died worth $200,000, and some curious stories are given of his economy. It is said he wrote his sermons on pieces of paper torn from the walls, and was obliged to lie in bed while his one shirt was being washed.

On one occasion, when walking in the fields he saw an old scare-crow surmounted with a hat, the brim of which was sound. Jones seized the hat, and, tearing the tattered brim from his own, replaced it by that of the scare-crow. It is doubtful if his hat was improved by the exchange. His coat, of many tatters, is still in existence, and is kept in remembrance by photographs which are sold in the neighborhood.—Art Journal.

ARRANGING ROSES.

Differently Shaped Bowls Require Individual Treatment.

To amateurs and especially beginners the arrangement of flowers in bowls often proves a somewhat difficult task, and it requires almost a born instinct, so to speak, to be able to accomplish this work satisfactorily. Just watch two persons at this seemingly easy and pleasant task. To one the blossoms appear to stand and stay just where they are wanted, while with the other decorator no amount of coaxing or effort produces the required effect, and the exclamation is heard, "I can't make them go right." Of course different shaped bowls require individual treatment in the same way as different flowers, and this must be thought out beforehand to insure success. Some persons are of the opinion that the best way of filling bowls is to cut the stems of the roses or whatever flowers are used quite short, so that by using a large number they will support one another, like a country nosegay. This, however, is not giving the flowers any chance of showing their beauty, nor does it reflect any credit on the arranger. The two must work in harmony to secure the best effect. This is illustrated in the cut given herewith. A large, clear glass bowl is used, filled with the beautiful Mrs. John Laing roses and arranged to show to the best advantage. Some firm red stalks with plenty of thorns are laid across the inside of the bowl, forming a network of stalks; then the roses, each one separately, are placed in the network of stalks, the lower ones first and the tall ones last. By this means a charming effect can be obtained, and the reflection of the rose red stalks in the water adds greatly to the finished appearance of the bowl of roses. It is very pleasing to the eye to see a close quantity of stalks filling up the base of the bowl, and it is quite unnecessary to use flower supports for the roses, as is sometimes done, for the arrangement mentioned above is not only sufficient for the purpose, but far more artistic and satisfactory.

SAM SPANELLI

Paid the Death Penalty.

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 26.— Sam Spanelli, the young Italian peasant, expiated his crime of murder on the scaffold early this morning. Spanelli last thoughts were of his mother, and his last hours on earth were spent in composing a letter to his parent, telling her that his life must be given up to satisfy the law for taking another's life. Redcliffe, who had been engaged to do the hanging, failed to show up or to send any word in reply to urgent messages, the gap being filled at the eleventh hour by a man who gave the name of Ike Thompson of Owen Sound, who arrived late last night.

A LADY'S MEMOIRS.

Countess of Cardigan's Book Causes a Sensation.

No book of recent years has created such a sensation in London as the "Recollections" of the Countess of Cardigan, which have just been published. It is the main topic of conversation in the boudoirs of Mayfair and the West end clubs. It has been characterised as a "volume of blazing indiscretions," and consternation reigns among the elite on account of her ladyship's very frank revelations concerning members of their families. There is no attempt to disguise names, and the annoyance and pain which have been caused by the piquant character of the stories told by the countess have led to many protests against the manner in which she has raised the veil and exposed the immoralities and wickedness of "high society."

"I repeat emphatically," says a writer in The World, "that this is a shameless book. I cannot conceive that the authorities are so feeble and so indifferent as to permit of this book remaining on sale. I call upon them instantly to withdraw it from circulation."

Meantime, while the storm of indignation is raging, the countess has retired into the country to enjoy the sensation she has caused. As a matter of fact, it was her original intention, it is said, to make the book even more outspoken than it is. In the heyday of her charms she counted among her followers royal as well as aristocratic admirers. From these she received countless love-letters, which she treasures as souvenirs of bygone triumphs. It was her intention, so the report goes, to include in her book facsimiles of billets-doux from high-born personages, some of whom are still living. When an inkling of her proposal leaked out, however, strong representations were made to the countess from very high quarters, and in the end she consented to omit certain epistles.

Here are some tit-bits from a book which will be talked about for a long time.

The countess resided in Mayfair at a time when, as she wittily puts it, "Society was composed of brilliant men and witty women, beauties and dandies, who held away without puffing paragraphs in the newspapers."

On one occasion the countess stayed with Lord and Lady Wilton at Melton Mowbray. His lordship's free and easy life had gained for him the sobriquet of "The Wicked Earl." One Sunday the countess and Lady Wilton went to church, unaccompanied by his lordship.

"I saw the clerk look at us as we entered the church," says the countess, "and he evidently noticed Lord Wilton's absence; but I was not prepared for what followed. The vicar duly commenced, 'When the wicked ——,' but he was stopped by the clerk, who turned to him and, looking across at Lord Wilton's vacant seat, said, in a loud voice, 'Please, sir, his lordship's not come yet.'"

On the journey back to town the countess traveled with the old Duchess of Cambridge. "Directly the train started the duchess opened a large reticule and took out a German sausage, which she devoured with great relish, cutting slices off it with a silver knife, with which she transferred them to her mouth." In the same chapter a story is told of Lord Ward, who had very curly hair, which could never be induced to lie smoothly on his head. One day his valet went into his master's bedroom and saw him sitting in his bath with his hat on. He thought his lordship had gone mad and promptly left, although Lord Ward only wore his hat to try and keep his rebellious curls in order.

There is an amusing story, too, concerning Lord Ernest Bruce, who had a great weakness for leave-takings. "He always loved to speed the parting guest," says the countess, "and invariably went through the same ceremony whenever he said good-bye. This consisted of kissing everybody, and then, with a great show of generosity, he would present the porter with sixpence." The countess had invited a small party for a yachting cruise, which included his lordship's son, Robert Bruce. "When old Lord Ernest was preparing to say good-bye to us, Robert called out, 'Now, father, kiss the porter and give me the sixpence,' greatly to Lord Ernest's annoyance."

A Stranger Lord.

Judge George F. Lawton, of the Probate Court, London, Eng., related a story the other day of a minister who was spending his Sabbatical year traveling abroad. Arriving in London, he made every effort to get an intimate view of the two branches of Parliament in session. Of course, no stranger is allowed on the floor of the House of Lords, but the minister, not knowing this, and with the usual amount of American push, tried to make his way in. There is a rule, however, that servants of the various lords may be admitted to speak to their masters. Seeing the minister walking boldly in, the doorkeeper asked:

"What Lord," repeated the astonished man. "The Lord Jehovah!"

For a moment the doorkeeper hesitated and then admitted him. Turning to the assistant standing near, he said.

"He must mean one of those poor Scotch lairds.

The Dramas of Mincing Lane.

It was only after eleven years of futile knocking at theatrical managers' doors with rolls of manuscript that Mr. Alfred Sutro, who would appear to have scored another success at the Garrick in London with "Making a Gentleman," got his foot on the first rung of the ladder of theatrical fame. At one time he worked in an office in Mincing Lane, and says that those city experiences of his were of immense value to him. "There are dramas in Mincing Lane," to quote his own words, "as thrilling as any that have been placed upon the stage." Mr. Sutro is a brother-in-law of Mr. Rufus Isaacs, K.C., and a distant kinsman of the Sutro who drove the famous Sutro Tunnel through the Nevada mountain, and thus made himself a millionaire.

DECORATIVE SPINACH.

Several New Ways of Serving the Ever Popular Vegetable.

The family dish of spinach can be dressed in more than one original way, which will delight the little people of the household and will give when need be quite a company air to the home table.

One such plan is to mold it quickly on a hot platter into the form of a bird's nest and in the center place three or four hard boiled eggs, which make perhaps the best accompaniment of all.

Or use the nest and fill up with small, whole buttered beets. The red and green combine delightfully, and the flavor of the two vegetables is extremely good in combination. This will not increase the trouble of serving.

Sometimes, too, it can be molded on a square platter into a green bank, from which the scarlet beets, cut across to simulate the petals of I know not what flower, peep out most effectively.

Again, for a guest luncheon select the smallest eggs from the egg basket or ask the grocer to pick out half a dozen tiny ones for you. When these have been hard boiled slice to represent water lilies or daisies (the two blooms are very closely allied in this class of botany) and arrange these floating on a low sea of spinach or growing out from a high hill of the same.

Another way in which it is most delicious is when formed into a round hollow nest or mound, the center of which is filled with a creamy sauce which is eaten with the wholesome herbs, adding much to their suavity. The dressing can, if preferred, be tinted green with a little of the spinach stock or juice.

Longfellow's Granddaughter a Nurse.

It is interesting to know that the granddaughter of the poet Longfellow has announced her intention to renounce society life and devote her time to nursing.

She is Miss Delia F. Dana, the daughter of Richard H. Dana and a debutante of this year in Boston society.

Miss Dana attributes her resolve to give up everything and take up this work for others to a chance meeting with Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador explorer and missionary. She met him with friends on the train going from New York to Boston and at that time made her resolve to abandon a purely social life. She will enter the Boston Children's hospital, where she can be of service to the poor and suffering, especially among the little children.

"The quality of mercy is not strained," began the speaker at the meeting of the village branch of the National Hygienic society, whereupon Sister Hankson interrupted with, "Well, then, it ain't sanitary, and we don't want nuthin' t' do with it."—Puck.

Rack For Postcards.

For holding collections of postcards girls who are interested in amateur carpentering and cabinetmaking or, to use the more modern phrase, in manual training are now making very useful and at the same time ornamental racks which hold a large number of cards and keep those from different sections of the country separated. The racks are made of wood and have three bars at each side and two bars on the bottom. At the ends are square pieces of wood hollowed out at the bottom to form two ornamental feet sloped out at the top to make a more ornamental line and with oval holes cut in the center near the top, which form handles, by which the rack may be lifted. There are spaces cut in these solid wooden ends, through which the side and bottom bars are slipped. The two upper side bars are perforated with round holes at regular intervals. Through these perforations slender brass bars are slipped, and it is these brass bars which separate the different groups of cards.

The Vogue of the Farthing.

Farthings were not, at one time, regarded so contemptuously as they are by most people to-day.

Since the Budget perturbed publicans and brewers, the retailers of beer in many places have experienced some difficulty in levying the extra farthing for the half pint on poor people's drinks, because of the aversion in which the smallest coin in the realm is held by the masses of our day.

But in the fourteenth century the London innkeeper was compelled, by order of the Lord Mayor, to supply farthing's-worths of drink to any customer who asked to be served therewith.

John Northampton was the chief magistrate who made the ordinance; and he enforced consideration for the farthing on the baker also, who was obliged to make farthing's-worths of bread to the poor. The priest, too, was not allowed to charge more than a farthing for a mass to his humble flock.

Supplies of farthings were obtainable at the London Guildhall, and, furthermore, if change could not be given by innkeeper or baker, any customer was privileged to take his drink or his bread, and leave without paying.

Dainties For the King.

King Edward has recently enjoyed the delights of a lamprey-pie, which is what very few people have the opportunity of doing.

No one knows when the custom started, but for many, many years Gloucester has annually contributed a lamprey-pie to His Majesty's table. The custom was temporarily dropped in 1836, when the old corporation was abolished, but it was revived by permission of Queen Victoria in 1838.

Another epicurean dainty which the King enjoys are the first plovers' eggs of the season. There is keen competition among all searchers to be the first to send these eggs for the King's table.

If His Majesty is in London they are sent to Buckingham Palace; but at times they have been sent by special messenger to Biarritz when he was staying there. At the beginning of the season plovers' eggs fetch three shillings or four shillings apiece.

One of "The Devil's Own."

Sir Lees Knowles, who is retiring from the 7th Battalion Lancashire Fusiliers, has divided most of his enthusiasm between volunteering and sport. There is hardly a game or sport in which Sir Lees does not excel, and at Rugby and Cambridge he was distinguished by his brilliancy in athletics. He was called to the Bar twenty-seven years ago, and on entering Lincoln's Inn at once joined the Inns of Court Corps, commonly known as "The Devil's Own"—a title given to them by one of the Georges, who, during a review, asked what the men were. "Lawyers, your Majesty," was the reply. "Then," said the genial monarch, "call them 'The Devil's Own'!"

The Navel Orange.

The first we know of the navel orange, which is very valuable not only on account of its fine quality and taste, but also because of its being seedless, is of a single tree that was found growing on the northern shore of the Mediterranean sea. This was about the year 1565, or nearly 350 years ago.

A monk in a monastery in that far-away country painted a picture of the fruit and wrote a description of it, both of which may be seen in the library of the Roman Catholic university at Washington. Grafts of this tree were taken to Spain by the Moors several hundred years ago, and from Spain the trees were carried to South America by the Spaniards.—S. Nicholas.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the men who have built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all its sums in the world, [illegible] the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other needful considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and its shares in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent govern the handling of the raw materials to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient earnings on hand to warrant the distribution of 8 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 32 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, to an amount of that amount, will accordingly pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

STEALING CHILDREN.

Women Who For Various Reasons Carry Off Little Ones.

Perhaps the most amazing feature of the kidnapping cases which have engaged the attention of the police in England recently is that, in a number of instances where women were the the culprits, the real cause of the offence has been traced, not to any desire on the part of the kidnapper to injure the stolen child, gain money, or seek revenge on the parents, but merely to the fact that they had been so attracted by the youngster as to be unable to resist the temptation of taking it away.

The theory has been advanced that it was such feelings which prompted the woman kidnapper in the recent South end baby theft; but that, becoming alarmed on account of the sensation she had caused, she abandoned the child in order to escape the consequences of her act. It certainly needs a feasible explanation in the light of other cases.

One day two years ago a poor woman, seated with her child, a pretty girl of two years of age, on one of the seats in Hyde Park, was accosted by a young woman, whose manners and dress stamped her as rich and well born. The lady spoke of her admiration of the child, gave her cards, and asked the mother to meet her next day at the same spot, and she would bring the girl a pretty frock. The appointment was kept, and it was the first of several meetings between the poor woman and the motley lady, who seemed enraptured with the child.

Eventually the lady asked the mother to let her take the child to her home, giving her a certain address. The mother was reluctant to part with the child at first, but ultimately gave way, and agreed to call the next day at the address given for the youngster. She did so, but judge of her amazement and grief when she found that the address was that of an empty house. The police were communicated with, and two weeks later traced the lady and the child to an hotel at Brighton.

The child was perfectly well, and seemed happy with the many beautiful things the lady had bought for her, but she recognized her mother instantly when the two were brought face to face through the medium of the hotel proprietor, whose suspicions had been aroused by seeing a description and photograph of the missing child in the newspapers. On account of the high position of the lady, who kidnapped this child simply because of her affection for it, the matter was hushed up as much as possible.

A Titled Innkeeper.

Lord Townshend, the wild and dissolute viceroy—who signalized himself once by bringing his pack of fox-hounds with him into the Council Chamber in Dublin Castle—while on a progress to the West was compelled by the breaking down of his equipage to spend the night in Kilbaggin.

Much to his surprise and gratification he was served with an excellent meal and with claret of most choice bouquet and flavor, for in those days most innkeepers, even of the smaller country inns, had a store of good wine laid by for special occasions. Lord Townshend, according to his wont, did full justice to the vintage, and flushed with what he had drunk insisted on summoning the landlord into his presence. He compelled the worthy man to kneel down before him, and despite the remonstrances of the more sober among his suite he struck him with his sword, exclaiming, "Rise up, Sir Thomas Cuffe, prince of innkeepers!"

The next morning, on being reminded of his exploit, of which he was himself totally oblivious, he felt some dismay, and called for the newly-made knight. "We were guilty of some follies last night," he said to him, "but I trust you understand that what passed was a joke and nothing more." "For my part, my lord, I do not care," returned mine host, "but I must consult my wife on the matter." Her reply was, "I never looked to find myself a lady, but since fortune has made me one, such I'll remain." And Sir Thomas and Lady Cuffe they were all the days of their lives, though by no means above attending to the duties of their calling.

Nature's Silence Preferred.

To the pathfinder on the frontier line in the West the habit of speech becomes almost a lost art. Whether it is the vastness and the loneliness, or perhaps the close contact with nature's wonders of plain and mountain unsullied by the works of man, the cowboy and the prospector are noted for extreme taciturnity. To illustrate which, E. E. Young, of the Department of the Interior, tells this story: Two Alberta cowboys, turned prospectors, as so many of their fellows did during the mining excitement of '98, had been working for some months as partners in the hills of Southern Kootenay. At noon one day, one of them was dipping his tea meditatively. "Tea's too darned strong," he said. The other silently passed him the hot water kettle. After a moment's consideration of the effect of the dilution — "Fire's too durned hot—tea's boiled!" he said. The meal was concluded in the usual profound silence. Next morning the silent partner was up first and was silently packing his blankets. "What's up?" asked the other. "Goin' t'light out! Too much talk around here f'me. . . ."

Kept Him Busy.

Sir Arthur Fanshawe, who has held so many high appointments in India, recently related an amusing story of a Mohammedan servant who, when asked his religion, replied: "Beg pardon, sar, I'm a heathen." His master then asked him what he meant by a heathen, and the man answered: "Beg pardon, sar, a worshipper of stocks and stones." "Confound it," remarked the master, "I can't keep a man like that in my service." To which came the immediate rejoinder: "Beg pardon, sar, in your highness' service no time to worship anything."

PICTURE FRAMING.

A Most Important Point to Consider in House Furnishing.

When will people learn that it isn't necessary to have a liberal art education and to understand all the principals of chiaroscuro and composition to use some discretion and taste in the selection and framing of pictures?

In the average home the collection of pictures seems to bear a striking resemblance to the history of Topsy, who "jes' growed."

The pictures that hang on a certain wall are there not because the owner consciously wishes them there, but because the mysterious ways of chance have put them there.

Worse than the misfortune of a heterogeneous collection of pictures are the evils of poor framing.

Frank Alvah Parsons, the director of the New York Art school, is quoted as saying:

"The way pictures are framed has an immense deal to do with the effect. Period pictures should have period frames—that is, the frame and picture should be of the same period instead of as is once in so many wealthy homes, French pictures in Florentine frames, old Italian masters in Louis XV. frames, rococo frames around simple colonial maidens and mixed atrocities around other pictures.

"When a picture is not a period picture," says Mr. Parsons, "its color, line and action must be studied and the frame chosen with reference to these.

"Pictures showing large, simple, vivid colors, lively action, require wide, deep frames. Rosa Bonheur's 'Horse Fair' would look silly in a narrow little frame. Quiet pictures take inconspicuous frames. Many an oil painting that has an elaborate gilt frame shouting around it would look better in a frame of wood stained to a color that harmonizes with the tones of the picture.

"Every picture has its special color, like every woman. There are some people who look stunning in blue, but will look positively hideous in red. Others appear to best advantage in browns. In the same way picture frames must harmonize with the pictures they inclose or the picture appears to bad advantage. Just as the complexion of an individual dictates the color of the clothes that the individual shall wear, so the color of the picture indicates the tone of the frame that it needs. Harmony may be secured by making the tone of the frame fit the darkest general mass in the picture. This does not necessarily mean the darkest tone, but the darkest tone that is general. The color of the frame should be more neutral than the picture mass.

"The wall or the wall covering rather is what fills the picture in many houses. People who will have intense figured wall coverings," says Mr. Parsons, "should keep their pictures in portfolios. The wall should be the unassertive background—nothing more."

The display of china painting in Thos. Barrie's window, the work of Miss Flood, of the Conservatory staff, has been justly admired during the past week. Warden Scott will Leave Municipal Life County Council Met

Will Retire from Municipal Life at the End of the Present Year—Has Been in County Council for Seven Years

Warden Robt. N. Scott will retire from municipal life at the of the present year. He has served in the township of Smith as councillor and serve for seven years and the past year as warden of the county. Warden Scott has been a good warden and has carried on his duties in a very business like manner and with dispatch. He has been a first class executive head for the county, and the count,es affairs have been advanced under his regime. A lot of permanent work, such as bridges, have been done and all work has received the warhen's personal attention. That Mr. Scott is retiring from municipal life entirely will be regretted as he is looked upon as one of the most capable in the county. He takes with him however the best wishes of all.

Al, the members were present and Warden Scott was in the chair.

County Clerk E. M. Elliott read the minutes of the last meeting and they were adopted.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS

Warden R. N. Scott expresseh great pleasure in opening this the last session of the year. His term of office to him had been most pleasant and he was more than grateful to every member of the council who had worked so harmoniously together for the best interests of the county. A lot of good work had been accomplished during the year and so far as he could barn the people generally werewell satisfied. This satisfactory condition, however, had only be brought about by the willingness of all members of the council to work together. His own duties as warden had been thus made much lighter and more pleasant.

During the present session there would be several important questions to consider among which will be the appointment of a new school inspector for the new district being created by joining parts of Peterborough and Victoria Counties. A deputation from Victoria county will be present on Friday morning and he hoped that whoever was selected to fill the position he would be the best qualified won available.

In conclusion Warden Scott said that it was with mingled feelings of regret and joy that this would be his last session as a member of the codnty council as he had made up his mind to withdraw from municipal life at the end of this year. He had been in the council of the Township of Smith for seven years and five years he was reeve, being elected four times by acclamation. He was glad he had been honored by the county council with the position of warden. He felt proud of his colleagues confidence in him and he hoped that his course the past year had beensatisfactory and he wished all a long life and continued prosperity.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Clerk E. M. Elliott read a number of communications which were dealt with by the council.

Councillors Breault and Shaw moved that the communication from the deputy minister of education re school inspectors and the proposed arrangement between Victoria and Peterborough counties be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.—Carried.

Mr. J. Coyle Brown, inspector of Public schools for the county, sent inhis resignation to the County Council. He took such action on account of the illness of his wife and to give the council a free hand, so far as he was concerned, to make such arrangements with Victoria County as they deemed advisable.

On motion of Councillors Shaw and Darling, the resignation was accepted.

A petition from Norwood asked the County Council to request Judge Huycke to appoint John L. Johnston, county constable in that town.

Isaac Tucker applied for the position of county Constable for Norwood.

A communication was received from the deputy minister of education suggesting that as Peterborough and Victoria counties are too large for one inspector and too small for two inspectors that they combine and have the work of the two counties be done by three inspectors. This willbe taken up by the Committee of the Whole Council.

H. G. Hartyn of Berlin, applied for the position of Public school inspector to fill the new position to be created.

The council adjourned to go into committee on finance.

Canvassing Committee in Connection with a New Murray Street Church

Large and Enthusiastic Meeting Held in Murray Street Baptist Church Last Night.

To Erect a $35-000 Building

A Canvassing Committee Will Begin at Once to Canvass the Whole Congregation.

A very large and enthusiastic congregational meeting was held in the Murray street Baptist church last night for the purpose of considering the advisability of erecting a new edifice next year. The popular opinion of all present was to go ahead and erect a structure to cost $36,-000 and a canvassing committee will begin at once a canvas of the entire congregation to ascertain how much of the above sum can be raised within two years. That committee is to report back to the congregationin January next.

The meeting was opened with devotional exercises by Rev. Mr. Webb, and then Mr. T. F. Matthews took the chair and presided over the meeting. He explained the object of the gathering. Dr. Browett acted as secretary. Addresses were made by the following gentlemen, all of whom were in favor of proceeding with the erection of the church:—Mr. Dunlop, superintendent of the Sunday school, Dr. Browett, Messrs. Geo. Cochrane, Wm. Cochrane, H. Webber, Thomas Wilson, C. B. Routley, V. Eastwood, Rev. Mr. Webb, and Mrs. Martin and others.

To get the consenus of opinion a standing test vote was taken of all favorable to the new church and there was not one remained in there seat. The following motion was then passed:—

Moved by Mr. V. Eastwood and Thos. Wilson, that we appoint a committee to canvas the entire congregation with a view to discovering what portion of $35000 may be secured within the next two years for the purpose of erecting a new church not to cost more than the saidsum, and that we pledge ourselves to give such committee the best encouragement possible, and that this committee be requested to report back to the congregation during January.

The following committee was then appointed:—Messrs. V. Eastwood, T. F. Matthews, Geo. Cochrane, Wm. Cochrane, T. Wilson, Montgomery, Porter White, H. Webber and Dr. Scott.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Building Committee, and Mr. V. Eastwood for the great interest they had taken in this work.

Musical numbers were given by Miss Clara Kidd and Mr. Ferguson, who was accompanied on the piano by Mr. Snyder and by Miss Hope Miller on the violin.

Refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was brought to a close.

BIG CROWD HEARD.

"The Seven Last Words of Christ," By the George Street Choir.

"The Seven Last Words of Christ" one of the most beautiful vocal selections ever composed, was presented in the George street Methodist church by the choir last night. The auditorium of the church was crowded with a very appreciative audience. The choir deserves great credit for the wonderful presentation of the work. It showed very careful training and splendid talent. The many different parts were taken without a fault. No doubt the choir will be requested to give it over again in the not distance future.

The first part of the program was of a varied nature in which F. E. Bemrose, vocalist, and W. G. Craig, reader, took part along with local talent.

The program was as follows:

Solo—"O House of Jacob" (St. Peter) .... Benedict
F. E. Bemrose.

Reading—"The Song of the Camp." ....Bayard Taylor
W. G. Craig.

Miss C. Reesor.

Reading—"King Robert of Sicily" ... ...Longfellow

Ladies' Quartette—"Lead, Kindly Light" ... ... Parks

The Seven Last Words of Christ—(Dubois, 1837)

This is ane of the most important works of Dubois—an eminent French organist—who was for nine years director of the Paris Conservatory. Dubois is the author of orchestral works, piano music and religious compositions which entitle him to a conspicuous place among modern com ern composers.

The number was presented by the choir with solo parts, duetts, quartette and choruses. It composed the entire second part of the program.

Who Wants the Job? As India's Viceroy

London, Nov. 30.—In the midst of its budget troubles the British Government is today racking its brains to find a suitable man for the job of Viceroy of India. Since the last attempt against the life of the Earl of Minto there has not been much competition among peers for the position. The general opinion is that it is a bit too risky.

LordMinto's term of office would expire naturally at the end of next year, but he finds that the continual fear of attacks on his life is telling on his wife's health, and he would by no means be sorry to relinguish the post a little earlier.

The Liberals would like to have another of their own men in for for five years, in case they lose the general election, but the vice-regal throne is not a bed of roses just now, and society ladies—it is generally the wife who covets the glories of Government House, Calcutta—do not relish the idea of being a mark for bombs.

Thenumerous attacks on high officials within the past few years prove that the revolutionary feeling in India is growing.

Five attempts have been made on the life of the lieutentant-governor of Bengal, Sir A. H. Leith Fraser.

Upraided Husband for Staying Out late and He Killed Her

New York, Nov. 30.—Patrick H. Rafferty killed his wife in their Brooklyn home early today by cutting her throat with a razor. Frank Ohland, a brother-in-law, attempted to interfere, as did Mrs. Margaret Kelly, mother of Mrs. Rafferty. Ohland was severely cut and Mrs. Kelly's skull was fractured by a blow from a broomstick. Rafferty then ran into the yard and attempted to kill himself by cutting his own throat with the razor he had used on his wife. Mrs. Kelly and Rafferty are in the hospital, where it is believed both will die. Rafferty had been staying out late at night, according to relatives, and when he returned this morning his wife remonstrated with him.

Knights of Pythias gave an At Home and Smoker to Friends

Marathon Lodge No. 39, Knights of Pythias, held a very successful at-home and smoker in their lodge rooms last night. A large number were present and a thoroughly enjoyable time was spent. Marathon Lodge is growing rapidly in both membership and in favor with the public. The officers and members are all thorough good fellows and they are all attached to the lodge and order. Aspecial interest is being taken now on account of the meeting of the Grand Lodge here next summer. Preparations are already underway for that important event and it is the ambition of the officers to make the Peterborough meeting the most successful the order has yet held.

After the lodge business had been completed last night the invited guests were admitted and welcomed. The first part of the evening was devoted to a euchre contest which was very keenly contested. Ten tables participated and the winner was only ascertained after a play off.

The musical part of the program was of a high order and it was thoroughly enjoyed. Cigars and tobacco were plentiful and these combined with the music and the good will of the knights made the evening one of the most pleasant the lodge has yet held. During the evening refreshments were served and the guests did ample justice to the temping viands.

The program was as follows:—
Instrumental Solo—Mr. Lewis.
Song—Mr. J. King.
Recitation—Bro. Waring.
Song—Mr. Davenport.
Duett—Messrs. Firth and King.
Banjo Solo—Mr. Clark.
Comic Song—Mr. Thompson.

Our Vanishing Forests was Subject of Address

There was a fair-sized crowd in the council chamber last night to hear Mr. Jas. Lawler, secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, give his address on our "Vanishing Forests." The meeting was under the auspices of the Board of Trade, and Vice President Larmouth occupied the chair and introduced the speaker.

Foresrty and the reforestration of waste lands should be of the utmost interest to the people of Peterborough, and especially of the county, as the northern part of this county is of little good except as a forest, and at the present time there are large tracts that are non productive and which would in a few years, if acquired by the city or county, and set aside as a forest reserve, produce sufficient revenue to cut the taxes in half or wipe them out entirely.

At the present time the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham are taking up the matter of acquiring the waste lands in those counties and setting them aside as a forest reserve for all time to come or to have the Provincial Government undertake the work. Mr. Lawler had several slides showing the nature of the land there and during the course of his address he showed theposssibilities of the work.

It is a mistake, said Mr. Lawler, in the first place, to suppose that our forests are illimitable. In the second place, no substitute has ever been found for wood, and it is unlikely that one ever will be found that will not be more costly than the original. In the third place, supposing a suitable substitute were found this would not touch the other great uses of the forest equally important with the supplying of wood, including the conservation and regulation of the water supply in our streams with its attendant effect on water powers and navigation, the prevention of soil erosion, the evaporation and the forming of a cover for game and insectivorous birds.

The area of the forests of Canada, he contended, had been much overestimated. While the subject is still keenly debated the best estimates fix the amount of Canada's merchantable timber at from one-third to one-half that of the United States. A very generous estimate places the supply at 532 billion feet board measure. The estimates differ widely, but all point to the fact that authorities are agreed that a period can be set when our forests will be used up unless some conservative forest management is adopted in the mean time.

The annual reveune in Ontario from forests is about $1 per head. The last return was $2,082,878. If our forests are allowed to disappear the people of Ontario will have to pay that amount in taxes annually. The total revenue from forest land in the Province and the Dominion is $4,500,000 annually, which all goes to reduce the taxes.

Besides the revenue received there is the immense trade arising out of timber which goes to enrich the people. The average annual exports of timber products since confederation has been $28,000,000, one and one third times the value of the agricultural produces exported in the same period. If this trade were to cease the loss of many industries dependent on timber would follow. The special census of 1906 shows that 78,000 families or 400,000 people in Canada are dependent on the forest industry about 6 per cent. of the population.

Mr. Lawler stated that in fertile Southern Ontario the desert making process of old countries has already been repeated. This has gone so far that the Government of Ontario has set aside a sum for the reforestration of such lands in the county of Norfolk and the forest nursery has been moved from Guelph to Norfolk county where the conditions are better suited to it, and where at the close of the year one thousand acres will be under the control of the government, and much of it planted Prof. Zavitz estimates that there are 8,000,000 acres in Ontario which should be managed for forest crops, the annual increment of which he puts at $8,000,000.

Three Labor Leaders Get Respite from Jail

Washington, Nov. 30.—The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia today granted the petition of Samuel Gompbers, John Mitchell, and Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, in the contempt case against them, for a stay of execution of the mandate of the court sending them to jail.

The mandate is stayed indefinitely, pending appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

A Plot to Kidnap John D. Rockefeller

Business Man Heard Details of Plot, and Gave Them to the Police—The Millionaire on Guard

Cleveland, O., Nov. 30.—Chief of Police Hohler and Marshal James Stamberger, of East Cleveland, are looking for two men said to be implicated in a plot to either kidnap or assassinate John D. Rockefeller. Information has been sent to all the police of the county asking them to apprehend the suspected men.

Information was furnished the police by Sawyer Smith, a business man of Minerva, Ohio, who overheard the plot in Allianee, Ohio, Sunday night. Elaborate plans for doing away with the oil king were discussed, he told the police.

When apprised by the police John D. Rockefeller abandoned plans to attend a farewell meeting at the Euclid avenue Baptist church, and the gates of the walls encireling his estate have been locked since, and closely guarded.

French Warship Ordered for Nicaragua

San Jose, Costa Rica, Nov. 30.—A French warship has been ordered from Martinique to Nicaragua, it is reported here, following a complaint lodged with the French consul-general of the ill-treatment of a number of Frenchmen in Nicaragua. The complaint was made by Fausteno Monteil, a Frenchman, who escaped from Nicaragua and went to Costa Rica.

Monteil, who was manager of a farm owned by H. Meiner of Paris, and situated on the south-east coast of the great lake of Nicaragua, says:

"On the 22nd of October last we were surprised by a large number of troops commanded by a gentleman called Lerios, who we were told is a aide-de-camp of the president of Nicaragua. Immediately Mr. Ruinart and myself were bound and dragged to the edge of a lake, where, after a mockery of a trial, theythreatened to shoot us—a threat which they repeated three times.

"As soon as we were safely in the lock-up the soldiers returned to sack the farm, wresting the keys from the housekeeper and carrying off all objects of value on which they could lay their hands, some of which we recognized later in Lortuga. We had to regain possession of our own horses by purchasing them from those to whom they had sold them.

"During the operations at the farm the housekeeper was brutally treated by Lerios, and it was with difficulty that she saved her life. They completely stripped the farm, not taking into account the French flag which was hoisted over the house."

Washington, Nov. 30. — Deputy Comptroller of the Currency W. J. Fowler, has received two despatches from his cousin, Charles G. Fowler, secretary of the Nicaragua Development Company, who is now at Managua, which puzzle him greatly because they contain certain information as to the situation there absolutely at variance with that received by the State Department. He is also entirely at a loss to understand why his cousin should have cabled to him unless it was under the coercion of the Zelaya Government.

The first message reads:

"Am all right. Outside Atlantic revolutionary zone. Americans are given permits to travel as usual. Know of no Americans being in prison for any cause. Foreign miners tell me they are working their mines."

The second despatch reads:

"Inform Secretary Knox I have seen files and papers relating to executions Americans Groce and Cannon. Have interviewed Prisaner Couture. Find execution was under sentence court-martial convened under military and constitutional code All three signed statements acknowledging participation in revolution. Groce admitted firing mine in attempted destruction steamer Diamante. All three asked for clemency. President refused to interfere, stating military necessity and army demanded execution of sentence. Congress now assembled for regular session."

King's Oldest Brother Would Like to be Our Governor-General

London, Nov. 30.—From a reliable source the Canadian Associated Press learns that the Toronto Globe's suggestion that the Duke of Connaught be Earl Grey's successor was inspired by a prominent member of the English nobility. The duke, to use the informant's expression, "would be tickled to death to get the job."

The Canadian Associated Press understands that the Duke of Connaught was approached a short time ago by the nobleman referred to as to his royal highness' acceptance of the post, and the duke was greatly pleased with the proposal.

Wind and Weather and How It is Predicted

There was a fairly large audience to hear Mr. Stupart of Toronto, the weather man for Canada, including between 40 and 50 Normal School students. The lecture was extremely interesting and instructive. Mr. Stupart gave the history of meteorology of winds and weather in the olden days that laid the foundation of the present system of foreasting weather, He told how the mariners of days past predicted the weather from the trades winds and he showed charts to illustrate how this led up to the present system of predicting storms, showers and fine weather.

There are 38 stations in Canada, one of which is located here, and reports are made every twelve hours fromthese and sent to Washington, and sixty-five are received from Washington, and from these charts are drawn the conclusions as to the weather to come. He referred to Foster and Hicks as being absolutely worthless as weather prophets and he proved his statements. He paid a tribute to Mr. Walter Peters for the excellent reports he sent in.

CASE DISMISSED.

Oriental Proprietor Was Charged With Selling After Hours.

Some time ago a charge of selling liquor during prohibited hours was laid against the proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, and the hearing took place before Magistrate D. W. Dumble yesterday. The case occupied the attention of the court the entire day. Many witnesses were called for both sides, but late in the afternoon his worship decided that sufficient evidence had not been produced to warrant a conviction and he dismissed the charge. A great deal of interest was taken in the trial and the court room was crowded all day.

CURED CONSTIPATION QUICKLY.

Tells of a Remedy That is Safe for Young and Old, for All Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayor state: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system, that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue activity. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back."

No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhosone Co., Kingston, Ont.

BRITISH OPINION.

British opinion seems to have suddenly crystallized, as British opinion is wont to do, in regard to the methods of suffragists, or suffragettes—for as Mrs. Pankhurst's visit has taught us there is a subtle distinction between these two words that hitherto had escaped the ordinary man.

The attack upon Winston Churchill with a horsewhip and the severe injuries to an election official in the recent bye-election, in London, has called forth universal condemnation from the British press, and some of the warmest advocates of woman suffrage have seriously asked the women's organizations to consider whether their present course was not calculated to injure, rather than assist, the cause they have apparently so much at heart.

As a matter of fact, the British nation is the last in the world to be moved by such tactics as have been employed. Frenchmen, individually and collectively, might, after a time, smile and shrug their shoulders and say that as the ladies seemed so strongly to desire this thing they must have it; Americans would take a keen delight in their own discomfort—so long as they were not too seriously incommoded—and possibly in the end give in.

The Britisher, to use a homely description, once he gets his back up, largely loses his sense of humor, and when that happens the tactics of the unfortunate widow, are less likely to be successful with him, than with any other people on the face of the globe.

By the way, it speaks well for the traditional British respect for women, that even the women engaged in breaking up meetings where thousands had gathered anxious to hear some famous speaker, were invariably treated with consideration and respect, and it is to be doubted if were ever the scene of these occurrences held in America whether the man of this continent would have displayed the same fine politeness as has characterized England and Englishmen.

A Special In Fine Arts

The "Stunner" Was a Surprise to the Two Students.

By JANE OSBORN.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Stanton Thorpe and his chum, Kid Walker, were walking rapidly across the campus, absorbed in their own importance. It was the first day of their senior year. Stanton was class president, and the Kid was his right hand man.

A tall, striking girl passed rapidly by. Stanton was interested at once and not a little surprised when he saw the girl snub back at his companion, who pulled off his cap with unfeigned satisfaction.

"Who's your friend, Kid?" he asked when they were well out of hearing.

"Why, that's Marjory King. I told you about her. She's the girl I met at the house party last summer; made an awful hit with the fellows there. Isn't she a stunner, though?"

"Marjory King," mused the other thoughtfully.

"Isn't she a stunner?" And the Kid gave his friend a thump on the arm to force an answer.

"Oh, she's a stunner, all right, if that's what you want to know. Say, she isn't a freshman, is she?"

The Kid laughed. "Well, not exactly. She's registered as a special in fine arts. I shouldn't wonder if she was rather oldish myself."

"How old, say?" queried Stanton, whose interest was thoroughly roused.

The Kid's voice was lowered. "Twenty-three," he ventured cautiously.

His companion whistled. "Well, I'm as old as that myself." His eyes had followed her to the other side of the campus. "Say, Kid, she is a stunner. Shouldn't much mind coeducation if they were all like that."

The next day the two boys were making their way from one of the engineering buildings to their dormitory.

"Say, Kid," said Stanton after several minutes' silence, "what's she taking?"

The other smiled gleefully. "She? Oh, she's a special in fine arts, which means anything at all, doesn't it? Why?"

"Well, it's this way," explained Stanton, trying to hide an unexpected feeling of embarrassment. "I was thinking that we'd get better acquainted and kind of gain time on the other fellows if we were to take some work with her."

This plan met with his chum's entire approval, so they turned their steps away from the dormitory toward the dean's office.

Their first task was to see Marjory King's schedule, and the second was to induce the dean to allow them to make a change in their own course of study. The first was easy enough, for as class officers the boys were allowed to have access to the students' records.

"Just want to look at a few of the fellows' time cards," said Stanton to the registrar as he fumbled through the K's in a large card catalogue. He made a few notes from the desired card and returned to his friend, who was seated at the table.

He spoke in subdued tones: "Advanced Italian conversation, art of dressmaking, scientific cooking, study of the child mind and elementary philology. The first we aren't qualified for, the next two aren't open to men, child mind I won't take, so it's got to be the last."

"What is philology, anyway?" asked the Kid.

"Blessed if I know. It's one of Professor Brown's deadliest, but it's perfectly all right."

"Well, let's take it then."

So it was that Stanton Thorpe and Kid Walker, engineers, took up the study of languages under the celebrated Dr. Brown and—as much greater importance—made it a few months the undisputed claimants to the friendship of Marjory King.

As time went on and Marjory was seen more and more with Stanton and the Kid and less with the other boys people began to talk. She apparently found their companionship agreeable, but no one, not even the two lucky seniors themselves, could decide which one she preferred. The rivalry—intense though it was—only cemented their friendship, and they never dreamed of concealing from each other their growing fondness for the girl.

"There's no use joking about it, Kid," said Stanton toward the end of the college year. "I mean business. What's the use of a boy like you getting silly over a girl like Marjory King?"

"Perhaps there isn't any," said the other frankly, "but I'm going to stick it out. It seems sometimes as if she treated me with a little more—more interest than she does you."

Stanton laughed. "That's where you're dead wrong, old man. By the way, that philology exam is going to be pretty stiff for the poor girl. It's a shame she ever took the course with a fossil like Brown. But I imagine I can help her out with my notes. You know I haven't missed a lecture, and I've full reports on all the outside readings. I have offered to let her have my notebook for a week before the exam, and I told her I'd coach her up all I could."

"That's a good move, all right," said the Kid, looking with admiration at his friend. "I wonder why I never think of those things."

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

The following letter signed by the President of the Taxi-Service Company explains the purpose of the Company:—

J. O. Walsh & Company, 1 Madison av., New York:—

The Taxi Service Company was organized under the laws of New Jersey, in February, 1909, to take over the business of William H. Seaich Company, which operated taxicabs and horse drawn vehicles at the Waldorf Astoria, Holland House, Hotel Walcott, Seville and Manhattan Hotels. The William H. Seaich Company had been operated for over 40 years as a high grade livery business.

In April, 1909, this company took over the Hexter Taxameter Cab Company, which operate taxicabs at the Grand Hotel, Bellecaire, Healy's Restaurant (Corner 46th street and Columbus avenue) and the Marseilles.

The company has:—

50 Sultan Taxicabs.
60 American Locomotive Taxicabs.
2 American Locomotive Touring Cars.
75 Horses.
200 Horse drawn Vehicles

of different styles, suitable to operation of this business.

The company leases from Mr. W. H. Seaich one of the finest garages and livery stables in the city of New York. It is located at 142 East 51st street. It is a six story and basement, brick, iron and cement building, thoroughly equipped for the care and repair of both motor and horse drawn vehicles.

I enclose you herewith a statement showing the capitalization, dividends, gross earnings and expenses of the company for eight and one-half months of its operation, from February 15 to October 1, 1909. I also enclose you a list of the stands at which we are now operating.

The company has paid since its organization dividends at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, or 1¾ per cent. quarterly, on its preferred stock, which is cumulative and preferred both as to assets and dividends.

The Company has paid on its common stock 4 per cent per annum, or 1 per cent quarterly since its organization, payable February 15, May 15, August 15 and November 15. The depreciation which we have charged to operating expenses is sufficiently large to replace all of the cabs within four years from the date of their purchase. The Company has not as yet had the benefit of the best part of the year's business, owing to the fact that the summer months are always dull in this line of business, due to the absence from the city of a great number of people who ordinarily use cabs. Also the better weather which prevails during the summer decreases the business to a certain extent.

The Company has not yet received the benefit of its full equipment, as a considerable amount has not as yet been delivered. I conservatively estimate that the operation of this additional equipment will add 40 to 50 per cent to the net earnings.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) HARLAN W. WHIPPLE, President.

The following report, rendered by William Dillon & Company, Certified Public Accountants, of 50 Congress St., Boston, Mass., shows the condition of the Company on November 10, 1909.

Mr. H. W. Whipple, President,
Taxi-Service Company,
356 Fifth Avenue, City.

Dear Sir:—

I have compiled the following statement of the Taxi-Service Company of New Jersey and certify the same as correct:—

ASSETS.

EQUIPMENT, consisting of taxicabs, touring cars, horses, carriages, harnesses	$1,925,422.58
CAPITAL STOCK TAXI-SERVICE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, at par	10,000.00
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE (GOOD) and CASH	60,266.35
Total	$1,995,688.93

LIABILITIES.

MORTGAGE BONDS, lien on a part of the equipment	$61,000.00
ACCOUNTS PAYABLE	416.70
CAPITAL STOCK PREFERRED, outstanding and entitled to dividends	750,000.00
CAPITAL STOCK COMMON, outstanding and entitled to dividends	1,149,100.00
SURPLUS	35,172.23
Total	$1,995,688.93

The company has received in net profits from operating $68,836.42 since the commencement of business, February 15, 1909, to October 31, 1909.

It has paid two dividends out of earnings, the first being $19,456.00, which was at the rate of 7 per cent. on Preferred and 4 per cent on Common, and the second was $21,067.00, being at the same rates.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) WM. DILLON,
Certified Public Accountants.

From the above report it will be seen that this Company, which has been in operation only eight and one-half months, has made a very remarkable showing, and with approximately only one-half of its equipment in operation. The Company operates Taxicabs from the best stands in New York city, which are as follows:—

Executive Offices,	334 5th. Ave.	Station	Colony Club.
Station	Waldorf-Astoria.	"	Bellecaire Hotel.
"	Holland House.	"	Marseille Hotel.
"	Hotel Seville.	"	Leonori Hotel.
"	Healy's Restaurant.	"	Hermitage Hotel.
"	Walcott Hotel.	"	New Grand Hotel.
"	Park Avenue Hotel.	"	Garage. 142 East 51st st.
"	Stratford Hotel.

We offer, subject to prior sale, $250,000 of the preferred stock of this Company at par. This will yield 7 per cent. on the investment, and the preferred stock is a first lien upon the assets as well as the earnings of the Company.

THE RIGHT IS GIVEN TO PURCHASE ¼ SHARE OF COMMON (which pays 4 per cent) AT $45.00 PER SHARE, with each share of preferred; in other words, 25 per cent of the common is allotted with the preferred at the above price.

By careful perusal of this statement you will observe that this proposition offers an exceptional opportunity for investment. We have investigated the Company and its officers, and recommend the purchase of this stock.

Late Mrs. Lowry.

After a very severe illness of about three weeks the death of Mrs. J. J. Lowry, of Highland Grove, near Minden, occurred on Nov. 20.

Mr. Lowry has been aiding since last spring and had been in the land say and Peterborough hospitals, and seemed much better until about three weeks ago when she was taken worse again. Everything was done that medical aid could do but to no avail. She was the eldest daughter of Mr. Rob. McFadden, who until about four years ago, resided here, but who now lives in Peterborough, and was 29 years of age.—Lindsay Warder

MEMORIES OF SCOTLAND'S GREAT MARRYING GROUND.

Coming Case In Courts Where Alex. Bosville of Yorkshire Challenges Title of Lord Macdonald, Hinges on a Gretna Green Wedding and Revives Old Stories — How Earl of Westmorland Married an Heiress.

Memories of Gretna Green will be revived by a most remarkable peerage claim that will be heard shortly in the Scottish courts. Staid lawyers will have to recount one of the most romantic marriages ever celebrated in that little hamlet on the borders of England and Scotland, and rival legal luminaries will vie with one another in tearing a famous love-story to pieces and putting it together again.

The claimant is Mr. Alexander Bosville of Yorkshire, and he challenges the right of the present Lord Macdonald, who is also known as the "Lord of the Isles," to his peerage and estates. The origin of the dispute goes back for more than a hundred years, for the nineteenth century was very young when the third Lord Macdonald eloped with the daughter of the Duke of Gloucester. They fled to Gretna Green, and were married.

Subsequently, the lady gave birth to a son and a daughter. The daughter eventually became Countess of Hopetoun, and was the great-grandmother of the present Marquis of Linlithgow. A few years passed, and Lady Macdonald became very religious. She looked upon her marriage at Gretna Green with suspicion, and her husband, to please her, agreed to have the ceremony performed again—this time in a recognised church.

The second marriage, however, was said to have rendered the first one illegal; and, consequently, it was a son who was born after the second ceremony who succeeded to the title and estates. In turn, he was succeeded by his son. A brother of the latter is the present holder of the title. Meanwhile, the first son of Lady Macdonald succeeded to large estates in Yorkshire, and took the name of Bosville. He had a son, too, and the claimant to the peerage is the grandson of the disinherited Alexander Macdonald, or Bosville.

What the Scottish Courts have to decide is whether the second marriage made the first one null and void. All the available records of Gretna Green are certain to be dragged into the light of day, and many famous stories of aristocratic couples who preferred to be united by the eccentric priests who officiated in the little hamlet rather than risk an open ceremony amidst friends and enemies will be heard.

That truth is stranger than fiction these records prove. For instance, the story of how the Westmorland family became united with the famous London banking firm, the Childs, reads more like fiction than fact. The head of the firm in those days was an immensely wealthy man, with one daughter, a girl of remarkable beauty.

The Earl of Westmorland fell in love with her, proposed, and was accepted. All seemed well with the young couple, because the earl never thought for a moment that he would be disapproved of by her father, and his amazement was great when, on putting his case before the banker, he received the answer, "Your blood, my lord, is good, but money is better."

But the earl was not to be baulked, and he arranged an elopment. At midnight the pair stepped into a chaise drawn by four horses, and they began to race to Gretna Green, the nobleman having arranged for relays of horses on the way.

At Shap he engaged all the horses available, so that nobody else could secure them. Mr. Child, however, was soon on their track; and, so powerful was his money, that he caught them up while they were changing horses at Heaketh, a place in a forest, between Carlisle and Penrith. In a passion, the banker jumped out, and shot one of the leading horses of the earl's carriage.

Meanwhile, one of the latter's servants ran behind Mr. Child's carriage, and cut the leather which attached the body of the carriage to the springs on which it was dependent. The earl drove on with his three horses, leaving the injured one to its fate; and Mr. Child had not gone far before the body of the carriage fell on the frame, and he was compelled to wait for another chaise. Of course, the eloping pair got married at Gretna Green long before the infuriated banker caught them up again.

It was an extraordinary coincidence that the very last marriage of social importance contracted at Gretna Green should have had for one of its principals a granddaughter of the Earl and Countess of Westmorland referred to above. This was Lady Adela Villiers, daughter of an Earl of Jersey, who was united to Colonel Ibbetson in 1843. The officer survived until 1886.

In the forthcoming legal battle the surviving registers of the famous old hamlet will be produced; but the most interesting records were destroyed years ago by the daughter of the officiating parson of that day.

In a fit of madness, she set the room which held them on fire, and herself perished in the flames along with the first and greatest register Gretna knew.

Hamlet's Politics.

Lord Esher had an amusing experience on one occasion while speaking for a young politician, fresh from college, in the South of England. The candidate's speech, perhaps, was more than judiciously besprinkled with quotations from "Hamlet." After a fine peroration, containing huge chunks of the play, he announced that Lord Esher was prepared to answer any questions. A man stood up. "I can't quite make it out," he remarked "whether he is a tariff reformer or a free trader." "Who?" asked Lord Esher. "The man this speech is about." Puzzled, he again inquired what man he meant. "Hamlet," was the reply.

What "Consols" Are?

The "man (or woman) in the street" often has but a hazy idea of "Consols," as would be shown by the notion disclosed in evidence only the other day at a London police court, when a thriftily-minded young person explained that she expected that £15 invested therein would yield her 10s. in the £ interest. She but erred with the elder Weller of immortal memory. Dickens' lovers will well remember Sam Weller's scorn upon discovering that his father supposed "reduced counsels" to be alive. Of course, the word "consols" is an abbreviation in connection with Government funds. In 1751 certain varieties of stock, forming part of our National Debt, were consolidated into one fund under the name of "Consolidated Annuities." The term "Consols," it may be mentioned, has been extended for convenience to various other Government securities.

A Miserly Parson.

Rev. Morgan Jones, a sadly miserly man, was once curate-in-charge at Blewbury. He died worth $200,000, and some curious stories are given of his economy. It is said he wrote his sermons on pieces of paper torn from the walls, and was obliged to lie in bed while his one shirt was being washed.

On one occasion, when walking in the fields he saw an old scare-crow surmounted with a hat, the brim of which was sound. Jones seized the hat, and, tearing the tattered brim from his own, replaced it by that of the scare-crow. It is doubtful if his hat was improved by the change. His coat, of many tatters, is still in existence, and is kept in remembrance by photographs which are sold in the neighborhood.—Art Journal.

ARRANGING ROSES.

Differently Shaped Bowls Require Individual Treatment.

To amateurs and especially beginners the arrangement of flowers in bowls often proves a somewhat difficult task, and it requires almost a born instinct, so to speek, to be able to accomplish this work satisfactorily. Just watch two persons at this seemingly easy and pleasant task. To one the blossoms appear to stand and stay just where they are wanted, while with the other decorator no amount of coaxing or effort produces the required effect, and the exclamation is heard, "I can't make them go right." Of course different shaped bowls require individual treatment in the same way as different flowers, and this must be thought out beforehand to insure success. Some persons are of the opinion that the best way of filling bowls is to cut the stems of the roses or whatever flowers are used quite short, so that by using a large number they will support one another, like a country nosegay. This, however, is not giving the flowers any chance of showing their beauty, nor does it reflect any credit on the arranger. The two must work in harmony to secure the best effect. This is illustrated in the cut given herewith. A large, clear glass bowl is used, filled with the beautiful Mrs. John Laing roses and arranged to show to the best advantage. Some firm red stalks with plenty of thorns are laid across the inside of the bowl, forming a network of stalks; then the roses, each one separately, are placed in the network of stalks, the lower ones first and the tall ones last. By this means a charming effect can be obtained, and the reflection of the rose red stalks in the water adds greatly to the finished appearance of the bowl of roses. It is very pleasing to the eye to see a close quantity of stalks filling up the base of the bowl, and it is quite unnecessary to use flower supports for the roses, as is sometimes done, for the arrangement mentioned above is not only sufficient for the purpose, but far more artistic and satisfactory.

A CLEVER ROSE STUDY.

A LADY'S MEMOIRS.

Countess of Cardigan's Book Causes a Sensation.

No book of recent years has created such a sensation in London as the "Recollections" of the Countess of Cardigan, which have just been published. It is the main topic of conversation in the boudoirs of Mayfair and the West end clubs. It has been characterized as a "volume of blazing indiscretions," and consternation reigns among the elite on account of her ladyship's very frank revelations concerning members of their families. There is no attempt to disguise names, and the annoyance and pain which have been caused by the piquant character of the stories told by the countess have led to many protests against the manner in which she has raised the veil and exposed the immoralities and wickedness of "high society."

"I repeat emphatically," says a writer in The World, "that this is a shameless book. I cannot conceive that the authorities are so feeble and so indifferent as to permit of this book remaining on sale. I call upon them instantly to withdraw it from circulation."

Meantime, while the storm of indignation is raging, the countess has retired into the country to enjoy the sensation she has caused. As a matter of fact, it was her original intention, it is said, to make the book even more outspoken than it is. In the heyday of her charms she counted among her followers royal as well as aristocratic admirers. From these she received countless love-letters, which she treasures as souvenirs of bygone triumphs. It was her intention, so the report goes, to include in her book facsimiles of billets-doux from high-born personages, some of whom are still living. When an inkling of her proposal leaked out, however, strong representations were made to the countess from very high quarters, and in the end she consented to omit certain epistles.

Here are some tit-bits from a book which will be talked about for a long time.

The countess resided in Mayfair at a time when, as she wittily puts it, "Society was composed of brilliant men and witty women, beauties and dandies, who held sway without puffing paragraphs in the newspapers."

On one occasion the countess stayed with Lord and Lady Wilton at Melton Mowbray. His lordship's free and easy life had gained for him the sobriquet of "The Wicked Earl." One Sunday the countess and Lady Wilton went to church, unaccompanied by his lordship.

"I saw the clerk look at us as we entered the church," says the countess, "and he evidently noticed Lord Wilton's absence; but I was not prepared for what followed. The vicar duly commenced, 'When the wicked ——,' but he was stopped by the clerk, who turned to him and, looking across at Lord Wilton's vacant seat, said, in a loud voice, 'Please, sir, his lordship's not come yet.'"

On the journey back to town the countess traveled with the old Duchess of Cambridge. "Directly the train started the duchess opened a large reticule and took out a German sausage, which she devoured with great relish, cutting slices off it with a silver knife, with which she transferred them to her mouth." In the same chapter a story is told of Lord Ward, who had very curly hair, which could never be induced to lie smoothly on his head. One day his valet went into his master's bedroom and saw him sitting in his bath with his hat on. He thought his lordship had gone mad and promptly left, although Lord Ward only wore his hat to try and keep his rebellious curls in order.

There is an amusing story, too, concerning Lord Ernest Bruce, who had a great weakness for leave-takings. "He always loved to speed the parting guest," says the countess, "and invariably went through the same ceremony whenever he said good-bye. This consisted of kissing everybody, and then, with a great show of generosity, he would present the porter with sixpence." The countess had invited a small party for a yachting cruise, which included his lordship's son, Robert Bruce. "When old Lord Ernest was preparing to say good-bye to us, Robert called out, 'Now, father, kiss the porter and give me the sixpence,' greatly to Lord Ernest's annoyance."

A Stranger Lord.

Judge George F. Lawton, of the Probate Court, London, Eng., related a story the other day of a minister who was spending his Sabbatical year traveling abroad. Arriving in London, he made every effort to get an intimate view of the two branches of Parliament in session. Of course, no stranger is allowed on the floor of the House of Lords, but the minister, not knowing this, and with the usual amount of American push, tried to make his way in. There is a rule, however, that servants of the various lords may be admitted to speak to their masters. Seeing the minister walking boldly in, the doorkeeper asked:

"What Lord," repeated the astonished man. "The Lord Jehovah!"

For a moment the doorkeeper hesitated and then admitted him. Turning to the assistant standing near, he said,

"He must mean one of those poor Scotch lairds.

The Dramas of Mincing Lane.

It was only after eleven years of futile knocking at theatrical managers' doors with rolls of manuscript that Mr. Alfred Sutro, who would appear to have scored another success at the Garrick in London with "Making a Gentleman," got his foot on the first rung of the ladder of theatrical fame. At one time he worked in an office in Mincing Lane, and says that those City experiences of his were of immense value to him. "There are dramas in Mincing Lane," to quote his own words, "as thrilling as any that have been placed upon the stage." Mr. Sutro is a brother-in-law of Mr. Rufus Isaacs, K.C., and a distant kinsman of the Sutro who drove the famous Sutro Tunnel through the Nevada mountain, and thus made himself a millionaire.

DECORATIVE SPINACH.

Several New Ways of Serving the Ever Popular Vegetable.

The family dish of spinach can be dressed in more than one original way, which will delight the little people of the household and will give when need be quite a company air to the home table.

One such plan is to mold it quickly on a hot platter into the form of a bird's nest and in the center place three or four hard boiled eggs, which make perhaps the best accompaniment of all.

Or use the nest and fill up with small, whole buttered beets. The red and green combine delightfully, and the flavor of the two vegetables is extremely good in combination. This will not increase the trouble of serving.

Sometimes, too, it can be molded on a square platter into a green bank, from which the scarlet beets, cut across to simulate the petals of I know not what flower, peep out most effectively.

Again, for a guest luncheon select the smallest eggs from the egg basket or ask the grocer to pick out half a dozen tiny ones for you. When these have been hard boiled slice to represent water lilies or daisies (the two blooms are very closely allied in this class of botany) and arrange these floating on a low nest of spinach or growing out from a high hill of the same.

Another way in which it is most delicious is when formed into a round hollow nest or mound, the center of which is filled with a creamy sauce which is eaten with the wholesome herbs, adding much to their suavity. The dressing can, if preferred, be tinted green with a little of the spinach stock or juice.

Longfellow's Granddaughter a Nurse.

It is interesting to know that the granddaughter of the poet Longfellow has announced her intention to renounce society life and devote her time to nursing.

She is Miss Delia F. Dana, the daughter of Richard H. Dana and a debutante of this year in Boston society.

Miss Dana attributes her resolve to give up everything and take up this work for others to a chance meeting with Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador explorer and missionary. She met him with friends on the train going from New York to Boston and at that time made her resolve to abandon a purely social life. She will enter the Boston Children's hospital, where she can be of service to the poor and suffering, especially among the little children.

"The quality of mercy is not strained,'" began the speaker at the meeting of the village branch of the National Hygienic society, whereupon Sister Hankson interrupted with, "Well, then, it ain't sanitary, and we don't want nuthin' t' do with it."—Puck.

Rack For Postcards.

For holding collections of postcards girls who are interested in amateur carpentering and cabinetmaking or, to use the more modern phrase, in manual training are now making very useful and at the same time ornamental racks which hold a large number of cards and keep those from different sections of the country separated. The racks are made of wood and have three bars at each side and two bars on the bottom. At the ends are square pieces of wood hollowed out at the bottom to form two ornamental feet sloped out at the top to make a more ornamental line and with oval holes cut in the center near the top, which form handles, by which the rack may be lifted. There are spaces cut in these solid wooden ends, through which the side and bottom bars are slipped. The two upper side bars are perforated with round holes at regular intervals. Through these perforations slender brass bars are slipped, and it is these brass bars which separate the different groups of cards.

The Vogue of the Farthing.

Farthings were not, at one time, regarded so contemptuously as they are by most people to-day.

Since the Budget perturbed publicans and brewers, the retailers of beer in many places have experienced some difficulty in levying the extra farthing for the half pint on poor people's drinks, because of the aversion in which the smallest coin in the realm is held by the masses of our day.

But in the fourteenth century the London innkeeper was compelled, by order of the Lord Mayor, to supply farthing's-worths of drink to any customer who asked to be served therewith.

John Northampton was the chief magistrate who made the ordinance; and he enforced consideration for the farthing on the baker also, who was obliged to make farthing's-worths of bread to the poor. The priest, too, was not allowed to charge more than a farthing for a mass to his humble flock.

Supplies of farthings were obtainable at the London Guildhall, and, furthermore, if change could not be given by innkeeper or baker, any customer was privileged to take his drink or his bread, and leave without paying.

Dainties For the King.

King Edward has recently enjoyed the delights of a lamprey-pie, which is what very few people have the opportunity of doing.

No one knows when the custom started, but for many, many years Gloucester has annually contributed a lamprey-pie to His Majesty's table. The custom was temporarily dropped in 1836, when the old corporation was abolished, but it was revived by permission of Queen Victoria in 1863.

Another epicurean dainty which the King enjoys are the first plovers' eggs of the season. There is keen competition among all searchers to be the first to send these eggs for the King's table.

If His Majesty is in London they are sent to Buckingham Palace; but at times they have been sent by special messenger to Biarritz when he was staying there. At the beginning of the season plovers' eggs fetch three shillings or four shillings apiece.

One of "The Devil's Own."

Sir Lees Knowles, who is retiring from the 7th Battalion Lancashire Fusiliers, has divided most of his enthusiasm between volunteering and sport. There is hardly a game or sport in which Sir Lees does not excel, and at Rugby and Cambridge he was distinguished by his brilliancy in athletics. He was called to the Bar twenty-seven years ago, and on entering Lincoln's Inn at once joined the Inns of Court Corps, commonly known as "The Devil's Own"—a title given to them by one of the Georges, who, during a review, asked what the men were. "Lawyers, your Majesty," was the reply. "Then," said the genial monarch, "call them 'The Devil's Own'!"

The Navel Orange.

The first we know of the navel orange, which is very valuable not only on account of its fine quality and taste, but also because of its being seedless, is of a single tree that was found growing on the northern shore of the Mediterranean sea. This was about the year 1565, or nearly 350 years ago.

A monk in a monastery in that faraway country painted a picture of the fruit and wrote a description of it, both of which may be seen in the library of the Roman Catholic university at Washington. Grafts of this tree were taken to Spain by the Moors several hundred years ago, and from Spain the trees were carried to South America by the Spaniards.—St. Nicholas.

WHY THESE SHARES ARE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity has a good low-priced capitals, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economical and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point when more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a safe investment and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other sound considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

The company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent govern the handling of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consequently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 30 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in such sum of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend to the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

Wordsof praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discrimin ting and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered

TWO BATTLES.

The Government Forces Being Hard Pressed.

Washington, Nov. 29.—As the result of two battles now in progress in Nicaragua, Dr. Salvador Castrillo Minister delegate to Washington from the revolutionary government in that country, believes that the power of President Zelaya will speedily be broken and that he will be forced to flee for his life.

According to despatches received today by Castrillo from Bluefields, a Government force of fifteen hundred men at Greytown under Gen Toledo is being hard pressed by an insurgent army of about equal strength. At Rama, in the interior, the Zelaya troops are fighting the provisional government troops under command of President Estrada.

The state department was still reticent today as to the course to be pursued by the United States in exacting reparation for the execution of the two Americans, Groce and Cannon. In view of the recent reports of insurgent successes, it would seem likely that there will be no central government with which to deal.

Horace G. Knowles, the new minister to Nicaragua, and who has been detained in this country pending adjustment of the present difficulty, has been summoned to Washington for a conference with Secretary of State Knox. It is understood that the secretary will take up with him the matter of sending a special commission to Costa Rica, in which country is located the Central American peace court, for the purpose of working out a scheme that will insure future peace among the Central American Republics, which seem to have treated with indifference the edicts of the peace court. It is possible that Mr. Knowles will be at the head of the commission, unless developments in the next few days should require sending him to Nicaragua.

MAY SUCCEED ZELAYA.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 29.—It is rumored here that L. F. Corea, former Nicaraguan Minister to the United States, is slated to succeed Zelaya as President of Nicaragua and that his candidacy will meet with the favor of the United States government. While definite knowledge as to his plans are lacking, it is believed that he left here last night for Washington.

U.S. GUNBOAT GOES.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 29.—The gunboat Princeton, Commander C. H. Hayes, is now en route to Corinto, Nicaragua, in compliance with orders from Washington. She cleared from the Bremerton navy yard at eight o'clock last night, and will make the run without a stop.

A TRIP TO ALASKA

A trip to Alaska is one seldom undertaken by people in the British Isles, and of the many bookings undertaken by the Grand Trunk Railway officials in London, few tickets show the destination to be that part far north of Canada, where coal and gold, together with meteorological observations, are often supposed to be the chief reason for the existence of that land. That such a trip can be made with little out of the ordinary fatigue of travelling is well proved by a recent communication sent to Mr. Fred C. Salter, European Traffic Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, from Mr. Bromley Challenor, F.R.G.S., who has just returned from the north-western limit of the North American Continent. The letter has an added interest by reason opening of the Grand Trunk Railway's new offices at 17-19 Cockspur Street, S.W., Mr. Challenor was the first person to book a passage with the Company for Canada. On Dominion Day (July 1st) the trip was planned and provision made for the journey, and, in the first week in October, back in England again, the well-known geographer has been pleased to write to the Grand Trunk offices expressing his entire satisfaction with the easy way in which the journey was accomplished. After thanking the railway officials for making his means of transportation pleasant and comfortable, he says: 'I was very pleased, indeed, with both the road and rolling stock of your Company, and in my opinion it is second to none on the Continent of America. The arrangements you made for me very much added to my comfort and enabled me to reach my destination in the quickest possible time, and I must say I experienced the greatest civility from the Company's staff during my passage on your road. The route you worked out for me was a most interesting one, and the Great Lakes, I did not travel over a single mile a second time except the short run between Sarnia and Toronto. Will you be good enough to send me particulars of your 'Round the World Tours.' I am thinking that next spring I may have an other run out to the West, and if do, I should like to return home via the East." Thus the whole of Great Britain is quickly put in touch by this great railway system, with what frequently is said to be the utmost parts of the earth.—Dublin Ireland) Daily Express, Oct. 19, 1909

SHOULD HELP RAILWAYS.

Prompt Handling of Freight by Shippers Would Avert Car Famine Danger.

An article on the subject of car supply, which aupears in this month;s issue of "Industrial Canada' the official organ of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, has caused a good deal of discussion, and apparently has been misunderstood in some quarters.

A railway freight official said yesterday that a carefdl reading of the article would show that the association had not only made no attack on the railroads, but that it was joining heartily in the movement to avert loss to the business world, always occasioned by want of cars, and conveyed to its members a warning of the impeding danger unless shippers and receivers joined with the railroads in keeping freight cars on the move. The railroads say that there is really no car shortage at present, and it would seem that the public could aid greatly in preventing one if cars were detained only such length of time as is necessary to load and unload freight. In this way the freight car equipment of the railroads, in the use of which the public has a joint interest, could probabl be made to supply all the wants of the shipping world, and the great loss and embarrassment to both the shipping public and the railroads through car famines, which have been of almost yearl y occurrence in the past, would be obviated.—Montreal Gazette, Nov. 3, 1909.

Touch.

In the various games of "touch" the player whose office is to touch another is known by the descriptive pronoun "He," spelled with a capital H.

In the simple game of "touch" "He" tries to undertake and touch some other player, which, when done, the player touched becomes "He" and proceeds himself to touch some one. The players generally must keep their wits about them to know who "He" may happen for the moment to be, as the office shifts from one to another very rapidly.

A "New Bird's" Scheme.

A lazy little bird not far from New York may certainly be termed a "new bird," in that she has improved on old methods and by so doing has made easier her own life. Not caring to be tied to the humdrum care of the house before her family arrived, she built her nest in a bothouse, where the temperature assisted nature and left her free to gad about to her heart's content.

Economy.

On ironing days when Mary presses
From morn till dark my ruffled dresses,
Most beautiful to see,
Sometimes she lets me do "flat" pieces
And fold them nicely into creases
As careful as can be.

With poor folks, then, I sympathize,
For I am made to realize
When I must be so neat
How one must take such earnest pains
And use both hands and eyes and brains
In making both ends meet.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. 10

Fire Alarm System.

Half a dozen members of the ladder section of the fire brigade were out this week cutting down trees and branches that were storm affected, and that were interfering with the system. The alarm system is in working order again, and calls can be heard at the fire station. Permanent repairs will be affected shortly.

The greatest danger from influenza is of its resulting in pneumonia. This can be obviated by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as it not only cures influenza, but counteracts any tendency of the disease towards pneumonia. 11

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. 12

ARMY TEMPLE.

Will Be Formally Re-opened the End of This Week.

The re-opening of the Salvation Army Temple on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Dec. 4th, 5th and 6th, will be one of the most important events in the history of the local corps. The work done by this body is fully appreciated and the fact that the citadel had become too small for the attendance is a proof of the success that has marked the Army's work. The program of the opening has been published and it is expected that the citizens will show their sympathy with the Army's efforts by generous donations on the occasion of the re-opening. The Army feels that the general public sympathizes with their efforts and appreciates the good work that has been done and will be pleased to assist in a material manner.

VOL. XXXII NO. 281 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY DECEMBER 2, 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

Thinks Canada and U. S. will Join when Population is Larger

Ottawa, Dec.1.—Medill McCormack the publisher of the Chicago Tribune, was in Ottawa today, and in the course of an interview had occasion to say several things about the city of Toronto.

He was talking about the much-talked-of merging of the United States with Canada, and of Canada with the United States.

"I don't see, as a matter of fact," he said, "why the two should not be one. Of course, I realize that Canada does not want to lose her identity with that of the United States and the United States do not wish to lose their identity in that of Canada.

"I think it will be accomplished perhaps when Canada has about forty per cent. of the population of the United States.

"I don't see why Toronto would not make just as good a capital of the new nation as Washington is of the United States. I like Toronto. Except for the E.R. on the post boxes and a few little things like that, you might think you were in one of the large American cities. I don't see why it wouldn't make as good a capital as Washington."

NORTHERN ONTARIO MINE.

Tee Arr 189 are Offering Limited Number of Shares for 45c.

The Tee Arr Mining Company, whose mines are situated in the Montreal River District, Northern Ontario, are offering through Messrs. E. C. Short and F. P. Buchanan of Montreal, a limited amountof stock for sale at 45c. per share, the par value being $1.00. This mining property is said by capable engineers to be the best in the Montreal River District. Assays of ore taken out show up to 12,000 ounces of silver per ton and already $100,000 worth of ore have been blocked out. Active operations were begun by this company on May last, and it will not be very long before ore will be shipped and dividendswill be paid. There are many good mining propositions in Northern Ontario but there are none which can excell the Tee Arr. The work already done shows great quantities of valuable ore. So confident are those interested in the property that twelve of the best known business men of Montreal have taken 15,000 shares or more each.

The development work so far consists of surface trenching, some open pit work, two shafts and about 20 feet of drifting from No. 1 shaft at a depth of 61 feet from the cellar. Silver has been found in most of the veins foundon the property. The silver shown in veins 1 and 2 alone warrant the thorough development of the property.

Arthur E. Cole, a mining engineer with a great reputation says, "I consider that 'T.R. 189' is an excellent prospect and that your chances of locating pay ore in workable quantities on development are good."

Billy Sherring Beaten by Tom Longboat

Toronto, Dec. 1.—What?

An amateur race before a professional event?

Somebody is going to get into trouble.

At Chatham last night Tom Longboat defeated Billy Sherring in a five-mile race and this race was preceded by an amateur five-mile event won by Don McCuaig of Hamilton. That is mixing amateurism and professionalism with a vengeance. Longboat was in good shape, and he had to be to beat "littleBillie." There was a large crowd of spectators present to witness the race. Sherring took the lead at the start, but the Indian passed him before hehad gone the first lap. At the third mile Longboat was a lap in the lead, and he held it to the finish, inspite of Sherring's effort in the last mile. Sherring could not hold the corners on the slippery floor and ran wide all the time. He ran a good deal farther than the Indian. Longboat boat took several spurts.

This amateur race was by McQuaig of Hamilton. Chittem, of Chatham, was a close second, and Wallace of Wallaceburg, finished third. Leyden of Northwood, and Higley of Chatham, both dropped out.

Longboat went to Hamilton today. He has no other races in view, but will get into shape for anything that comes.

COUNCIL NOTES.

Whatthe Fathers of the County are Doing this week.

Yesterday all day was spent in committee. The warden and his colleagues got to business early and stuck hard until late in the afternoon. They are taking up finances and the new school inspectorate. The later proposition is no small job.

At night the reeves and deputy-reeves go in for pleasure. They take advantage of, the opportunities offered by the city and they are having a good time. The moving picture theaters are very popular and last night a number of them saw Billy, and had a good laugh.

General regret is expressed that navigation is closed and that no trip up the lakes to inspect the dams and bridges can be taken. The season is also too far advanced to have a picnic. Still along with the steady grind of business the councillors manage to work in some fun on the side.

Thisyear's council are a jolly lot of good fellows, who do business in business hours and other things afterwards. As a result they will have an excellent record to present to their constituents when they go home again.

Tomorrow morning the councillors of Peterborough and Victoria counties will wrestle with the question of uniting for the purpose of school inspection. After that is settled they will next wrestle with the question of who is to be the inspector and which county will pay the biggest share of that salary.

County Council is Interested in Reforestering of the Waste Lands

Thousands of Acres in Peterborough County are Suitable Only for Forests.

Other Speakers Address Meeting

Warden Scott Invited Mr. James Lawler to Give His Lecture Before County Council.

The County Council of Peterborough is greatly interested in the question of reforestration which is at the present time commanding so much attention throdghout the Province and in fact the whole Dominion. Both the Dominion and Ontario governments are expending large sums of money annually to protect the Canadian forests, and there is probably no county in Ontario which could be benefitted to such a great extent as could the good old county of Peterborough which is noted throughout the Dominion for its excellent wood lands, splendid rivers, lakes and water powers. Peterborough has been immensely wealthy in forests, and is today well off, but those forests are fast disappearing, and nothing is being done to preserve the new growth and to prevent the damaging fires which are the curse of all wood lands. There are today in Peterborough county large sections perfectly bare of timber. Lumbermen have skinned out all the pine and the farmers have cut the hardwood, so that only a few miles from the city are found large territories bare and barren. This condition of affairs is rapidly depleting the wealth of the county and it is high time a move was made to replenish our resources. Such was the opinion of Warden R. N. Scott, and when he heard the lecture of Mr. James Lawler, secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association in the City Council chamber on Tuesday night.

Warden Scott saw at once the value of reforestration and he succeeded in inducing Mr. Lawler to remain over and give his lecture before the members of the County Council. Mr. Lawler gave his lecture in the County Council chambers last night and aside from furnishing an abundance of information as to the value of the forest, not only for the timber, but to agricultural and manufacturing interests he let in the light where the representatives of this county saw the way to greatly increase the wealth of the county.

Mr. Lawler showed many views of waste lands caused by the destruction and neglect of the forests which can be seen in reality any day in many parts of Peterborough county. He also pointed out the way to prevent that waste. The councillors became interested and now they are aroused to the true condition of affairs it will not be long before some very active campaign is started.

In Northumberland and Durham there are 15,000 acres of waste land. At the present time that county is carrying on a campaign for the purpose of arousing the people and of deciding whether the county will acquire the lands and set them aside for a forest reserve or indues the Ontario Government to undertake the work. The property they figure will cost $75,000, and it will reforest itself, and then in 30 or 40 years the county will begin to reap the benefit from the sale of timber, but in the meantime the value of the farm land in the county will have greatly increased through the presence of the forest which holds the moisture in the soil and even holds the soil intact.

FollowingMr. Lawler's address Mr. J. H. Burnham gave a stirring talk on the subject and strongly advocated that this county as well as every other county in the Dominion shouldbring pressure to bear upon the Provincial and Dominion governments in regard to this matter. He contended that it was the duty of the government to do the work and it was the right of the people to expect it.

Other speakers were Lt.-Col. A. Stevenson, Crown Lands Agent; Councillor Hales of Chandos, Mr. E. A. F. Peck and Mr. S.H. Armstrong

The Cost of a General Election in Great Britain

Whatever else the general election in Great Britain may do, it will put at least $8,000,000 into circulation, and that will all be spent at home. According to official returns the total cost of the election of 1906 was £1,166,858, or approximately six million dollars. That included all the returning officers' charges. But it did not include the expenditure of the multitude of outside political organizations which have sprung into being all the leagues and associations, and it did not include the expenditure of political enthusiasts who were not recognized as agents for any of the candidates. Nothing is set down for instance, for the use of carriages, although the expenditure in that direction, even though all the vehicles be private property, and freely lent, is heavy. The experienced election agent, familiar with the work all over the country, estimates that the amount of money spent in an election over and above that incurred by the returning officers, the candidates, and their agents, is about half a million sterling, or $2,500,000.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Visited the New Water Works Dam and Were Surprised.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the members of the County Council paid a visit to the new water works dam which is rapidly nearing completion. To say that they were surprised is putting it mild. None of the county fathers had any idea that such an immense work was going on in this city.They were surprised at the immenseness of the contract and at the very rapid progress which is being made. There was a gang of a hundred or more men and everyone of them was on the jump. The contractors have been particularly favored by good weather and they will have the dam completed in another couple of weeks. As a matter of fact damning a big river and erecting a mammoth power house is some thing new for the county councillors as it is in fact to the Peterborough citizens. They were greatly interested in the work and they picked up a numberof valuable pointers which will come in handy in later years. They were also greatly pleased with the quality of the concrete work and all were glad that they had paid the visit.

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS.

Cause, Rush of Blood, Fulness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite.Dr Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it seizes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute.

To Build New Electric Railway with Branch Line to Peterborough

Mr. Hales stated that if Peterborough County was left alone and a few capable men put in the back country to look after the forest land and prevent fires and thefts, this county would very soon reforest itself, and that it was rapidly reforesting itself now. The fires, however, are very destructive and must be watched or the timber will soon be of no use.

Apopular idea seemed to be that the county secure control of these forest lands and hold them as forest reserves so that the county will receive the profits from the timber instead of the government.

Atthe conclusion of the meeting, Councillor Knox of Havelock, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Lawler for his splendid address and to the other gentlemen who had spoken. This was seconded by Councillor Darling of Dummer, and was carried unanimously.

WHOLESALE SWINDLING.

A Colossal Scheme for Swindling the Unwary.

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 2.—When the cases of James C. Maybray and several score of his associates are taken up fortrial at the term of the United States court beginning next week the public will learn for the first time the full details of what is declared to be the most colossal scheme ever devised to separate the unwary from their money. For more than a year some of the shrewdest men of the United States secret service have been engaged in gathering evidence against the Maybray band. Their investigations have extended to every section of the United States and to Canada and Alaska. From the evidence at hand it would appear that the most successful of the gold-brick operators in days gone by were but novices in the swindling game as compared with the men who are charged with fleecing their victims of millions through the medium of fake horse races, prize fights, wrestling matches and pedestrian contests.

At Council Bluffs last September the United States Grand Jury for the Southern District of Iowa indicted James C. Maybray and eighty-four associates on a charge of conspiring to defraud through the use of the United States mails. A number of those indicted are now in jail here awaiting trial. Some of the accused have never been located by the authorities, while a few others have been successful in fighting extradition proceedings. Wresslers, pugilists, turfmen and other sporting men of considerable reputation have been involved in the case. Others of the band are declared to be well known criminals with long records.

Although specific amounts were not mentioned in the indictments, it is said that the amounts lost by the alleged victims of Maybray and his associates will exceed a million dollars. The sums lost run from $1,500 to $30,000, the latter sum having been placed on a fake horse race, according to the evidence at hand, by a Missouri banker.

The Main Line and Branches of the New Road From the East. to Toronto.

The Capital will be $1,000,000

The Details of the Proposed Electric Railway from Port Hope to Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 1.—Application has been made at Ottawa for the incorporation of a company that purposes building an electric railway from Port Hope to Toronto, passing through Newcastle, Bowmanville, Oshawa and Whitby, with branches to Uxbridge, Lindsay and Peterborough, and also stub-lines south to Lake Ontario. At present the G.T. R. runs considerable south of these towns, with the exception of Port Hope, while the C.N.R. survey is far to the north. The names on the application include Dr. T. E. Kaiser, W. F. Cowan and Robert McLaughlin, of Oshawa; Frank Robson and J. H. Downey of Whitby, and Ralph R. Mowbray of Kinsale.

The new company proposes to start with a capital of $1,000,000, the major part of which is Oshawa money.The promoters declare that this capital has been pledged and is on hand waiting only for the sanctionof parliament to be placed upon their scheme. The head office of the projected line, which it appears will be electric throughout, is to be in Oshawa. The words of the bill call for a main or baseline running near the shore of the lake, with four branch lines as follows:

1. FFom a point in the city of Toronto running easterly through or near the towns of Whitby, Oshawa and Bowmanville to Cobourg.
2. From a point in or near Cobourg to Peterborough.
3. From a point in Scarboro' township to the towns of Markham Stouffville or Uxbridge.
4. From a point in or near Oshawa northerly by the east side of Lake Scugog to Lindsay.
5. From a point in or near Oshawa southerly to a point on Lake Ontario.

The two last branches, the former a long and the latter a short one, giving water connection, and bruce communication with lake traffic, will join the main line at the same point, probably in or very near the town of Oshawa, itself.

Itis understood that the promoters have their plans laid, and, immediately upon receiving favorable reports from Ottawa, will send out a small arm of surveyors and engineers to locate the line, intending to push it to completion as rapidly as possible.

ROUTES OF THE BRANCHES.

The branch starting from near Scarboro' Junction will tap the towns of Markham, Stouffville, Goodwood, Bloomington and Uxbridge, and will thus be over 25 miles in length.

The branch from Oshawa to the north, will run to Caesarea and then skirting the shores of Lake Scugog will turn to the north at the upper end and take in several places on its way to Lindsay. While the lake will take off some from the contributary territory on that side, the promoters count this as an excellent proposition. The branch leaving Cobourg will probably run through Rose Mount, and almost touching the west end of Rice Lake, will take straight north to Peterborough.

The shortest of the branches, that from Oshawa to the shore of Lake Ontario, is a hopeful tentacle, stretching out to catch lake trade.

While the course of the line from Scarboro' into Toronto has not been announced, it is thought it will take much the direction of the new Canadian Northern line.

Dr.T. E. Kaiser was in Toronto a day or so ago to confer as to the possibility, and the difficulties of effectingan entrance into the city. The promoters seem to have no doubt that they will be able to come to an agreement regarding the manner of their entrance.

At the George street Methodist parsonage at 7 o'clock Monday evening the wedding was quietly celebrated of Mr. William Herbert Emery of Westwood, to Miss Martha Jane Drummond of the same village. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. A. Pearson. The young couple who will reside in Westwood, were unattended.

Who is the Meanest Man in Peterboro'?

The meeting in the Grand Opera House next Sunday afternoon is under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, and will be for men only.

The meeting will be addressed by Mr. C. R. Drum, one of the secretaries of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Associations of North America.

Mr. Drum will be remembered as the man who spent a week in this city last spring in the interests of the local association work when he conducted meetings in four of the shops at the noon hour and assisted in organizing that work which is now being carried on by the men of the shops, as well as giving an address in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute to a large audience on the subject "That Boy." His address on "An Honest Man," in the Opera House on the Sunday afternoon to nearly seven hundred men will be fresh in the minds of many, while his addresses in St. Paul's church on Sunday evening and at the conference on Bible study on the Thursday evening will no be forgotten.

The subject of the address Mr. Drum will give next Sunday is, "The Meanest Man in Peterborough," and it should interest every man in the city to find out who that man is.

The Orpheus Male Quartette will provide special music for this meeting.

Sunday evening Mr. Drum will speak in George street Methodist church, with special reference to the men of the congregation.

During his visit to Peterborough Mr. Drum will be the guest of Mr. J. C. Shook, the president of the Young Men's Christian Association in his new home.

Cold in the Chest

Had Suffered for Weeks—Used Fourteen Different Remedies Without Effect.

CURED QUICKLY BY NERVILINE.

No stranger proof of the wonderful merit of Nerviline could be produced than the letter of Miss Lucy Mosher who for years has been a well-known resident of Windsor, N.S.

"I want to add my unsolicited testimonial to the efficacy of your wonderful liniment, "Nerviline." I consider it the best remedy for a cold, sore throat, wheezing tightness in the chest, etc., and can state that for years our home has never been without Nerviline. I had a dreadful attack of cold, that settled on my chest, that fourteen different remedies couldn't break up. I rubbed on Nerviline three times a day, used Nerviline as a gargle, and was completely restored. I have induced dozens of my friends to use Nerviline, and they are all delighted with its wonderful power over pain and sickness.

"You are at liberty to publish this signed letter, which I hope will show the way to health to many that need to use Nerviline.

CRIME OF ADVERTISING.

The disciplinary powers of the Ontario Medical Council are likely to be considered at the next session of the Legislature. The main charge against the council is that it has done those things which it ought not to have done, and left undone those things which it ought to have done. Its code of ethics has been lampoon Mr. Labouchere in "Truth," used to put side by side decisions of English magistrates showing that wife-beaters and other brutal criminals were mildly punished, while all the terrors of the law were launched against poachers and petty thieves.

As the fox-hunting squire regards the poacher, so does the Medical Council regard the doctor who advertises. Records of the Medical Council show that advertising is the capital crime, and it would be difficult, if not impossible, to show where a diploma has been cancelled for any other reason than printing an advertisement in some form that was out of harmony with custom and etiquet. Dr. Brichton, a highly respected member of the profession, was disciplined by the council for advertising a remedy for grip, while serious cases of malpractice have been ignored. It is time to modernize the procedure, and bring it into accord with common sense.

ments on their own farms from five to ten, twelve, or even fourteen years. It is impossible to estimate the influence of this work in overflowing the Agricultural College with students, in bringing twenty-five or thirty thousand farmers to visit the College annually, in doubling the output of the Ontario farms in the past sixteen years, and in the betterment of both the farmers and the farms of Ontario.

The program for the 31st annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union have been published and distributed. The meeting will be held at Agricultural College, Guelph, the first three days of the Guelph Winter Fair, viz. Dec. 6, 7, and 8. On Wednesday and Thursday special sessions for the ladies will be held in Massey Hall, O.A.C. One of the officers referred to their union as follows:—

"When we started the co-operative experimental work in Ontario, twenty-four years ago, we believed it to be a move in the right direction. Although it was commenced in a very small way, there being only a dozen experimenters the first year, it has gradually increased in extent and in influence from that time forward. We now have hundreds of men throughout Ontario who have successfully conducted the co-operative experiments.

SHOPPING IN MEXICO

Women Get Plenty of Excitement In Making a Purchase.

BARGAINING AS A FINE ART.

The Descent From the Asking Price to the Last Price and From That to the Final Selling Price Works Out Something Like a Farce Comedy.

When a woman goes shopping in the City of Mexico, especially if she speaks Spanish, she gets far more excitement for her money in the course of an afternoon than she could hope to compass in a year's time in America.

In the Spanish and French dry goods houses, where the trade is almost exclusively feminine, the goods are marked with the "asking price," which is a mere mathematical figure of speech, and the first question that the experienced shopper always asks of the salesman is, "What is your last price?"

This "ultimo precio" is generally about 25 per cent less than the selling price with which the goods are tagged. It forms, however, a certain basis from which to start the bargaining, which thereafter is carried on with all the skill and fury that characterize such transactions everywhere throughout Latin America. The woman customer may wish to purchase a few yards of silk, for example. The marked price is, say, $2 a yard, and the "last price" is given as $1.50. The woman will look at the piece she desires with the same unconcerned scorn with which she regards everything else that is shown her. She will disparage it from every point of view and finally ask for something that is not likely to be in stock. At last she will sigh and look about in despair.

"Caramba, but I'm weary with this vain task of endeavoring to find something that I wish in this second class establishment! The prices are far higher than anywhere else, but I try to patronize this place because the proprietors are friends of my husband. Now, that rose silk is not the shade I wish, but I might be able to use it some time if I could buy it at a reasonable price."

The salesman, who has been listening with an assumed air of sympathy, responds with all the flowery eloquence that he can command and with a constant play of rapid gestures, his lighted cigarette in one hand describing a little arc of fire somewhat dimmer than the diamonds he wears on his fingers.

"Senorita, we place at your feet this establishment and all that it contains. It is your house, and you may do with it as you will. But the very last price at which I can offer you this silk is $1.25 a yard. I do this with a fear of losing my position, but with the hope that the proprietors will pardon my audacity when they learn that your husband is one of their personal friends."

"I thank you, senor," responds the shopper. "I appreciate your consideration, but I could not possibly accept the silk as a gift. Nevertheless I would be willing under the circumstances, so that you might make a reasonable profit, to give you 50 cents a yard for two yards."

At this the salesman drops on the floor the stub of the cigarette he has been smoking. This leaves both hands free, and if he is a master of the selling art as known in that country tears come to his eyes and he wrings his hands apparently in the depths of despair and chagrin. The Mexicans dearly love acting and dissimulation of all sorts, and this bypay of the clerk is but a part of the price of the goods. After frenzied ejaculations he puts the price down to $1 a yard, saying that that figure is the "last of the last prices." The lady has been gazing about indifferently and gathers up her pocketbook and other impedimenta as she rises to depart. As an afterthought and with condescension that amounts almost to pity she remarks:

"Sixty cents—no more. It is my last word. Adios, senor."

"One little moment, senorita. Do not depart in anger. Rather than let you go thus you may have the silk at 90 cents a yard, and I will make up the difference from my own pocket."

The lady hesitates, turns back as if indifferent, yet undecided. Then she again starts toward the door, speaking the phrase of pious farewell which is the Spanish equivalent of a final goodby.

"May you go with God, senor."

She almost has reached the portal when the salesman catches up with her. He has had time to light another cigarette to fortify himself for the final struggle, and, waving this in one hand, he begs her, almost on bended knees, to return and take the silk at 90 cents a yard. She looks languidly upon him. She has concluded that 90 cents would be about the right price and probably the best she can do. Yet she returns undaunted and in the softest of voices breathes the Spanish words which are the equivalent in that tongue for 70 cents. After ten minutes more of firmness on the shopper's part and every aspect of poignant grief by the salesman two yards of silk finally change hands at 75 cents.

The same furious bargaining is the rule in the grocery stores and in the sidewalk markets.—New York Press.

MILK COMMISSION.

Peterborough was visited last week by the Ontario Government Milk Commission which is gathering information of the milk supply in the province to present in its report. Some about that commission will be of interest at this time. The members are now in session in Ottawa. It was the idea of Mr. W. K. McNaught M. P. P. for North Toronto and at first he was met with a lot of opposition from the farmer members.

The scientific side of the commission is represented by the chairman, Dr. A. R. Pyne, an analyst of repute and a brother of the Minister of Education. The other three members of the commission are Finlay MacDiarmid, M.P.P. for West Elgin, a practical farmer, who was freely mentioned as a probable successor to Hon. Nelson Monteith as Minister of Agriculture, J. R. Dargarval, M.P.P. for Leeds, and president of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association; and W. F. Nickle, K.C., M.P.P. for Kingston, who was in the dairy business before he took up law.

The secretary, Mr. W. Bert Roadhouse, is a bright young journalist, who after starting newspaper work in Brampton, joined the Toronto Telegram staff eight or nine years ago and remained there, with the exception of a year spent in London as correspondent for the Canadian Associated Press until appointed secretary of the commission and private secretary to Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture.

J. O. Walsh & Company, 1 Madison av., New York:—

The Taxi-Service Company was organized under the laws of New Jersey, in February, 1908, to take over the business of William H. Besich Company, which operated taxicabs and horse drawn vehicles at the Waldorf-Astoria, Holland House, Hotel Walcott, Seville and Manhattan Hotels. The William H. Besich Company had been operated for over 40 years as a high grade livery business.

In April, 1908, this company took over the Hexter Taxameter Cab Company, which operate taxicabs at the Grand Hotel, Belleclaire, Healy's Restaurant (Corner 66th street and Columbus avenue) and the Marseilles.

The company has:—

96 Sultan Taxicabs.
60 American Locomotive Taxicabs.
3 American Locomotive Touring Cars.
75 Horses.
200 Horse drawn Vehicles

of different styles, suitable to operation of this business.

The company leases from Mr. W. H. Besich one of the finest garages and livery stables in the city of New York. It is located at 162 East 31st street. It is a six story and basement, brick, iron and cement building, thoroughly equipped for the care and repair of both motor and horse drawn vehicles.

I enclose you herewith a statement showing the capitalization, dividends, gross earnings and expenses of the company for eight and one-half months of its operation, from February 15 to October 1, 1909. I also enclose you a list of the stands at which we are now operating.

The company has paid since its organization dividends at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, or 1¾ per cent. quarterly, on its pre ferred stock, which is cumulative and preferred both as to assets and dividends.

The Company has paid on its common stock 4 per cent per annum, or 1 per cent. quarterly since its organization, payable Feb ruary 15, May 15, August 15 and November 15. The depreciation which we have charged to operating expenses is sufficiently large to replace all of the cabs within four years from the date of their purchase. The Company has not as yet had the benefit of the best part of the year's business, owing to the fact that the summer months are always dull in this line of business, due to the absence from the city of a great number of people who ordinarily use cabs. Also the better weather which prevails during the summer decreases the business to a certain extent.

The Company has not yet received the benefit of its full equipment, as a considerable amount has not as yet been delivered. I conservatively estimate that the operation of this additional equipment will add 40 to 50 per cent to the net earnings.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) HARLAN W. WHIPPLE, President.

The following report, rendered by William Dillon & Company, Certified Public Accountants, of 60 Congress St., Boston, Mass., shows the condition of the Company on November 10, 1909.

Mr. H. W. Whipple, President,
Taxi-Service Company,
134 Fifth Avenue, City.

Dear Sir:—

I have compiled the following statement of the Taxi-Service Company of New Jersey and certify the same as correct:—

ASSETS.

EQUIPMENT, consisting of taxicabs, touring cars, horses, carriages, harnesses.	$1,925,422.58
CAPITAL STOCK TAXI-SERVICE COMPANY OF NEW YORK at par.....	10,000.00
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE (GOOD) and CASH.....	60,266.35
Total.....	$1,995,688.93

LIABILITIES.

MORTGAGE BONDS, lien on a part of the equipment.....	$61,000.00
ACCOUNTS PAYABLE.....	416.70
CAPITAL STOCK PREFERRED, outstanding and entitled to dividends	750,000.00
CAPITAL STOCK COMMON, outstanding and entitled to dividends.....	1,149,100.00
SURPLUS.....	35,172.23
Total.....	$1,995,688.93

The company has received in net profits from operating $35,835.42 since the commencement of business, February 15, 1909, to October 31, 1909.

It has paid two dividends out of earnings, the first being $19,456.00, which was at the rate of 7 per cent. on Preferred and 4 per cent on Common, and the second was $21,057.00, being at the same rates.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) WM. DILLON,
Certified Public Accountants.

From the above report it will be seen that this Company, which has been in operation only eight and one-half months, has made a very remarkable showing, and with approximately only one-half of its equipment in operation. The Company operates Taxicabs from the best stands in New York city, which are as follows:—

Executive Offices,	134 5th. Ave.	Station	Colony Club.
Station	Waldorf-Astoria.	"	Belleclaire Hotel.
"	Holland House.	"	Marseilles Hotel.
"	Hotel Seville.	"	Leonori Hotel.
"	Healy's Restaurant.	"	Hermitage Hotel.
"	Walcott Hotel.	"	New Grand Hotel.
"	Park Avenue Hotel.
"	Stratford Hotel.	Garage.	162 East 31st st.

We offer, subject to prior sale, $250,000 of the preferred stock of this Company at par. This will yield 7 per cent. on the investment, and the preferred stock is a first lien upon the assets as well as the earnings of the Company.

THE RIGHT IS GIVEN TO PURCHASE 4 SHARE OF COMMON (which pays 4 per cent) AT $66.00 PER SHARE, with each share of preferred; in other words, 25 per cent of the common is allotted with the preferred at the above price.

By careful perusal of this statement you will observe that this proposition offers an exceptional opportunity for investment. We have investigated the Company and its officers, and recommend the purchase of this stock.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No pay" contract.

I positively pledge to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same or else pass their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not dose the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. I supply Lost Nerve Force, which is Modern Medicine. The books below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a "Tiny Hidden Life-Nerve," no larger than a silken thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its never-ceasing motion or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys each have their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize these weak or failing inside nerves. All of these things tell why I am able to say, "It is free if it fails".

This is why I say "take no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to deliver my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So drop me a line please—and thus save disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for possibly never again. Dr. Shoop, Box 11, Racine, Wis.

HIS LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

How Murphy Succeeded in Having a Good Time.

One of the soldiers at Fort Washington, on the Potomac, was recently given leave of absence the morning after pay day. When his leave expired he didn't appear. The papers recorded, however, that he had been very busy, the range of his activities being comprehended under the title of "plain drunk." He was brought at last before the commander for sentence, and the following dialogue is recorded:

"Well, Murphy, you look as if you had had a severe engagement."

"Yes, sur."

"Have you any money left?"

"No, sur."

"You had $35 when you left the fort, didn't you?"

"Yes, sur."

"What did you do with it?"

"Well, sur, I was walking along, and I met a friend, and we went into a place and spint $8. Thin we come out, and I met another friend, and we spint $8 more, and thin I come out, and we met another friend, and we spint $8 more, and thin we come out, and we met another bunch of friends, and I spint $8 more, and thin I comes home."

"But, Murphy, that makes only $32. What did you do with the other $3?"

Murphy thought. Then he shook his head slowly and said:

"I dunno, colonel. I reckon I must have squandered that money foolishly."—Life.

The Veteran Had Him.

"Were you ever in prison?" demanded the prosecuting attorney insinuatingly.

"Yes, sir," admitted the gray headed witness for the defense.

"Aha, I thought so! And what for, may I ask?"

"Assault with intent to kill."

"And how long were you in prison?"

"Until I escaped, sir."

The prosecutor turned triumphantly to the gentlemen of the jury.

"So, gentlemen," he said, "we have here as the chief witness for the defense an ex-convict and fugitive from justice, by his own confession!"

He turned again to the witness. "When and where were you in prison, sir?" he sneered.

The old man straightened up and spoke in a strong, clear voice:

"I was captured, sir, at the battle of Fort Harris on Sept. 29, 1864, and sent to Libby prison, Richmond. I effected my escape while being transferred to Salisbury, N. C. As to"—

But that was already more than the prosecutor wanted to know.—Everybody's Magazine.

Not In Her Set.

"Why should we be so anxious to communicate with Mars?" asked Mrs. Cumrox.

"It would surely be desirable to know something of its inhabitants," replied the modest scientist.

"Do you think so? From what I read I gathered the idea that most of them are working on canals. Knowing as I do how some canalboat men talk, I am very much inclined to let well enough alone."—Washington Star.

Too Fancy.

"They tell me your village fire company is getting fancy these days?" interrogated the starch drummer.

"Too blamed fancy," grumbled the citizen of Bacon Ridge. "They've even got openwork hose, and that's the reason they can't put out any fires, by gum!"—Chicago News.

Result In Doubt.

"Just one kiss," he pleaded, "only one."

"No," she replied heroically; "it isn't right to kiss till one is engaged."

"Then I'll engage you for one."—Boston Herald.

"Bet you ain't got nuthin' like our subway," boasted the New Yorker.

"In my section," retorted the visitor from the cyclone belt, "we have individual subways."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Women who walk with no heels make a mistake. The heel preserves the arch of the foot and prevents it from becoming flat. It keeps the ankle round and is a help to the spine.

The first thing a plain woman must do is give her figure careful attention. A stylish or even well rounded body will nine times out of ten carry one through far better than a pretty face.

The skin should be carefully massaged before applying plaster to smooth out wrinkles. Before putting on the strips the flesh should be stretched—that is, made smooth—and then the plaster is supposed to hold it flat.

In the West Indies a lemon bath is almost a daily luxury. Three or four limes or lemons are sliced into the water and allowed to lie for half an hour in order that the juice may be extracted. A remarkable sense of freshness and cleanliness is given to the skin.

If the hair is a dull dead black it can be made to shine by rinsing it in many waters and drying it well. It is then brushed with a brush over which the palm of the hand has been rubbed. Into the palm there has been massaged a very little oil. This merely suggests oil to the hair and makes it shine a little without making it greasy.

Here is an excellent mixture for bleaching the neck: Take fresh stained cucumber juice, boil it for five minutes and for every five ounces of juice add pulverized borax, five and one-half ounces; acetate of soda, three ounces; tincture of quillaja, two and one-half ounces; tincture of benzoin, four drams; rosewater, one pint. Mix thoroughly and apply two or three times a day until the stain is removed.

SUFFRAGETTES LOSING.

English Editor Declares It Is Mainly Due to Lack of Decency.

Thousands of supporters of the cause of woman suffrage have been lost, says Mowbray Bell, editor of The London Times, because of the militant tactics of the suffragettes.

"They have displayed a shocking lack of decency," he declares. "Why, look at the time when they forced themselves into Asquith's house uninvited and while they were holding his hand demanded 'votes for women.'

"A friend of mine from New Zealand was at the press conference some time ago. Both of us had been long champions of the woman's right to vote. 'Women suffrage in New Zealand is a good thing,' he told me, 'but I never could support it here. We do not have this kind of woman in New Zealand.'

"It is the militant tactics of the English leaders that have hurt the cause, there is no doubt of that. Those women have labored unceasingly to prove that woman is unfit to be trusted with the suffrage. All the man who were friendly to their cause at first have become disgusted and the suffrage movement in Great Britain to-day has lost greatly in numbers and is not anywhere near as strong as it was a year ago.

"I don't know how a scheme of limited franchise could be worked out, but if I could have my way I think I would let only the women who did not want to vote have the franchise, and those who were insisting on it would have to go without. I think that would limit the franchise to the sensible women all right.

"Then there are the troubles of the poor policemen in protecting anti-suffragette windows from suffragette bricks and flatirons and the difficulty the Government had in treating suffragette prisoners. It has been suggested that it would be a good thing to shave their heads, the way they shave men prisoners, for a woman would sooner part with most anything than her hair. That would be depriving them of one of their chief assets, but I don't know — I don't know — I fear they would find a shaven head just right to fit a halo."

RACED WITH A KING.

Alfonso Was Persistent, and His Opponent Was Courteous.

Of the many residents of Baltimore who passed last summer in Europe probably none attained the distinction of Mr. Samuel C. Rowland, vice president of the International Trust company, who, while motoring in Spain, met King Alfonso of the land of Cervantes. In fact, he met the king three times.

The meetings occurred on the road from Biarritz to San Sebastian and, although interesting, were brief. The first time the king passed Mr. Rowland, then Mr. Rowland passed the king, and finally Alfonso passed Mr. Rowland. They did not speak as they passed by.

Asked yesterday to recite the details of his auto race with the monarch, Mr. Rowland smiled and said:

"I'm a little dubious of this king business," said Mr. Rowland democratically. "First there's the danger of international complications, and then there's lese majesty to be considered."

"Your autos were going in the same direction?" was suggested.

"Yes," assented Mr. Rowland.

"And which was ahead?"

"Well, we were ahead at first, but the king passed us. Then somehow we began to gain on him. Whether my son Harvey, who was driving, opened the throttle a little I am hardly prepared to say. At all events, we gained on him slowly and finally passed him."

"And then?"

"Most persistent king I ever saw," said Mr. Rowland seriously. "In the following mile his machine touched the ground only three times by actual count, and then he passed us."

"And who was ahead at the finish?"

"Well, noblesse oblige, you know, and we let Alfonso keep the lead."—Baltimore Sun.

Invention of the Automobile.

No one man can be said to have invented the automobile, says the Boston Globe. The machine as it is today is the product of many minds in many countries. Horseless vehicles date back almost to the time when steam became a motive power, and as long ago as 1802 Richard Trevithick, an Englishman, constructed a machine which made a trip of ninety miles over country roads. In 1863 Delamare-Debouteville and Malandin of Paris invented a tricycle propelled by compressed gas and a year later used petroleum for generating power. Panhard and Levassar were the first to invent a really practical petroleum motor. This was in 1890, since which time the development of the various types of road motors has been rapid. Electricity as a motive power for road machines was first used in the early eighties, but it was not until about 1898 that it began to be looked upon as a rival of petroleum. Of late years gasoline and steam motors have been extensively used.

Removable Clock Dials.

An improvement in clock dials which makes repairing much more convenient has been designed by a New York man. This dial is made in two parts, which slide through grooves at the sides and meet in the middle of the face. Their action is absolutely independent of the hands, and the sections may be removed with ease without first taking off the hands, as was necessary formerly. Such a contrivance not only makes less work for the clock man when repairs are necessary, but because of the ease with which the face is removed and the works reached many a man will be able to make his own repairs where he would otherwise have hesitated to attempt it. Most clocks are adjusted from the back, but the difficulty often lies in a front part, which is difficult to reach from the rear, even by an expert on timepieces. With a clock that opens both back and front every bit of mechanism is conveniently accessible.—Chicago News.

Metal Cutting With Oxygen.

A recent improvement in the method of cutting metals by a jet of oxygen consists in keeping the metal around the place where the jet operates in a state of incandescence. This does away with the former trouble caused by the presence of iron oxide and by unsteady manipulation of the jet. Plates of steel twelve inches thick can be cut by the jet. In one recent case a slab of steel eight inches thick was cut into strips three-quarters of an inch wide, and the width of the cut made by the jet was only about a quarter of an inch. Circular cuts can be made, and instead of penetrating straight down from the face of the plate the cut can be made bevel.

A Two Ton Crystal.

Near Fang San, a low mountain some ten miles to the west of Haichow, a huge piece of crystal was recently unearthed. It is said to weigh 2,000 catties, is over four feet in diameter and five feet long. This is the second large crystal found at this place within two months. The crystal is a sort of flint. It is used in the making of Chinese spectacles and brings large prices. It is said that the owners were offered $25,000 for the piece.—Shanghai Times.

To Relieve Sore Throat.

At this season of the year, when sore throats, laryngitis and similar complaints are very prevalent in London, it may interest your readers to know of a very simple remedy which is recommended by the celebrated Dr. Fauvel of Paris. He recommends a gargle of ordinary tea before going out in the morning and, if possible, on returning at night.—London Standard.

UP THE GIANT'S TOOTH.

Young Woman Describes Hardships in Mountain Climbing.

Climbing mountains does not seem to be an agreeable recreation, to judge from the experiences of Mme. Stella Croissant, who has just ascended the Giant's Tooth, one of the loftiest peaks of the Alps. She had the pleasure of writing her name on the Mantle of the Virgin, which crowns the peak, but what other satisfaction she derived from the exploit is not clear.

Mme. Croissant is a young woman only twenty-two years of age, but her youthful vigor seems to have failed to make the rigors of mountain climbing a pleasure. She tells of muscles strained to the breaking point, limbs almost dislocated, cold, fatigue and the humors of the guide, for "the guide in the high mountains is king. You must obey him and smile, whatever happens." The party crept over slopes of soft snow, placing their feet in the footsteps of the guide and trying to make themselves as light as possible, for they knew that if they dislodged the snow they would be swept to the bottom of the abyss. They were suspended among the crags "like spiders in their webs." Once Mme. Croissant let go of the rope by which she was drawing herself up to a ledge and hung like a package over the void. She was not afraid, she said, but could hear the guide swearing.

The ascent took a couple of days, and after such strenuous labors the climbers might be expected to indulge in a little rest. "But where rest?" asks Mme. Croissant. "The summit is narrow and bristling with jagged points, and one is cold there. One freezes in the most absolute sense of the word. The wind found no obstacles except ourselves, and how it plays with such obstacles! If you consider how cold it must be in those altitudes where one suffers from the rarefaction of the air you will realise how the wind penetrated the meshes of my sweater and made my clothes freeze to my skin. The guide was right when he told me to put on several undervests. So we emptied a flask of eau de vie and said farewell to the summit."

The descent seems to have been as disagreeable as the ascent. It was horribly cold, and, when the party reached a place where it was possible to rest and eat, the guide hurried them on before the pangs of hunger were half satisfied. All had been fasting since daybreak, and it was then 3 o'clock, but they were behind time, the guide said, and the shades of night must not find them in the high mountain.

There was nothing to do but to obey the guide, so the party moved on in silence. "My feet moved automatically," said Mme. Croissant. "I climbed, I jumped, with only my eyes living in my whole body. I went on thus. I don't know how long, until my strength failed completely and I fainted. They gave me water and spirits. After an instant I revived, and, taking the arm of the guide, I went off at a mad pace. I have the same memory of that stage of the journey as one might have of a delirium. My movements had the strange sureness of the somnambulist walking on the edge of a roof. My foot did not stumble or slip. I went, I went. It was a vertigo, a dance of the bones broken on the rocks of ice." —New York Tribune.

Arctic Mary.

Mary Coonie, a full blooded Eskimo, is the Croesus of the arctic circle. Mary cannot read, cannot even write her own name, but that doesn't matter, for she makes so much money that she can afford to hire a private secretary, who is an Englishman and a graduate of Oxford and fully qualified to attend to all clerical and executive details for her. But the gift of management is Mrs. Coonie's and that sagacious daring which most great money makers have. One by one she has acquired a number of rich mining claims, and in others she has an interest, acquired by "grub staking" the discoverers. She is sole owner of a valuable freight carrying business and the largest private reindeer herd in the world. Two thousand of these animals, worth $100 each, bear Mary Coonie's brand, and, besides, she has young herds that will bring her a rich harvest some day.

Monkey Eating Eagle.

A monkey eating eagle from the Philippines, the first specimen ever captured alive, has taken up residence at the London zoological gardens. As he sits on a stump in his large cage, blinking gray eyes at his new surroundings and with the long crest of dirty brown feathers on the top of his head rumpled as though he had been running his fingers through his hair, he looks ridiculously like a rather worried human being. He has the largest beak in the eagle house—a black, savage looking hook an inch deep. His body is dark brown, with breast feathers of a dirty cream color. His full name is Pithecophaga jefferyi, or Jeffery's monkey eating eagle. He was captured by means of snares set around the body of a young pig. He will have to abandon his penchant for monkeys in favor of a diet of chickens and ducks.

Novel Lock For Cars.

Thomas E. Flint of East Syracuse has invented a lock which he believes will stop freight car burglaries everywhere and make him a rich man. The device is novel. It is self locking, and to open the door of the car air must be forced into the lock by means of a small hand pump. The lock is so constructed that only pumps specially constructed will fit. The inventor's plan is that pumps be distributed with freight agents of the railroads.—Syracuse Post Standard.

Another T. A. S.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, pastor of the church of the Sacred Heart, will after the annual T.A.S. banquet, organize a total abstenance society in his parish. The reverend doctor was spiritual advisor and the leading spirit in St. Peter's T.A.S., but owing to his new appointment he has had to severe his connection.

HIS UNLUCKY DAY.

Wunst I got mad at maw;
I don't remember why.
But I 'ist walked right off to school
'Thout tellin' her goodby.

A big ol' lump come in my throat
An' pert' near made me cry,
Fer me an' maw is awful pals
An' allus kiss goodby.

An' might' near everything I did
Went wrong, looked like to me.
I stubbed my toe an' tore my waist
An' fell an' skinned my knee.

I missed in 'rithmetic an' lost
A chanst to get up head,
An' in the spellin' class I left
A letter out of "dead."

An' that ol' lump growed, an' I says,
"I guess if my maw should die
Right now an' me a-leavin' her
'Thout kissin' her goodby."

Gee! That's the longest mornin'
'At I ever spent, I know.
It seemed like more'n fifty years
'Fore it was time to go.

An' never mind what happened
When I seen my maw, but I
'Ist bet I won't go 'way no more
'Thout kissin' her goodby.
—Chicago News.

Disappointed.

"So Marie decided to withdraw from the field of literature."

"Yes, indeed. After she found out the much talked of 'literary style' had nothing to do with gowns or hats she was disgusted."

The King's Umbrella.

The king of the Belgians once left his umbrella in a hansom when driving in Brussels. This was returned to his majesty a few hours afterward by the proud cabby, who was offered for his honesty by King Leopold the sum of 100 francs. The astute jehu, however, begged a great favor of the king. Could he have the umbrella instead of the money? The favor was granted, and before many days had passed the cabman had put up the umbrella for sale, and it was knocked down to some royal enthusiast for 1,100 francs. When King Leopold heard of this he exclaimed, "Well, I've heard of an umbrella being put up to keep off showers of rain, but this seems to have been put up to bring down showers of gold."

It Did Not Pay.

"Son," called the farmer as the aroma of eggs and ham came up through the trapdoor, "why don't you get up?"

"What's the use?" yawned the college boy as he turned over for another nap. "Don't believe in early rising."

"Don't, eh? Well, how about the early bird?"

"Oh, that's a chestnut. The early bird caught the early worm, and the early cat caught the bird, and the early dog caught the cat, and the early dog catcher caught the dog. So there you are. What's the use of getting up early? It doesn't pay."—Detroit Free Press.

Home Production.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I have done something I know you will approve of."

"Indeed!"

"You know how annoyed we've been about the expense of automobile tires."

"Yes."

"Well, I have bought a rubber plant." —Washington Star.

WHY THESE SHARES ARE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for business have always found that the men who have built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all its cares in the world, doubtless the best guarantee for a new business and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other special considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and be shown in the further manner.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailed proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of 8 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 10 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

Wordsof praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discrimin ting and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered

A CURIOUS FLY.

This Waspilke New Zealand Insect Feeds on Spiders.

New Zealand boasts of a fly that feeds on spiders.

This fly is black and waspilke and, like the wasp, lives in a nest of clay built in a crevice, preferably in the upper folds of heavy window curtains. This is one of the great annoyances of the tidy housekeeper in New Zealand. Try as she will, it is almost impossible for her to keep these flies from setting up their homes at the tops of her curtains.

These nests of clay are made up of a series of separate cells, usually from five to eight in number. When the nest is built the fly goes after spiders.

It has no trouble in conquering the spinners of silky webs. They succumb more easily than do the American flies which are so unfortunate as to get tangled in a spider's weaving.

The fly carries the spiders to its home and imprisons each one in a cell. Here the fly lays a single egg, and when the grub hatches out it eats the spider that has been provided for it. When its food is all gone the mother fly goes out and catches another spider, and she keeps this up until the young fly is old enough to catch spiders for itself.—New York Telegram.

Emerson's Courtesy.

When Mrs. Mary A. Livermore was a little girl she was monitor at the Hancock school in Boston, and it was her duty to answer the door. One rainy day the bell rang, and she found at the door a tall, thin man, with a dripping umbrella, who inquired for the principal. She was just at the boisterous and disrespectful age, but there was something about this visitor which so impressed her that she led him in as politely as if he had been a prince, placed a chair for him by the fire, relieved him of his wet coat and umbrella and after she had started to leave the room came back to draw a fire screen between him and the blaze for fear he would find it too hot. She afterward expressed to her teacher some surprise at the unwonted civilities she had felt impelled to show the stranger. He answered: "Ah, that was Ralph Waldo Emerson, and that is the effect he has upon everybody. He is so courteous himself that it calls out the latent courtesy in all others."

Bandages and Red Tape.

During the South African war Rudyard Kipling discovered at Cape Town a hospital without bandages and in desperate need of them. This, too, was in a city where bandages were for sale in many shops. He told an acquaintance that he was going to meet that want, and the gentleman at once offered to pay for all the bandages that Mr. Kipling would buy and take to the hospital. A cart was quickly loaded, and then the author was informed that under army rules the hospital authorities could not receive supplies from a private individual.

"Well," said he, "I will dump the packages on the pavement before the door and then tell them to come out and clear up the litter. Perhaps they can get them into the ward in that way without tearing any red tape."

He drove off with the bandages, and the supplies were somehow smuggled into the hospital.

Just the Same.

"What is your name?" asked the judge of the prisoner.

"Casey, yer honor," answered the prisoner.

"Your full name?" asked the judge.

"Just the same, yer honor," answered the prisoner, "full or sober."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Outcome.

Jack—Where is the pretty girl you were making love to a year ago?

Tom—Oh, she's married long ago.

"Jilted you, eh?"

"No; worse than that. She married me."

The Crisis.

"Now, Tommy, you must go and wash yourself."

"Ma, if you keep on at this washin' business you'll queer me whole vacation."—Century Magazine.

Men's lives are as thoroughly blended with each other as the air they breathe.—Eliot.

How It Happened.

There was a man in our town
Who hunted for the pole,
But another fellow came along
And reached the long sought goal.

And when he found the pole was found,
With all his might and main,
He jumped into his arctic togs
And discovered it again.
—Ellis O. Jones in Judge.

Even Up.

"I suppose you heard what Meanley did in church last Sunday when the plate came round to him."

"Dropped a button in it, I suppose."

"Worst than that. He leaned over and whispered: 'I paid the pastor's car fare yesterday. We'll call it square.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Young Piets.

I wish 'at I wuz twenty feet
In height—indeed I dot—
An' I wuz twenty feet around
An' empty through an' through.

I tell you jus' what I would do.
I'd tell my folks goodby
An' go into a bakery
An' jus' fill up with pie.
—Boston Herald.

No Further Use For Him.

"You are discovered!" exclaimed the two detectives in the same breath.

"All right," replied Bill the Burglar as he calmly stepped out of the window into the free night air. "That much of it is settled. Now go ahead and hold your controversy."—Puck.

Touch.

In the various games of "touch" the player whose office is to touch another is known by the descriptive pronoun "He," spelled with a capital H.

In the simple game of "touch" "He" tries to undertake and touch some other player, which, when done, the player touched becomes "He" and proceeds himself to touch some one. The players generally must keep their wits about them to know who "He" may happen, for the moment to be, as the office shifts from one to another very rapidly.

A "New Bird's" Scheme.

A lazy little bird not far from New York may certainly be termed a "new bird," in that she has improved on old methods and by so doing has made easier her own life. Not caring to be tied to the humdrum care of the house before her family arrived, she built her nest in a bothouse, where the temperature assisted nature and left her free to gad about to her heart's content.

Economy.

On ironing days when Mary presses
From morn till dark my ruffled dresses,
Most beautiful to see,
Sometimes she lets me do "flat" pieces
And fold them nicely into creases
As careful as can be.

With poor folks, then, I sympathize,
For I am made to realize
When I must be so neat
How one must take such earnest pains
And use both hands and eyes and brains
In making both ends meet.

A RIFLE RANGE.

Col. Hemming Looking Over Local Sites for Government.

A rifle range for the military men of Peterborough appears to be in sight at last. Lieut.-Col. Hemming D.O.C. for military district No. 3, was in the city yesterday and in company with Col. Stevenson of the 57th Regiment, looked over a number of sites in an endeavor to secure one that will be suitable for a rifle range. Among the places inspected were Milburn's hill on the Chemong road, and some property, part of which belongs to the Dickson Company, east of the canal and south of the C.P.R. track. The farm of Mr. Samuel Price, in Otonabee township, about a mile east of the city was inspected and the old Curtin range was looked over. Another site under consideration is some property in North Monaghan, belonging to Mr. George Bennett. While the aim is to secure the best site available, the price of the land has to be taken into consideration.

The Times understands that it has been decided at Ottawa to give Peterborough a range without further delay. This will be good news to the military men here, especially the members of the 57th Regiment.

CAPT. BERNIER.

The Arctic Explorer Will Lecture Here Friday Night.

The illustrated lecture to be given by Capt. Bernier of Ottawa, under the auspices of the Royal Astronomical Society in the Collegiate Institute on Friday evening next, Dec. 3, will be of unusual interest, as being delivered by a gentleman whose name has become prominent in Canada and even in the world at large as a great Arctic explorer—Canada's pioneer in that arduous field.

The general subject of Captain Bernier's lecture will be his three subpolar voyages—the first to Hudson's Bay in 1904-5, the second in 1906-6-7 and the third farther north in 1908-9 the latter including what is known as the Sir John Franklin district. The lecture will be illustrated by lantern slides graphically reproduced by striking scenes covered by the several expeditions, rendered interesting if not sacred by being the death and burial places of many of the men who have lost their lives in the polar search.

Capt. Bernier brought back from his various expeditions many most interesting relics, including maps, records, documents, etc. Some of these relics go back to 1850, nearly eighty years ago, and Capt. Bernier has deposited, altogether 140 articles of these kinds in the national museum, at Ottawa. Many of these articles will be exhibited at the meeting on Friday night. On his last expedition Capt. Bernier took possession of hundreds of thousands of square miles of territory in the name of Canada. A man with a story like Captain Bernier has to tell will be well worth hearing.

GOOD CHANGE

Coffee to Postum.

The large army of persons who have found relief from many chronic ailments by changing from coffee to Postum as a daily beverage, is growing each day.

It is only a simple question of trying it for oneself in order to know the joy of returning health as realized by an Ills. yound lady. She writes:

"I had been a coffee drinker nearly all my life and it affected my stomach— caused insomnia and I was seldom without a headache. I had heard about Postum and how beneficial it was, so concluded to quit coffee and try it.

"I was delighted with the change. I can now sleep well and seldom ever have headache. My stomach has gotten strong and I can eat without suffering afterwards. I think my whole system greatly benefited by Postum.

"My brother also suffered from stomach trouble while he drank coffee but now, since using Postum he feels so much better he would not go back to coffee for anything."

CAPITAL STOCK (Authorized $1,000,000—1,000,000 SHARES OF $1.00 EACH.
700,000 SHARES ISSUED—300,000 IN TREASURY.

Claim "T. R. 189" is stated by competent mining engineers to be undoubtedly the best property in the Montreal River District. It contains 40 acres, mostly hilly, of diabase formation, and is within 2¼ miles of transportation.

Active development was begun by the present owners in May last. The necessary buildings for men, horses, tools, powder and stores have been erected. About two miles of surface trenching have been done in the south-east quarter of the property, 14 veins have been uncovered, 8 of them showing silver at or near the surface.

Assays of surface ore have run as high as 12,000 ounces to the ton.

Two shafts have been sunk, No. 1 to a depth of 63 feet, and No. 2 to 62 feet.

Shaft No. 2 opens up a vein from 5 to 14 inches thick, which is improving with depth, and which shows plates and leaves of pure metallic silver embedded in the calcite.

Shaft No. 1 also shows greatly increasing values with depth. At 60 feet the ore is very rich. There are two veins, 8 inches and 2 inches thick, separated by 20 to 26 inches of silver-bearing aplite. At 63 feet a level has been driven along the vein for 20 feet.

The ore taken from this level has been of exceptional richness, running from 8,000 to 17,000 ounces to the ton.

Such large values, obtained so near the surface, are very promising, particularly as at 3 other points along the same vein masses of pure metallic silver have been found directly beneath the soil. There is therefore every reason to believe that this vein will show at other points values equally as large as those where the shaft has been sunk.

Already $100,000 worth of ore has been blocked out.

The large number of veins that have been stripped, in the section trenched promises a large tonnage of pay ore when they are developed. Then there is ¾ of the claim not yet trenched which should show equally satisfactory values.

An idea of the excellent returns which Claim "T. R. 189" promises on money invested, can be gained from the fact that, among others, the following gentlemen are each owners of 15,000 shares or more—

HENRY M. LYMAN.	F. P. BUCHANAN.	S. LICHTENHEIN.	T. L. MORRISEY.

The Liquor Campaign Grows Fierce in U. S.

Federal Authorities Now Take a Hand in the Game—Stringent Laws will be Passed

(Special to The Times.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—Another phase in the great campaign against liquor will come to the fore the first of next month, when the revised penal code of the United States is to become effective. Many of the changes made in the penal laws by the Sixtieth Congress were of minor interest, but the section relating to the shipment of intoxicating liquors into "dry" territory contained new legislation, the result of which will be to make the United States a factor in prosecuting violators of the act. In thickly settled communities the local authorities, as a rule, are able to deal effectively with offenders, but in certain sections of the South and West, where settlement is sparse, the task is not so easy, and the members of Congress from those sections insisted that the federal government should come to the aid of the local authorities.

Three sections of the new codification relate to the liquor traffic. The most important provision is that on and after January 1 every shipment of intoxicating liquor shall bear the name of the consignee, the nature of the contents of the receptacle and the quantity contained therein. It is a notorious fact, so say persons who have had experience in attempting to drive out "blind tigers," that practically all the liquor now shipped into prohibited territory is labelled as some other commodity, or not labeled at all, and frequently addressed to persons other than the consignee.

The federal authorities already have sent out notice to all manufacturers of intoxicants that their wares must be labelled on the outside of the package on and after the first of the new year, setting forth the nature of the contents and the exact amount in each package. It is believed that if the local authorities cooperate with the federal government in the enforcement of the law it will be a comparatively easy matter to suppress the "blind tigers." It is pointed out that from now on they cannot exist without violating the federal statute, and the assumption of the Department of Justice is that would be violators will not care to take the chance of falling into the clutches of the federal courts.

It has been alleged from time to time that in some of the States where the sale of intoxicating liquor has been prohibited in one way or another the railroads and express companies assisted the violators of the law by acting as buying or selling agents, or both. Congress, with the idea of putting a stop to this practice, provided as follows: "Any railroad company, express company, or other common carrier, or any other person who, in connection with the transportation of any spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquor of any kind, from one State, Territory, or District of the United States, into any State, Territory or District of the United States, or from any foreign country into any State, Territory, or District of the United States, shall collect the purchase price or any part thereof, before, on, or after delivery, or shall in any manner act as the agent of the buyer or seller of any such liquor for the purpose of buying or selling or completing the sale thereof, saving only in the actual transportation and delivery of the same, shall be fined not more than $5000."

Good Roads Question an Important One Here People are Being Bled

A very important question for the council, and especially the Board of Works, to take up at the first of the year, is permanent road ways. For many years an experiment has been tried with the lime stone, or field stone, gathered from nearby farms by the local teamsters during the winter months. That stone has proven itself a total failure as road material, and attention has been drawn to that fact in these columns on several previous occasions.

There is not the slightest excuse for Peterborough using that soft material. The very best granite is at Stony Lake in almost inexhaustable quantities. It requires only quarrying and bringing down. Granite if properly used will make practically a permanent road. The initial cost is probably a little more than field stone, but once laid it is there and patch work is unnecessay and at the same time the city will have a road to which the citizens can point with pride.

By using field stone, the greater part of which is lime stone, the city never has a road. For instance take George street. Only three years ago an excellent coating of stone was out on and for the first season traveling was fine. Since then however, patch work has been necessary and today the road is no better than it was three years ago. The field stone grinds to a powder and is blown off in dust and scraped off as mud in the spring. Great holes are created and the roads are a disgrace

The time has come for Peterborough to assume city airs. To build roads that will be permanent and which will stand the heavy and increasing traffic. There is only one way to do that and that is by the use of the granite from Stony Lake. This is a serious matter to the citizens for they are being compelled to pay large sums every year for road work and they get very little returns. They are paying many times over the cost of a good granite road by fooling along year after year with field stone.

The excuse has been that the use of field stone gives employment to a number of teamsters in the winter when their business is slack. That is a very slim excuse. It may be a vot a very slim excuse, It may be a vote getter in January, but it is no reason why the general public should be bled for thousands of dollars every year.

Four Hundred Families Turned Into the Streets

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 2.— Four hundred more of the families of the strikers from the plant of the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates today joined the destitute homeless that are huddled about the meager piles of household goods in the streets of Ludlow. Lieutentant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham, acting governor in the absence of Governor Draper, shook his head depreciatingly as he watched today's evictions.

A dozen burly agents of the company at the head of an armed force of 300 deputies, Pinkertons, and special officers marched through the town when the sun rose this morning. The little army surrounded one of the company's houses; the evictors entered, and in a few minutes the few belongings of the occupants were in the streets. Many women and children were still in bed when today's eviction was begun, but the officers did not hesitate. Half clad, the women and children sleepily followed their little belongings into the street, shivering in the chill morning air. The men, big-eyed with sorrow and resentment, stood stolidly by, helpless.

STOVES, BREAKFAST AND ALL.

Weeping women watched the stoves upon which they had been preparing breakfast carried into the street with the food still smoking upon them, and the stovepipes, leaving a trail of black soot in its wake. The evictors piled stoves, beds, tables, and chairs in the muddy streets, and on top of the pile threw the clothing of the evicted tenants.

A squad of Pinkertons preceded the evictors, serving eviction notices, and today served one on the family of Joseph Hudick in Western street. In a little bedroom of the Hudick home lie Hudick's wife and a child born Tuesday night. Hudick has pleaded piteously with the company to allow his wife to remain in the house until she and the child are a little stronger, but without avail. They must leave the house today, and it is feared the moving will kill both mother and child. Hudick is frantic. In another house near the Hudick home is a woman critically ill. Her husband was served with a eviction notice today.

With Liberals Returned to Power British Empire will Pass Away

Says Lord Charles Beresford.

The Army and Navy Will Be Further Reduced and the End is Sure to Come.

Sees Nothing But Ruin for Britain

The Colonies Will Be Alienated and the British Empire Will Pass Away.

London, Dec. 2.—Lord Charles Beresford, speaking at Portsmouth, said that four years have the government wanted, for every year had brought the country lower in credit, strength and defensive force. "Put them in power once more," he said, "and the end is sure. The army will be further reduced; the navy will continue starved; its present disorganization will grow worse, and the dominions beyond the seas will be finally and forever alienated; Britain will cease to be a great power, and the British empire will pass away."

Lord Charles Beresford is the Unionist candidate in Portsmouth, while Mr. R. C. Lambert is the Liberal nominee, and Ald. W. Saunders is the Labor candidate. In 1906 the Liberal majority over Labor was 2,338, and over Unionist, 2,530. In 1900 the Unionists had a majority of 604 over the Liberals.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Put Through a Long List of Accounts Yesterday.

The Finance Committee met yesterday afternoon and passed a long list of accounts preparatory to the last general meeting of the council for 1909. It is not likely that any more accounts will be passed by the committee until the new council is elected although the whole council may do so.

A letter was received from City Solicitor Hall re cheque from the liquidators of the Shovel and Tool Co., The cheque amounted to $66.85 for taxes, and the committee authorized the tax collector to accept the same.

S. Coon of the Princess theater was granted license for the balance of his term, he paying the difference between it and a moving picture license.

Upon the recommendation of the city engineer, the rate of interest on local improvements done this year will be 4½ per cent., and the sinking fund 4 per cent.

Dr. McPherson's account for medical attendance during the smallpox outbreak for $1000, was referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

70 YEARS OLD.

Grateful for Medical Aid.

"Though I had passed by seventieth birthday," writes R. A. Silvera from Duncan P.O., "I am painfully aware that one of the penalties of old age is the slowing down of the activities of the system. One of the most dangerous conditions of old age is constipation, an indirect cause of many sudden deaths. I have used many medicines, but none so suited to old age as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are wonderful regulators—keep the stomach and bowels in perfect condition, prevent indigestion, biliousness, liver complaint and constipation. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills because they never grip nor cause distress — just a mild tonic laxative."

By using Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly you have a guarantee of good health. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MANY APPEALS

Against the Voters' Lists Have Been Entered.

Wednesday was the last day for entering appeals in connection with the voters' lists of the city of Peterborough for 1910, and judging by the number of appeals put in there has been a good deal of work done in this connection during the past few weeks. The total number of names which will come before his Honor Judge Huycke is three hundred and ninety-eight, which is many times larger than the number in past years. Of course it is the local option fight that it is responsible for the activity to have names placed on the list and both sides have been busy getting the names of those who are perhaps entitled to vote, but who are not on the list. One hundred and fifty-eight appeals have been entered by the local option party and those opposed to the introduction of the bylaw have sent in lists, the names on which total two hundred and fifty-five. Some of the names but only a few, appear on the lists of both sides. In addition to the above fifteen appeals have been entered by individual parties.

The date for hearing the appeals has not been set.

Junior O.H.A. Team in Lindsay.

There'll be hockey in Lindsay this winter alright. Despite talk to the contrary some sports are backing a club which will place a junior team in the O.H.A. A little informal meeting was held last night in a local hotel, and the conclave lasted for considerable time. The upshot was that a decision to enter a team was reached. This team will be composed of the rising generation of hockey players and great things are expected of the boys in future years if not in A.D. 1910.— Lindsay Warder.

Attacked by Flames Woman Plunged Into the Lake

(Special to The Times.)

Walkerton, Dec. 2.—Risking her life to save her six-year-old son from a blaze following a gasoline explosion at her home on the lake shore, above here. Mrs. Aroz Drouillard rushed from the house enveloped in flames, and escaped death by plunging into the lake. Then she made her way to the house and saved it from total destruction by stamping out the flames. She was severely burned about the arms and face. Mrs. Douillard was using the gasoline in her house work, and the explosion was caused by the child bringing a quantity into contact with the fire.

United States to Make War on Zelaya

ZELAYA TO QUIT.

New Orleans, Dec. 2.—"Zelaya is ready to step dawn and out, and Secretary of State Knox will name his successor."

This was the statement made today by Consul-General Altschul of the established Nicaraguan Government, Zelaya's personal friend.

Washington, Dec. 2.—That there will be immediate and vigorous military demonstration by the United States against President Zelaya of Nicaragua, and what is left of his government is practicalnly certain. The scathing letter sent last night by Secretary of State Knox to to Senor Rodriguez, Charge d'Affaires of the Zelayan Government in Washington, is believed to be the forerunner of an order from the navy department despatching marines to both the Atlantic and Pacific shores of Nicaragua.

The secretary's letter was delayed until all should be in readiness for such a demonstration. Eight hundred marines have now assembled at the League Island Navy Yard, Philadelphia, and are ready to sail at a moment's notice on the cruiser Prairie. In addition the Prairie will carry two three-inch field pieces, 600,000 rounds of ammunition, tents, camp stoves, and other field supplies. At Panama the Buffalo is ready to leave for Nicaragua with the four hundred marines who have been doing duty on the canal zone.

There are already in Nicaragua or neighboring waters, four men-of-war: The Vicksburg at Corinto, the Marietta at Bluefields, and the Des Moines and Tacoma at Port Limon.

The cruiser New Orleans is under steam at San Francisco expecting to be ordered to Nicaragua within a day or two.

From these vessels could be landed a force of bluejackets and marines, believed to be amply sufficient to cope with Zelaya's army, especially in view of the assistance that would be rendered by the Estrada revolutionists.

Capt. Bernier's Narrow Escape on His Last Trip · Lectures Here Tonight

Capt. Bernier will arrive in the city today to give his lecture on his explorations in the Arctic circle in the Grand Opera House tonight. The captain's father and his grandfathers their cousins and uncles have commanded ships for an aggregate of 700 years, so he is a natural seaman

Captain Bernier as might be expected, has somewhat of a French accent. They were mostly Frenchmen on the Arctic, and during the long winter Sabbaths at Melville Island they said their prayers like good Catholics. Nearly a year they spent there, and a year of motony it was.

"Narrow escapes are something I seldom have," remarked the captain when asked about his own experiences in the frozen north. "The only escape I had this trip was at Byam Martin, about 75 degrees north. I had landed with a party to leave records there, but we got a signal from the ship to come back. We hurried. I was well in advance, and I tapped the ice well with my stick as I went along, for the tide had fallen three feet. My stick made no impression on the ice, but I did First thing I knew I was through, mygun strapped across my back, saved me from going under altogether. Also I spread out my arms as I went down.

"I got out of that hole as quickly as I could. The others were laughing at me, and I did not likeit, so I was out almost as soon as I was in. You know how a person feels on such an occasion.

"Catch cold? Not a bit of it. Nobody caught cold up north. They could get soaked to the skin in the coldest atmosphere and nothing resulted from it. But when we came back to fresh water we all got colds. I don't think there is any harm in salt water, even when it is chilly."

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium, Chloroforms, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainsnow shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough, and to soothe, and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Played with Matches and Lost Her Life

Maxwell, Dec. 2.—Sadie Coutts, six years old, only daughter of William Coutts, was burned to death yesterday. No one was in the house with the child at the time except her aged grandmother, Mrs. McFadden, who was unable to render any assistance. The little girl was playing with a bunch of parlor matches when they became ignited and set fire to her dress. When her mother came in, attracted by her screams, she found the child a mass of flames. She succeeded in extinguishing the fire, but was too late to save the little one's life.

A Scathing Criticism of Lord Pentland

His Sole Asset for the Position of Governor General of Canada, says a Correspondent, is His Wife, Lord Aberdeen's Daughter

London, Dec. 2.—A Liberal correspondent of the Evening News, says that Lord Pentland, who is a son-in-law of the Earl of Aberdeen, was made a peer early in the present year with the express purpose of following Earl Grey in Canada. Pentland's appointment to cabinet rank on the formation of the Campbell-Bannerman Government in November, 1906, was looked upon by one and all as a job, he being Sir Henry's private secretary and nothing else. As Scottish secretary, he left all the work to the lord advocate and, even when the Scottish estimates were under discussion, he seldom intervened in the debate. His sole asset for Canada is his wife, who is popular on account of Lord Aberdeen's virtues. Ten years ago — in fact all along—it has been freely stated that the Aberdeen influence has made him, and that Lord Aberdeen refused to accept the lord-lieutenancy of Ireland unless his son-in-law, Captain Sinclair (now Lord Pentland) was given high office.

No successor to Lord Grey as Governor-General of Canada has been announced. Lord Pentland being merely one of those whose names have been mentioned in connection with the appointment.

Government Advised King Edward to Dissolve Parliament

London, Dec. 2.—The House of Commons by a vote of 349 to 164 today passed the resolution of Premier Asquith to the effect that in rejecting the government's budget bill the House of Lords had committed a breach of the constitution and usurped the rights of the House of Commons.

LABOR WITH ASQUITH.

Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor party in the House of Commons, announced that the government would have the whole-hearted support of the Laborites.

London, Dec. 2.—Premier Asquith announced in the House o Commons today that the Government had advised King Edward to dissolve Parliament, and that his majesty had accepted the invitation. The premier added that if the Liberals were returned to power the first act of the government would be the re-enactment of all the taxes for which provision was made in the budget rejected by the House of Lords.

All the preliminaries to the great political battle are being cleared away this afternoon at Sandringham where the King held a meeting with the Privy Council during which he signed an order proroguing Parliament until Jan. 17, 1910. The fixing of this date was a mere formality, as before that time the House had been dissolved.

The center of interest today was the House of Commons, where Premier Asquith, on behalf of his government, delivered the reply to the action of the House of Lords in withholding their consent upon the budget. The house was crowded with members and the galleries were filled with lords, diplomats and other distinguished personages. The ministers and Unionists leaders, including Mr. A. J. Balfour, who had sufficiently recovered from an indisposition to take part in the debate, entered the camber during the course of the routine business and were received with cheers by their supporters, who rose to the feet and waved their hats in welcome to the chiefs. The Nationalists, who had decided not to participate in the debate or division were conspicuous by their absence.

Premier Asquith's first words as he arose amid the wildest demonstration of enthusiasm to move the resolution of which he had given notice on Tuesday, were: "We are meeting this afternoon under circumstances without example in the history of the British Parliament."

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.

The prime minister pointed out that in opening Parliament the King had invited the House of Commons alone to make provision for the heavy additional expenditure in view of the necessities in the way of social reform and the national defence. The budget was the result, and it represented, he said, to a greater degree than any other measure of our time deliberate work of an overwhelming majority of the representatives of the people. In the course of the week that whole fabric had been thrown to the ground by a body which admittedly had no power to increase or decrease a single tax. With much emphasis Premier Asquith declared that the House of Commons would prove unworthy of its traditions if it allowed a single day to pass without making clear that it did not mean to brook this grave indignity and arrogant usurpation of its rights.

London, Dec. 1.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons today that he would tomorrow move a resolution to the effect that the action of the House of Lords in refusing to pass into law the financial provisions made by the Lower Chamber for the expenses of the year was a breach if the constitution and an usurpation of the rights of the House of Commons. When the the premier entered the chamber this afternoon the supporters of the government rose to their feet and greeted him with ringing cheers. Immediatelyfollowing the conclusion of routine business the prime minister took the floor and as soon as he had concluded his speech the House adjourned.

In introducing his resolution tomorrow Premier Asquith will go exhaustively into the question of the respective privileges of the House of Lords and the House of Commons, and state in detail the government's intentions. He will also fix the day of prorogation, probably Friday.

Potmer Premier Balfour, leader of the Opposition in the Commons, will reply, setting forth the view that the new and important departures in public policy represented by the Budget bill should be submitted to the people.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish party, and possibly one representative of the Labor party will follow with speeches.

PETERBOROUGH POULTRY SHOW

A Coming Event Eagerly Looked forward to by Lovers of Poultry.

The Directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association are leaving no stone unturned to assure the Poultry Show on January 4th, 5th and 6th being a huge success in every way. They are much encouraged by the large number of applications received, daily for entry lists, which can be obtained from the Secretary, Mr. John R. Eastwood, at the Royal Bank. Among the special prizes will be a $5 gold piece for the best Buff Orpington Rooster exhibited. For the best turkey, dressed, $6 will go to the winner, and for the next two, in order of merit, $3 and $1, respectively $10 in all for this class of exhibit. The turkeys should be starved and drawn, with head, tail and flight feathers left intact. This is an innovation to the usual poultry exhibit, and is attracting considerable attention amongst farmers' wives and breeders of turkeys.

LIEUT. C. A. HENRY.

Peterborough Boy Gets Commission in Victoria Regiment.

C. A. Henry, who for three years served as sergeant in No. 7 Company of the 57th Regiment, has received a commission as lieutenant in the 45th Victoria Regiment, with headquarters at Lindsay. Mr. Henry originally belonged to the 45th, but when he came to Peterborough he joined the 57th as sergeant in No. 7 Company. Last year he returned to his old regiment although he is still a resident of this city.

SOUTH END SEWER.

Board of Works Members Did Not Turn Out to the Meeting.

There was not a quorium at the Board of Works last night and the chairman declared the meeting off, after waiting until 8.45. The board will likely be called together again before the end of the year as Mr. Chipman's first report on the new sewer system for the south end is waiting and it should be dealt with at an early date as Mr. Chipman is awaiting instructions from the board before making his final report. The south end wants sewer accommodation, but nothing can be done until the engineer's report is received.

RESULTS OF FOOD.

Health and Natural Conditions Come From Right Feeding.

Man, physically, should be like a perfectly regulated machine, each part working easily in its appropriate place. A slight derangement causes undue friction and wear, and frequently ruins the entire system.

A well-known educator of Boston found a way to keep the brain and the body in that harmonious co-operation which makes a joy of living.

"Two years ago," she writes, "being in a condition of nervous exhaustion, I resigned my position as teacher, which I had held for over 40 years. Since then the entire rest has of course, been a benefit, but the use of Grape-Nuts has removed one great cause of illness in the past, namely, constipation, and its attendant evils.

"I generally make my entire breakfast on a raw egg beaten into four spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, with a little hot milk or hot water added. I like it extremely, my food assimilates, and my bowels take care of themselves. I find my brain power and physical endurance much greater and I know that the use of the Grape-Nuts has contributed largely to this result.

"It is with feelings of gratitude that I write this testimonial, and trust it may be the means of aiding of others in their search for health."

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1909

WHO MAY VOTE.

The Ontario Local Option law provides that a local option by-law before being finally passed, must be approved "by the electors of the municipality" in which it is to take effect.

The courts have definitely decided that the words "electors of the municipality" are to be construed as meaning such persons in a municipality as would be entitled to vote in the election for members of the municipal council.

A municipal elector must be a British subject not less than twenty-one years of age. His name must be on part one or part two of the voter's list of the municipality as finally revised by the county judge. The last revised list is used in the voting.

An unmarried woman, either a spinster or a widow, may have her name on the list and may vote if she is otherwise possessed of the necessary qualifications.

A voter must be qualified in respect of property, either as an owner, a tenant, or a farmer's son, or must be assessed and pay taxes on an income of not less than $400.

The property on which an owner or an occupant qualifies as a voter, must be rated on the last revised assessment roll as having at least the following valuation:

In cities..... ....$400.00
In towns not over 3,000..... 200.00
In townships or villages..... 100.00

If two persons are on the assessment roll as joint owners they may both vote provided the value of the property is twice as much as would entitle one person to vote. Similarly three or more joint owners may vote on the same property if its value is sufficient.

If, however, persons are jointly assessed for property not large enough to give each of them a vote, then none of them can vote.

A person assessed as an owner may vote whether he lives in the municipality or not, but a person assessed as an occupant cannot vote unless he lives in the municipality.

If a married man is not assessed himself as an owner or occupant, he may vote upon property so assessed in his wife's name, if of sufficient value.

A person assessed as a farmer's son may vote along with his father or mother, provided that the property is assessed for an amount sufficient to allow of two votes upon it, so with one or more farmer's sons.

A person assessed as owner, and a person assessed as occupant may both be on the voter's list in respect of a property assessed at only enough to give one person a vote.

No person is entitled to vote unless he has the requisite qualifications, and also has his name upon the voters' lists.

THE DIFFERENCE.

In one respect Canada and the United States differ notably in consideration of matters naval. The entire opposition to an active naval policy, in the United States, comes from the middle west, from the great Mississippi States, which being far from either ocean consequently have to be bribed with waterways and various other local inducements in order that the Atlantic and Pacific States may have their way in carrying out an active naval propaganda. Whereas in Canada, the most profound, or at any rate the noisiest enthusiasm, for a comprehensive scheme of naval defence comes from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, Canada's West is more in tone with its eastern provinces than are the similar stretches of country in the republic to the south.

THE BISHOP STAYED.

He Barked a Row, but Didn't Have to Leave His Bed.

The bishop of a southern diocese was once making a missionary journey through Arkansas and the Indian Territory and on his arrival at Natchez he said to the landlord of a hotel, "I have been traveling for a week, day and night in a mail wagon, and I want a comfortable room."

"Sorry," said the landlord, "but I have only one there's permanent room in the house. There's a horse show, a Methodist conference and a political convention in the city, and every house is full up. The only thing I can give you is a shakedown." Then, observing the bishop's tired face, he added: "The best room in my house is rented to a noted gambler, who usually remains out all night and seldom gets in before breakfast. If you will take the risk you shall have his room, but if he should come in there'll be a row. I'll promise you that."

The bishop decided to take the risk. About 4 o'clock in the morning the gambler returned and promptly shook the bishop by the arm.

"Get out of here or I'll put you out!" he shouted.

The bishop, the gentlest of men, raised himself on one elbow so that it brought the muscles of his arm into full relief.

"My friend," he began quietly, "before you put me out will you have the kindness to feel of my arm?"

The gambler put his hand on the bishop's arm.

"Stranger," he then said respectfully, "you can stay."—Youth's Companion.

KEENLY INTERESTED.

Lincoln's Question After the Committeeman Had Finished.

Just after the second battle of Bull Run the Boston chamber of commerce decided that President Lincoln was not prosecuting the war with enough celerity to conserve the interests of business, and so it appointed a committee to go to Washington and remonstrate with him upon his dilatory tactics. The committee was headed by a Mr. Pierce.

"We found," he said, "a man who looked as if he had lost all the friends he ever had in the world, who invited us to take seats and inquired our business. As I was the spokesman, I opened our case, and as I proceeded the president's face relaxed. By and by he smiled and betrayed actual interest, and by the time I concluded he was almost in a broad grin. After I had finished he inquired if that was all I had to say, and on my saying that I thought it was he asked if some of the other gentlemen wouldn't like to say something. They replied that they thought I had fully covered the ground. And then," continued Mr. Pierce, "what do you suppose this solemn man did? Well, he just moved his chair over to mine, smoothed his trousers over his knee, then reached over and smoothed mine down, too, and then, with a queer look, which none of us will ever forget, he said, 'Mr. Pierce, did you ever notice what a difference there is in legs?'

"What did we do? We grabbed our hats and took the first train for Boston, and we never dared to report!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Carbuncle.

Carbuncles, to which the ancients attributed fantastic properties, were in reality rubies. They served, it was said, to give light to large serpents or dragons whose sight had been enfeebled by age. They bore them constantly between their teeth and held them down only for eating and drinking. It was even claimed that the carbuncle emitted light in darkness and that the thickest clothing could not stop its rays. Without all the exaggeration of such legends it was believed for a long time that rubies contained luminous rays. The truth is that they have double refraction and send out the red rays with unequaled brilliancy. Traversed in a vacuum by an electric current, they are illuminated with a red fire of extreme intensity. The greatest heat does not change their form or their color.

Old Days on the Stage.

I have known a dress coat handed from one to another in the wings several times during a performance. It was a current idea that white cotton stockings assumed the appearance of silk from the front by making a heavy line of white chalk on the shin bone. A white tie was easily made from a strip of note paper, and even a shirt front could be managed from highly glazed note paper. White cotton gloves were de rigueur in place of the more expensive kid ones. A comedian, having no black stockings, once blacked his legs. After the show he asked the stage manager, "Do we play this piece again?" "Yes; next week." "Oh, then I need not wash my legs!" —From "Ramblings of an Old Mummer," by Russell Crauford.

Might Have Been Worse.

"Poor b'ye!" exclaimed O'Hara, condoling with Cassidy, who had been injured by a blast. "'Tis tough luck to hav yer hand blowed off."

"Ochl Faith it might 'ave bin worse," replied Cassidy. "Suppose Ol'd had me week's wages in it at the toime."

The following letter signed by the President of the Taxi-Service Company explains the purpose of the Company:—

J. O. Walsh & Company, 1 Madison av., New York:—

The Taxi-Service Company was organized under the laws of New Jersey, in February, 1909, to take over the business of William H. Sealch Company, which operated taxicabs and horse drawn coupes at the Waldorf-Astoria, Holland House, Hotel Walcott, Seville and Manhattan Hotels. The William H. Sealch Company had been operated for over 40 years as a high grade livery business.

In April, 1909, this company took over the Hexter Taxameter Cab Company, which operate taxicabs at the Grand Hotel, Belleclaire, Healy's Restaurant (Corner 66th street and Columbus avenue) and the Marseilles.

The company has:—

50 Sultan Taxicabs.
50 American Locomotive Taxicabs.
2 American Locomotive Touring Cars.
75 Horses.
200 Horse drawn Vehicles

of different styles, suitable to operation of this business.

The company leases from Mr. W. H. Sealch one of the finest garages and livery stables in the city of New York. It is located at 142 East 31st street. It is a six story and basement, brick, iron and cement building, thoroughly equipped for the care and repair of both motor and horse drawn vehicles.

I enclose you herewith a statement showing the capitalization, dividends, gross earnings and expenses of the company for eight and one-half months of its operation, from February 15 to October 1, 1909. I also enclose you a list of the stands at which we are now operating.

The company has paid since its organization dividends at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, or 1¾ per cent. quarterly, on its preferred stock, which is cumulative and preferred both as to assets and dividends.

The Company has paid on its common stock 4 per cent per annum, or 1 per cent. quarterly since its organization, payable February 15, May 15, August 15 and November 15. The depreciation which we have charged to operating expenses is sufficiently large to replace all of the cabs within four years from the date of their purchase. The Company has not as yet had the benefit of the best part of the year's business, owing to the fact that the summer months are always dull in this line of business, due to the absence from the city of a great number of people who ordinarily use cabs. Also the better weather which prevails during the summer decreases the business to a certain extent.

The Company has not yet received the benefit of its full equipment, as a considerable amount has not as yet been delivered. I conservatively estimate that the operation of this additional equipment will add 40 to 50 per cent to the net earnings.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) HARLAN W. WHIPPLE, President.

The following report, rendered by William Dillon & Company, Certified Public Accountants, of 56 Congress St., Boston, Mass., shows the condition of the Company on November 10, 1909.

Mr. H. W. Whipple, President,
Taxi-Service Company,
244 Fifth Avenue, City.

Dear Sir:—

I have compiled the following statement of the Taxi-Service Company of New Jersey and certify the same as correct:—

ASSETS.

EQUIPMENT, consisting of taxicabs, touring cars, horses, carriages, harnesses	$1,825,432.58
CAPITAL STOCK TAXI-SERVICE COMPANY OF NEW YORK at par	10,000.00
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE (GOOD) and CASH	69,368.35
Total	$1,905,800.93

LIABILITIES.

MORTGAGE BONDS, Item on a part of the equipment	$41,000.00
ACCOUNTS PAYABLE	416.70
CAPITAL STOCK PREFERRED, outstanding and entitled to dividends	750,000.00
CAPITAL STOCK COMMON, outstanding and entitled to dividends	1,169,169.00
SURPLUS	35,112.23
Total	$1,905,698.93

The company has received in net profits from operating $56,535.43 since the commencement of business, February 15, 1909, to October 31, 1909.

It has paid two dividends out of earnings, the first being $19,456.00, which was at the rate of 7 per cent. on Preferred and 4 per cent on Common, and the second was $21,067.00, being at the same rates.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) WM. DILLON,
Certified Public Accountants.

From the above report it will be seen that this Company, which has been in operation only eight and one-half months, has made a very remarkable showing, and with approximately only one-half of its equipment in operation. The Company operates Taxicabs from the best stands in New York city, which are as follows:—

Executive Offices,	334 5th. Ave.	Station	Colony Club.
Station	Waldorf-Astoria.	"	Belleclaire Hotel.
"	Holland House.	"	Marseilles Hotel.
"	Hotel Bertolle.	"	Leonori Hotel.
"	Healy's Restaurant.	"	Hermitage Hotel.
"	Walcott Hotel.	"	New Grand Hotel.
"	Park Avenue Hotel.	Garage.	142 East 31st st.
"	Stratford Hotel.

We offer, subject to prior sale, $250,000 of the preferred stock of this Company at par. This will yield 7 per cent. on the investment, and the preferred stock is a first lien upon the assets as well as the earnings of the Company.

THE RIGHT IS GIVEN TO PURCHASE ¼ SHARE OF COMMON (which pays 4 per cent) AT $45.00 PER SHARE, with each share of preferred; in other words, 25 per cent of the common is allotted with the preferred at the above price.

By careful perusal of this statement you will observe that this proposition offers an exceptional opportunity for investment. We have investigated the Company and its officers, and recommend the purchase of this stock.

HIS LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

How Murphy Succeeded in Having a Good Time.

One of the soldiers at Fort Washington, on the Potomac, was recently given leave of absence the morning after pay day. When his leave expired he didn't appear. The papers recorded, however, that he had been very busy, the range of his activities being comprehended under the title of "plain drunk." He was brought at last before the commander for sentence, and the following dialogue is recorded:

"Well, Murphy, you look as if you had had a severe engagement."

"Yes, sur."

"Have you any money left?"

"No, sur."

"You had $35 when you left the fort, didn't you?"

"Yes, sur."

"What did you do with it?"

"Well, sur, I was walking along, and I met a friend, and we went into a place and spint $8. Thin we come out, and I met another friend, and we spint $8 more, and thin I come out, and we met another friend, and we spint $8 more, and thin we come out, and we met another bunch of friends, and I spint $8 more, and thin I comes home."

"But, Murphy, that makes only $32. What did you do with the other $3?"

Murphy thought. Then he shook his head slowly and said:

"I duano, colonel. I reckon I must have squandered that money foolishly."—Life.

The Veteran Had Him.

"Were you ever in prison?" demanded the prosecuting attorney insinuatingly.

"Yes, sir," admitted the gray headed witness for the defense.

"Aha, I thought so! And what for, may I ask?"

"Assault with intent to kill."

"And how long were you in prison?"

"Until I escaped, sir."

The prosecutor turned triumphantly to the gentlemen of the jury.

"So, gentlemen," he said, "we have here as the chief witness for the defense an ex-convict and fugitive from justice, by his own confession!"

He turned again to the witness. "When and where were you in prison, sir?" he sneered.

The old man straightened up and spoke in a strong, clear voice:

"I was captured, sir, at the battle of Fort Harris on Sept. 29, 1864, and sent to Libby prison, Richmond. I effected my escape while being transferred to Salisbury, N. C. As to"—

But that was already more than the prosecutor wanted to know.—Everybody's Magazine.

Not In Her Set.

"Why should we be so anxious to communicate with Mars?" asked Mrs. Cumrox.

"It would surely be desirable to know something of its inhabitants," replied the modest scientist.

"Do you think so? From what I read I gathered the idea that most of them are working on canals. Knowing as I do how some canalboat men talk, I am very much inclined to let well enough alone."—Washington Star.

Too Fancy.

"They tell me your village fire company is getting fancy these days?" interrogated the starch drummer.

"Too blamed fancy," grumbled the citizen of Bacon Ridge. "They've even got openwork hose, and that's the reason they can't put out any fires, by gum!"—Chicago News.

Result in Doubt.

"Just one kiss," he pleaded, "only one."

"No," she replied heroically; "it isn't right to kiss till one is engaged."

"Then I'll engage you for one."—Boston Herald.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Women who walk with no heels make a mistake. The heel preserves the arch of the foot and prevents it from becoming flat. It keeps the ankle round and is a help to the spine.

The first thing a plain woman must do is give her figure careful attention. A stylish or even well rounded body will nine times out of ten carry one through far better than a pretty face.

The skin should be carefully massaged before applying plaster to smooth out wrinkles. Before putting on the strips the flesh should be stretched—that is, made smooth—and then the plaster is supposed to hold it flat.

In the West Indies a lemon bath is almost a daily luxury. Three or four limes or lemons are sliced into the water and allowed to lie for half an hour in order that the juice may be extracted. A remarkable sense of freshness and cleanliness is given to the skin.

If the hair is a dull dead black it can be made to shine by rinsing it in many waters and drying it well. It is then brushed with a brush over which the palm of the hand has been rubbed. Into the palm there has been massaged a very little oil. This merely suggests oil to the hair and makes it shine a little without making it greasy.

Here is an excellent mixture for bleaching the neck: Take fresh stained cucumber juice, boil it for five minutes and for every five ounces of juice add pulverized borax, five and one-half ounces; acetate of soda, three ounces; tincture of quillaja, two and one-half ounces; tincture of benzoin, four drams; rosewater, one pint. Mix thoroughly and apply two or three times a day until the stain is removed.

SUFFRAGETTES LOSING.

English Editor Declares It Is Mainly Due to Lack of Decency.

Thousands of supporters of the cause of woman suffrage have been lost, says Mowbray Bell, editor of The London Times, because of the militant tactics of the suffragettes.

"They have displayed a shocking lack of decency," he declares. "Why, look at the time when they forced themselves into Asquith's house uninvited and while they were holding his hand demanded 'votes for women.'

"A friend of mine from New Zealand was at the press conference some time ago. Both of us had been long champions of the woman's right to vote. 'Women suffrage in New Zealand is a good thing,' he told me, 'but I never could support it here. We do not have this kind of woman in New Zealand.'

"It is the militant tactics of the English leaders that have hurt the cause, there is no doubt of that. Those women have labored unceasingly to prove that woman is unfit to be trusted with the suffrage. All the men who were friendly to their cause at first have become disgusted and the suffrage movement in Great Britain to-day has lost greatly in numbers and is not anywhere near as strong as it was a year ago.

"I don't know how a scheme of limited franchise could be worked out, but if I could have my way I think I would let only the women who did not want to vote have the franchise, and those who were insisting on it would have to go without. I think that would limit the franchise to the sensible women all right.

"Then there are the troubles of the poor policemen in protecting anti-suffragette windows from suffragette bricks and flatirons and the difficulty the Government had in treating suffragette prisoners. It has been suggested that it would be a good thing to shave their heads, the way they shave men prisoners, for a woman would sooner part with most anything than her hair. That would be depriving them of one of their chief assets, but I don't know — I don't know — I fear they would find a shaven head just right to fit a halo."

RACED WITH A KING.

Alfonso Was Persistent, and His Opponent Was Courteous.

Of the many residents of Baltimore who passed last summer in Europe probably none attained the distinction of Mr. Samuel C. Rowland, vice president of the International Trust company, who, while motoring in Spain, met King Alfonso of the land of Cervantes. In fact, he met the king three times.

The meetings occurred on the road from Biarritz to San Sebastian and, although interesting, were brief. The first time the king passed Mr. Rowland, then Mr. Rowland passed the king, and finally Alfonso passed Mr. Rowland. They did not speak as they passed by.

Asked yesterday to recite the details of his auto race with the monarch, Mr. Rowland smiled and said:

"I'm a little dubious of this king business," said Mr. Rowland democratically. "First there's the danger of international complications, and then there's less majesty to be considered."

"Your autos were going in the same direction?" was suggested.

"Yes," assented Mr. Rowland.

"And which was ahead?"

"Well, we were ahead at first, but the king passed us. Then somehow we began to gain on him. Whether my son Harvey, who was driving, opened the throttle a little I am hardly prepared to say. At all events, we gained on him slowly and finally passed him."

"And then?"

"Most persistent king I ever saw," said Mr. Rowland seriously. "In the following mile his machine touched the ground only three times by actual count, and then he passed us."

"And who was ahead at the finish?"

"Well, noblesse oblige, you know, and we let Alfonso keep the lead."—Baltimore Sun.

Invention of the Automobile.

No one man can be said to have invented the automobile, says the Boston Globe. The machine as it is today is the product of many minds in many countries. Horseless vehicles date back almost to the time when steam became a motive power, and as long ago as 1802 Richard Trevithick, an Englishman, constructed a machine which made a trip of ninety miles over country roads. In 1883 Delamare-Debouteville and Malandin of Paris invented a tricycle propelled by compressed gas and a year later used petroleum for generating power. Panhard and Levassar were the first to invent a really practical petroleum motor. This was in 1890, since which time the development of the various types of road motors has been rapid. Electricity as a motive power for road machines was first used in the early eighties, but it was not until about 1898 that it began to be looked upon as a rival of petroleum. Of late years gasoline and steam motors have been extensively used.

Removable Clock Dials.

An improvement in clock dials which makes repairing much more convenient has been designed by a New York man. This dial is made in two parts, which slide through grooves at the sides and meet in the middle of the face. Their action is absolutely independent of the hands, and the sections may be removed with ease without first taking off the hands, as was necessary formerly. Such a contrivance not only makes less work for the clock man when repairs are necessary, but because of the ease with which the face is removed and the works reached many a man will be able to make his own repairs where he would otherwise have hesitated to attempt it. Most clocks are adjusted from the back, but the difficulty often lies in a front part, which is difficult to reach from the rear, even by an expert on timepieces. With a clock that opens both back and front every bit of mechanism is conveniently accessible.—Chicago News.

Metal Cutting With Oxygen.

A recent improvement in the method of cutting metals by a jet of oxygen consists in keeping the metal round the place where the jet operates in a state of incandescence. This does away with the former trouble caused by the presence of iron oxide and by unsteady manipulation of the jet. Plates of steel twelve inches thick can be cut by the jet. In one recent case a slab of steel eight inches thick was cut into strips three-quarters of an inch wide, and the width of the cut made by the jet was only about a quarter of an inch. Circular cuts can be made, and instead of penetrating straight down from the face of the plate the cut can be made bevel.

A Two Ton Crystal.

Near Fang San, a low mountain some ten miles to the west of Haichow, a huge piece of crystal was recently unearthed. It is said to weigh 3,000 catties, is over four feet in diameter and five feet long. This is the second large crystal found at this place within two months. The crystal is a sort of flint. It is used in the making of Chinese spectacles and brings large prices. It is said that the owners were offered $25,000 for the piece.—Shanghai Times.

To Relieve Sore Throat.

At this season of the year, when sore throats, laryngitis and similar complaints are very prevalent in London, it may interest your readers to know of a very simple remedy which is recommended by the celebrated Dr. Pauvel of Paris. He recommends a gargle of ordinary tea before going out in the morning and, if possible, on returning at night.—London Standard.

Revolver Needed.

John—I'll bring you a fork, sir. The Customer — What for? John — The cheese, sir. The Customer—A fork's no good. Bring a revolver.—London Sketch.

A Slim Chance.

Willie—Pa, why do they call our language the mother tongue? Pa—Sh! It's because your father never gets a chance to use it.—London Tit-Bits.

UP THE GIANT'S TOOTH.

Young Woman Describes Hardships in Mountain Climbing.

Climbing mountains does not seem to be an agreeable recreation, to judge from the experiences of Mme. Stella Croissant, who has just ascended the Giant's Tooth, one of the loftiest peaks of the Alps. She had the pleasure of writing her name on the Mantle of the Virgin, which crowns the peak, but what other satisfaction she derived from the exploit is not clear.

Mme. Croissant is a young woman only twenty-two years of age, but her youthful vigor seems to have failed to make the rigors of mountain climbing a pleasure. She tells of muscles strained to the breaking point, limbs almost dislocated, cold, fatigue and the humors of the guide, for "the guide in the high mountains is king. You must obey him and smile, whatever happens." The party crept over slopes of soft snow, placing their feet in the footsteps of the guide and trying to make themselves as light as possible, for they knew that if they dislodged the snow they would be swept to the bottom of the abyss. They were suspended among the crags "like spiders in their webs." Once Mme. Croissant let go of the rope by which she was drawing herself up to a ledge and hung like a package over the void. She was not afraid, she said, but could hear the guide swearing.

The ascent took a couple of days, and after such strenuous labors the climbers might be expected to indulge in a little rest. "But where rest?" asks Mme. Croissant. "The summit is narrow and bristling with jagged points, and one is cold there. One freezes in the most absolute sense of the word. The wind found no obstacles except ourselves, and how it plays with such obstacles! If you consider how cold it must be in those altitudes where one suffers from the rarefaction of the air you will realise how the wind penetrated the meshes of my sweater and made my clothes freeze to my skin. The guide was right when he told me to put on several undervests. So we emptied a flask of eau de vie and said farewell to the summit."

The descent seems to have been as disagreeable as the ascent. It was horribly cold, and, when the party reached a place where it was possible to rest and eat, the guide hurried them on before the pangs of hunger were half satisfied. All had been fasting since daybreak, and it was then 3 o'clock, but they were behind time, the guide said, and the shades of night must not find them in the high mountain.

There was nothing to do but to obey the guide, so the party moved on in silence. "My feet moved automatically," said Mme. Croissant. "I climbed, I jumped, with only my eyes living in my whole body. I went on thus, I don't know how long, until my strength failed completely and I fainted. They gave me water and spirits. After an instant I revived, and, taking the arm of the guide, I went off at a mad pace. I have the same memory of that stage of the journey as one might have of a delirium. My movements had the strange sureness of the somnambulist walking on the edge of a roof. My foot did not stumble or slip. I went, I went. It was a vertigo, a dance of the bones broken on the rocks of ice." —New York Tribune.

Arctic Mary.

Mary Coonie, a full-blooded Eskimo, is the Croesus of the arctic circle. Mary cannot read, cannot even write her own name, but that doesn't matter, for she makes so much money that she can afford to hire a private secretary, who is an Englishman and a graduate of Oxford and fully qualified to attend to all clerical and executive details for her. But the gift of management is Mrs. Coonie's and that sagacious daring which most great money makers have. One by one she has acquired a number of rich mining claims, and in others she has an interest, acquired by "grub staking" the discoverers. She is sole owner of a valuable freight carrying business and the largest private reindeer herd in the world. Two thousand of these animals, worth $100 each, bear Mary Coonie's brand, and, besides, she has young herds that will bring her a rich harvest some day.

Monkey Eating Eagle.

A monkey eating eagle from the Philippines, the first specimen ever captured alive, has taken up residence at the London zoological gardens. As he sits on a stump in his large cage, blinking gray eyes at his new surroundings and with the long crest of dirty brown feathers on the top of his head rumpled as though he had been running his fingers through his hair, he looks ridiculously like a rather worried human being. He has the largest beak in the eagle house—a black, savage looking hook an inch deep. His body is dark brown, with breast feathers of a dirty cream color. His full name is Pithecophaga jefferyi, or Jeffery's monkey eating eagle. He was captured by means of snares set around the body of a young pig. He will have to abandon his penchant for monkeys in favor of a diet of chickens and ducks.

Novel Lock For Cars.

Thomas E. Flint of East Syracuse has invented a lock which he believes will stop freight car burglaries everywhere and make him a rich man. The device is novel. It is self locking, and to open the door of the car air must be forced into the lock by means of a small hand pump. The lock is so constructed that only pumps specially constructed will fit. The inventor's plan is that pumps be distributed with freight agents of the railroads.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

Another T. A. S.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, pastor of the church of the Sacred Heart, will after the annual T.A.S. banquet, organize a total abstenance society in his parish. The reverend doctor was spiritual advisor and the leading spirit in St. Peter's T.A.S., but owing to his new appointment he has had to severe his connection.

HIS UNLUCKY DAY.

Wunst I gat mad at maw;
I don't remember why,
But I 'ist walked right off to school
'Thout tellin' her goodby.

A big ol' lump come in my throat
An' purt' near made me cry,
Fer me an' maw is awful pals
An' allus kiss goodby.

An' might' near everything I did
Went wrong, looked like to me.
I stubbed my toe an' tore my waist
An' fell an' skinned my knee.

I missed in 'rithmetic an' lost
A chanst to get up head,
An' in the spellin' class I left
A letter out of "dead."

An' that ol' lump growed, an' I says,
"S'pose if my maw should die
Right now an' me a-leavin' her
'Thout kissin' her goodby."

Gee! That's the longest mornin'
'At I ever spent, I know.
It seemed like more'n fifty years
'Fore it was time to go.

An' never mind what happened
When I seen my maw, but I
'Ist bet I won't go 'way no more
'Thout kissin' her goodby.
—Chicago News.

Disappointed.

"So Marie decided to withdraw from the field of literature."

"Yes, indeed. After she found out the much talked of 'literary style' had nothing to do with gowns or hats she was disgusted."

The King's Umbrella.

The king of the Belgians once left his umbrella in a hansom when driving in Brussels. This was returned to his majesty a few hours afterward by the proud cabby, who was offered for his honesty by King Leopold the sum of 100 francs. The astute jehu, however, begged a great favor of the king. Could he have the umbrella instead of the money? The favor was granted, and before many days had passed the cabman had put up the umbrella for sale, and it was knocked down to some royal enthusiast for 1,100 francs. When King Leopold heard of this he exclaimed, "Well, I've heard of an umbrella being put up to keep off showers of rain, but this seems to have been put up to bring down showers of gold."

It Did Not Pay.

"Son," called the farmer as the aroma of eggs and ham came up through the trapdoor, "why don't you get up?"

"What's the use?" yawned the college boy as he turned over for another nap. "Don't believe in early rising."

"Don't, eh? Well, how about the early bird?"

"Oh, that's a chestnut. The early bird caught the early worm, and the early cat caught the bird, and the early dog caught the cat, and the early dog catcher caught the dog. So there you are. What's the use of getting up early? It doesn't pay."—Detroit Free Press.

Home Production.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I have done something I know you will approve of."

"Indeed!"

"You know how annoyed we've been about the expense of automobile tires."

"Yes."

"Well, I have bought a rubber plant."

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good line-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. MENDING CLOTHES.

How to Make the Mere Man's Garments Last Longer.

Lots of little things may be done to make a man's garments last longer and look better than if he has no womankind to care for him and his wardrobe. A man's clothes are expensive and usually well made, but the best tailoring in the world can't prevent buttons coming off or coats wearing shiny at the seams.

Now, every man has a theory about the way a button should be sewed on. He knows it should have a "neck," and nothing will persuade him that his women folk share this knowledge. He is therefore firmly convinced that if he sewed the buttons on they would never come off. He wouldn't believe it if you told him that the fault lay not in omitting to give the button a "neck," but in neglecting to finish it off properly after the neck had been twisted. At least half a dozen firm stitches are needed to do this well.

If trousers fray at the edge and it is necessary to turn up a slightly deeper hem, open the hem out all around, brush it and soap it on the wrong side. This makes it set well, giving it a firm ironed appearance. Of course it is necessary after slip stitching the hem to press on the wrong side with a damp cloth between the cloth and the iron.

Shiny seams and shoulders must be sponged gently with warm water to which a little ammonia has been added. Sponging with cold tea will do wonders toward restoring a black suit. Inking the seams is a time honored method which cannot be recommended, as the ink is apt to leave stains and noticeable marks.

When putting away clothes brush them thoroughly and hang them out in the sun for eight hours. Repeat the brushing process. The object of exposing them to the sunlight is to cause any moth eggs in the fabric to hatch, and then the young caterpillars are easily dislodged by the second brushing. Having done this, put the suit or whatever it may be away, with some moth preventive, taking care to place the preventive especially down the front of the vest, on the lapels of the coat or anywhere grease is most likely to be.

When darning large holes in underwear place a piece of fine net under and extending a half inch each side of the tear. Herringbone over the joint with half the stitch on the webbing and half on the garment itself. When the ribbing is quite worn out it may be replaced by the special ribbing sold at most outfitters.

Men's gloves should be mended with wax thread—not silk, as that cuts. Use No. 40 cotton drawn across a piece of beeswax. Be sure to finish off the ends carefully.

Lastly, do all these things in time. Don't wait to have your attention called to them. He doesn't want to be reminded before starting out to business, and your business, equally important, if not so well defined, lies in just these little things, which make all the difference between a comfortable, happy man and a neglected one.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

A few shreds of candied orange peel will give a delicious flavor to a bread pudding.

Always use lard to grease your cake pans, as the salt in the butter causes it to stick to the pans.

It is better to wipe over meat with a wet cloth than to immerse it in water or let water run over it.

A sponging with a solution of one part ammonia to ten parts of water is said to brighten the colors in a faded carpet.

Don't light the kitchen fire unless there is water in the boiler. If not, the rush of cold water is liable to crack the boiler.

If you want to keep your desserts on the top of the ice place a newspaper over the ice and your dishes never slip off or tip over.

Select a dozen or so of the smoothest and largest splints from the new broom and lay them away to use in testing cake when it is baking.

Don't fill an oil or any other kind of stove or lamp when it is lighted. This seems superfluous advice, but with the coming of cool weather cannot be too often repeated.

When one's foot is slightly injured and the bedclothes add to the discomfort a small hatbox placed in the bed is found useful. The foot can be slipped into it, and the box supports the weight of the covers.

To disinfect a room dissolve gum tragacanth in water, put strips of paper into it and strip all places where the fumes are liable to escape. Water quickly dissolves this glue, making it easy to remove the paper afterward. Possibly muslin strips would prove much better for the purpose.

Cold blue fish, or, in fact, almost any good cold fish, except coarse fish, such as salt cod, may be utilized in a salad. Season with plenty of salad dressing, thin slices of young onions and minced parsley. Serve upon a bed of lettuce. A few peas and any leftover vegetables may be used to advantage in such a salad if they are cut into small dice.

EMIGRATION FROM THE UNITED STATES TO CANADA.

The new territory in Western Canada which the Grand Trunk Pacific is opening up is so attractive to farmers, prospectors and investors in the Western States that Minnesota and other States in the Union interested are organizing through their commercial bodies movements design to counteract the heavy migration that has set in to the north. A meeting of the Minnesota commercial organizations has been called for November 23rd to devise a method whereby some obstructions can be placed in the way of this emigration. The "St. Paul Despatch" of November 10th says that :—

"Considerable interest in the gathering has been manifested by cities in North Dakota, and several requests that they be permitted to be represented have been received. While it was at first proposed settlers from Minnesota, it is now possible that a united effort will be made to keep American farmers this side of the Canadian border. The conference will prepare literature showing the actual land conditions in Minnesota and North Dakota. This literature will be scattered broadcast over the country and special efforts made to see that it reaches the persons who are at present interested in Canadian lands.

It is said that thousands of farmers, who have sold their land in Eastern States, pass through Minnesota annually on their way to Canada. It is thought that if the advantage offered here could be shown to the immigrants a large portion of them would make this their home."

TORTURED BY PILES

Could not Rest! Could not Work! Could not Play!

How Zam-Buk Brought Relief.

Mr. Julius Glazier of Denbigh, Ont., says:— "I was so tortured by piles that I could not get ease whether lying down, sitting or standing. The ailment robbed me of strength, of appetite, and of all desire to live! I had suffered so long and so acutely that I came to think there was no ease for me, but one day I found out that I was wrong!

"I was told that Zam-Buk cured piles, and that this balm was altogether different to ordinary ointments, scores of which I had proved useless for so bad a case as mine and began to use it regularly.

"Without going into unnecessary detail in a few weeks I found myself cured. I owe my cure to Zam-Buk entirely, and I trust my experience will be the means of leading other sufferers to try this great herbal balm."

Nothing need be added to this plain, powerful testimony save one question—if you suffer like Mr. Glazier did, why not get relief from the same source as he did?

Zam-Buk—as he truly says—is "something different" to the ordinary ointments and salves. It is a powerful combination of healing and soothing herbal essences. No mineral astringents or poisons; no impure animal fats.

It is a proved cure for inflamed areas (as in piles) erysipelas, eczema ulcers, sores, abscesses, cold cracks, sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. It is the most suitable balm for children's rashes. All Druggists and Stores at 50c. box or post-free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

WORDS AND MUSIC OF A FRANK DANIELS SONG HIT.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys if one controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

CAPITAL STOCK (Authorized $1,000,000—1,000,000 SHARES OF $1.00 EACH.
700,000 SHARES ISSUED—300,000 IN TREASURY.

Claim "T. R. 189" is stated by competent mining engineers to be undoubtedly the best property in the Montreal River District. It contains 40 acres, mostly hilly, of diabase formation, and is within 2¼ miles of transportation.

Active development was begun by the present owners in May last. The necessary buildings for men, horses, tools, powder and stores have been erected. About two miles of surface trenching have been done in the south-east quarter of the property, 14 veins have been uncovered, 8 of them showing silver at or near the surface.

Assays of surface ore have run as high as 12,000 ounces to the ton.

Two shafts have been sunk, No. 1 to a depth of 63 feet, and No. 2 to 62 feet.

Shaft No. 2 opens up a vein from 5 to 14 inches thick, which is improving with depth, and which shows plates and leaves of pure metallic silver embedded in the calcite.

Shaft No. 1 also shows greatly increasing values with depth. At 60 feet the ore is very rich. There are two veins, 8 inches and 2 inches thick, separated by 20 to 26 inches of silver-bearing aplite. At 63 feet a level has been driven along the vein for 20 feet.

The ore taken from this level has been of exceptional richness, running from 8,000 to 17,000 ounces to the ton.

Such large values, obtained so near the surface, are very promising, particularly as at 3 other points along the same vein masses of pure metallic silver have been found directly beneath the soil. There is therefore every reason to believe that this vein will show at other points values equally as large as those where the shaft has been sunk.

Already $100,000 worth of ore has been blocked out.

The large number of veins that have been stripped in the section trenched promises a large tonnage of pay ore when they are developed. Then there is ¾ of the claim not yet trenched which should show equally satisfactory values.

An idea of the excellent returns which Claim "T. R. 189" promises on money invested, can be gained from the fact that, among others, the following gentlemen are each owners of 15,000 shares or more—

HENRY H. LYMAN. — F. P. BUCHANAN. — S. LICHTENHEIN. — T. L. MORRISEY.

G. E. Broderick, of Lindsay, Chosen Inspector for the United Counties

Dr. Merchant of Education Department, Addressed the County Council.

The Decision was Almost Unanimous

Victoria County Well Represented—A Joint Committee Made the Selection.

The counties of Victoria and Lindsay have agreed upon an inspector for the public schools of parts of each county to be known as the eastern inspectorate. The man chosen was Mr. G. E. Broderick, of Lindsay principal of the Public schools there for the past 23 years. The decision was almost unanimous and the township and schools to be represented in the district will be found below.

Dr. Merchant, of Toronto, representing the minister of Education, along with a committee from the County of Victoria, met the Peterborough county council yesterday morning for the purpose of taking up the union of Victoria and Peterborough counties for school inspection purposes. According to a general scheme of consolidation the department has adopted for the province it has been found necessary for parts of these two counties to combine. Each county has had two inspectors but neither is large enough for two inspectors, although both are too large for one inspector. It was therefore proposed that the counties agree and have the work done by three inspectors instead of four.

It was for the purpose of effecting this union that Dr. Merchant came down. He pointed out the advantages of the union one of the principal features was the saving of one inspector's salary.

Dr. Merchant said he had travelled over both these counties for the purpose of suggesting an equitable division and the following is the conclusion at which he arrived:—

Victoria would have in the new inspectorate:
Lindsay with 20 teachers.
Emily with 9 teachers.
Verulam, with 12 teachers.
Somerville with 11 teachers.
Omemee with 2 teachers.
Bobcaygeon with 5 teachers.
Total 59.
Peterborough County :—
Smith with 13 teachers.
Eanismore with 5 teachers.
Galway & Cavandish with 6 teachers.
Harney with 6 teachers.
Total : 32.

New School Inspector

Mr. G. E. Broderick, principal of the Public schools of Lindsay, was yesterday chosen inspector for the Public schools in the eastern municipalities in Victoria and Peterborough. Mr. Broderick's selection was practically unanimous on the first vote. He is well equipped for his new position being thoroughly practical as well as well qualified. He has been principal in Lindsay for 23 years of the Public schools and of the Model school: He was also instructor in the summer schools and was a member of the Provincial committee which revised the school readers. In Lindsay he is well known and very highly respected. His many friends will congratulate him upon his appointment.

Queen's Men Gather at the Banquet Table and Re-organized Alumni

The first function, and in fact the first meal to be served in the new dining room of the Hotel National, was the banquet held there last night by the graduates of Queen's University, Kingston, who gathered together for the purpose of reorganizing the Alumni Association of the Midland district. Guests were present from many outside places as well as a large number from the city and the affair was a grand and brilliant success.

The dining room of the National has just been completely re-decorated and it presents a very bright and inviting appearance. The work has been well done and the effect is beautiful. It is doubtful if there is another dining room in any hotel in Ontario, size considered, which can equal it. Mine Host Denison, as he so well knows how, provided a royal banquet. Every dish was appetizing and tasty and the service was ideal.

Mr. Richard Lees, M.A., inspector of Public schools for Peterborough was chairman, and on his right sat Rev. Dr. Dyde and Mr. Waddell. On his left was Prof. Laird.

The toast list was necessarily short as the speeches were long and very important and interesting.

Rev. Dr. Dyde spoke for one and a half hours to the toast to "Canada." He outlined his own experience since confederation at which time as a boy he knew Joseph Howe, Sir John Macdonald, Sir Charles Tupper, Edward Blake and Alexander Mackenzie, in Ottawa. At that time they prophesied a united Canada. Dr. Dyde then asked the question, "Have we a united Canada?" and said that he was afraid we had not. It is absolutely necessary to a united nation that all racial and religious prejudices and anamosities be subordinated for the general good.

Prof. Laird spoke to the toast, "Our Universities." He spoke of the wonderful growth and advancement of Queen's University. In ten years it had increased 125 per cent.

After the banquet a business meeting was held when the Old Queen's Association was organized amidst great enthusiasm.

It was decided to name the society "The Queen's Alumni Association of Central Ontario." The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Hugh Waddell, Peterborough.

President—Mr. Goodwill, Peterborough.

1st Vice—Rev. Jas. Wallace, Lindsay.

2nd Vice—Mrs. (Rev.) Burns, Lakefield.

3rd Vice—Mr. Lees, Peterborough.

Sec.-Treas.—Mr. Pettitt, Peterborough.

Executive Committee—Dr. Nicholl, Hastings; Mr. Harvey, Peterborough Mr. Lawlor, Norwood; Rev. Mr. Best, Beaverton; Mrs. (Rev.) Brown, Campbellford; Miss Williams, Port Hope; Mr. Kirconnell, Lindsay.

The membership fee was fixed at $1 per annum.

After votes of thanks had been passed to the speakers and to Messrs. Goodwill and Pettitt for their efforts in arranging the meeting and banquet the gathering broke up by singing "God Save the King."

OIL FUEL FOR WARSHIPS.

(Special to The Times.)

Washington, D. The national organization of the American Anti-Saloon league has been in existence for thirteen years. Its one and only object is to create public sentiment against the existing evil in saloons. Delegates will be present at the coming convention from practically every State

The Stability of Empire Preserved by Defence Conference, Says King

His Majesty Declares Imperial Unity Will Be Promoted by the Recent Gathering.

Fleet Unit Needed Without Delay

The Important Conference Was of Great Mutual Advantage, Says King Edward VII.

London, Dec. 3.—Parliament was prorogued today with all the usual formalities. The King in his speech said:

"The important conference which met in July last for the exchange of views between my government and the governments of the self-governing dominions beyond the seas upon the subject of naval and military defence has been of mutual advantage, and as the outcome of its deliberations it may be confidently expected that the stability of my dominions will be preserved and their unity promoted."

AUSTRALIAN NAVY BILL.

Melbourne, Aus., Dec. 3.—The naval loan bill has passed the second reading in the House of Representatives by 25 votes.

"We not only need our fleet unit, but we need it without delay," said Premier Bakin in debate.

CANADAjS GOOD CREDIT.

London, Dec. 3.—A sharp rise is recorded in Canadian 3½ per cent. in consequence of the placing of Canadian treasury bills, amounting to £2,000,000, on the market. While rumors of a fresh loan have been circulating, the bills have been placed on terms thoroughly favorable to the Dominion Government.

The Standard remarks, that, having regard to the present monetary conditions, it thinks the Canadian Government is to be congratulated, firstly, upon its policy of raising money at the present time in short-term maturities, rather than stock, and secondly, upon the terms on

Capt. Bernier's Lecture On Canada's Far North

Capt. J. E. Bernier, the great Canadian Arctic explorer, was in the city last night the guest of the Royal Astronomical Society, and he gave his lecture in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall. The hall was well filled and everyone was delighted with the lecture. It was extremely interesting and instructive, and those who did not hear the captain missed a treat.

Rev. Dr. Marsh, president of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomiebl Society of Canada, opened the meeting with a flattering reference to the speaker of the evening and the great work he has accomplished. Thereverend doctor has known the captain very well for many years, and had promised to be one of his crew had the captain been allowedto make a dash for the pole onhis last trip. Dr. Marsh also announced the names of two more members to the society.

His Worship Mayor Rush was called upon to present an address of welcome to the Canadian Arctic explorer on behalf of the city of Peterborough. This the mayor did with his usual grace.

The chairman of the meeting was the Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., and when he was called upon he was greeted with applause. He referred in warm terms to Captain Bernier and the splendid work he had achieved for Cbnada in claiming for Canada all the land south of the North Pole. He also referred to the very valuable doedments the captain had brought back with him.

The address was:—

"The Great North of Canada." He said that he had claimed all the northern islands for Canada, and that the United States had seemingly agreed to this, for they recognized Canada as "mistress of the northern isles." There was great wealth in those islands. The rivers of Baffin Land, he said, teemed with fish, and there was lots of room for any number of Canadians to go there and start extremely profitable business in Salmon fishing. Captain Bernier was sure there were minerals, and he recommended that with the next expedition he sent a geologist, who

Lansdowne Lodge Held 26th Annual Banquet

The 26th anniversary of Lansdowne Lodge No. 25, S.O.E., was celebrated last night in their lodge rooms by a big banquet, and it was one of the greatest successes yet achieved. Between 90 and 100 members and their wives sat down to the splendid repast prepared by Messrs. Coleman Bros., the well known caterers. The menu was all that could be desired, and it was greatly enjoyed. This was the second banquet held in the lodge rooms and it is found more enjoyable and satisfactory than when held elsewhere. After due justice had been done to the supper an enjoyable program was run off. Mr. James Boxall of Lindsay, past supreme president, made a very efficient chairman, and he did much to keep up the interest of the affair.

The program was as follows:

The Local Option Campaign---Rev. Sam Small Coming to Peterborough Next Week

The matter appearing under this heading is supplied by the Local Option Campaign Committee.

Sam Small the famous Southern evangelist, whose addresses during the past few weeks have created a sensation in the cities of the Province will be in Peterborough tomorrow and will preach in St. Andrew's church in the morning, and will deliver his soul stirring address on "Personal Liberty" in the Grand Opera House at 8.15. Dr. Small in speaking on the temperance situation in Canada last Sunday, referred to the great work accomplished by the Catholic Church in the Province of Quebec. A large majority of the townships and towns are under prohibition.

This attitude is not uncommon throughout this continent. From communities far and near the testimonies are numerous and it assures everybody that a brighter day is dawning for the Christian unity of the world, and the Christian churches recognise more fully the joy and glory of leading in that better day, knowing positively that "Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is the reproach of any people."

Sam Small's reference to the work of the Catholic Church in Quebec opens up the larger question of what that church is doing at home and far afield.

In the township of Douro and Enismore no licenses have been granted for many years entirely due to the action of the church there. During that time as is well known, the people have had great prosperity and unlimited happiness.

The Catholic Church has everything to be proud of in the attitude of her prelates to this gigantic evil.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND'S POSITION.

Archbishop John Ireland is known throughout Christendom as an earnest, progressive, and devoted worker for the good of humanity. In an address to the Minnesota Catholic Total Abstinence Union some years ago, he made the following strong statement:

"We thought we meant business years ago in this warfare, but I hope God will forgive us for our weakness for we went into the battlefield without sufficient resolution. We labored under the fatal mistake that we could argue out the question with the rum-sellers. We imagined that there was some power in moral suasion, that when we would show them the evil of their ways they would abandon the traffic. We

What the Catholic Church Has Done and is Doing for Temperance

THE Catholic Third Plenary Council held at Baltimore made this declaration among many others :

"We call upon all pastors to induce any of their flocks who may be engaged in the sale of liquors to abandon as soon as they can the dangerous traffic, and to embrace a more becoming way of making a living."

Of the deliverances of this Council, Pope Leo XIII, in his reply to the part relating to intemperance, said :

"It is well-known to us how ruinous, how deplorable, is the injury, both to faith and to morals that is to be feared from intemperance in drink. Nor can we sufficiently praise the prelates of the United States, who recently, in the Plenary Council of Baltimore, with weightiest words, condemned this abuse, declaring it to be a perpetual incentive to sin and a fruitful root of all evils, plunging the families of the intemperate into the direst ruin, and dragging numberless souls hown to everlasting perdition; declaring, moreover, that the faithful who yield to this vice of intemperance become thereby a scandal to non-Catholics, and great hindrance to the propagation of the true religion."

"SUPPRESSION of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages is the only adequate remedy. Temperance societies attract comparatively few and are efficient only as long as their members are stimulated to a sort of moral intoxication. High license diminishes the number of saloons, but not the quantity of liquor drunk, nor the amount of drunkenness. And then, too, license is, in a way, to approve; and a wise and good man cannot approve the liquor traffic. Whatever restrictions may be thrown around its management, the American saloon is, and must continue to be, so long as it shall be tolerated, a nuisance. Its influence upon individual, domestic and national life is wholly evil. As to the right of the state to prohibit, there can be no question, since the right to suppress crime involves the right to suppresses its chief cause. * * * One great question that is going to be forced into politics—we can sneer at it now—is the question of Prohibition. * * * If some great moral question could be made a living issue in politics, how wholesome and helpful would not this prove in many ways, and what a blessing to politicians themselves who in this might find at least some distraction from the all-absorbing hunt for spoils of office!"

Bishop Spalding.

"THE moral suasion plea to Catholics to get out of the liquor business has proved a failure. There is nothing left to be done but to vote them out. How can a Catholic go to the poll and conscientiously vote to keep men in the liquor business while his church calls upon all to get out of it? There are Christian people who permit the open saloon to continue to debauch the people as long as it pays a license fee. To accept money in payment for the consent to perpetuate a gigantic evil is a Judas Iscariot principle."

MORAL PARALYSIS

"There is only one cause that could have produced the moral and intellectual paralysis that has fallen upon the Catholic body in this country. No other power under the earth or on it, could have produced a generation so heedless of religious interests, so vigilant and tireless in mere political wrangling, as we behold in every center of population where Catholics are numerically strong. And that cause which acts and reacts in a vicious circle, multiplies and propagates itself with diabolical intensity is SALOONISM."—The Sacred Heart Review, Boston, Mass.

Mr. Cuneen.

The Liquor Traffic in Furthering Its Vile Purpose, Knows no good, God or Gospel

"Give us a chance to breathe; we are stifling! Give us a chance to swim; the torrent of rum is sinking us!"

So exclaimed Chancellor James E. Cassedy in the course of a denunciation of the saloon before a congregation of 1,400 men, Sunday, in the cathedral. He did not appeal for a no-license vote directly, but there was no misunderstanding the trend of his thought.

"The saloon undermines every decent principle in this city," went on Chancellor Cassidy. You know that where it exists there is assembled the very scum of humanity.

"Where the saloon gets a foothold it furthers the plans and schemes of Satan. It is an unmitigated curse. It is a pestilential sewer of sin, corruption, pollution, and misery, and threatens the very throne of God himself. If you do not think it to be a great curse, you should listen to the ravings of the dying drunkard as he goes before God. Like a great serpent the saloon winds its coils around men, women and children, sucking their life blood. I am attacking an enemy that is destroying my people.

"There are many men engaged in this evil, who are clean, upright, honest men. How their consciences reconcile them to a continuation in it is more than I can say. I pray God to open their minds to a realization of the evil in which they are engaged, and turn them to nobler better ends.

"There are many men occupied in this nefarious occupation who are the lowest of the low, the vilest of the vile, whose motto and god is gold. They have their fingers on the throats of decent men; they debauch the people's tribunes; they control the representatives of the people, and they undermine the government. Their power must be destroyed.

"Cardinal Gibbons must have been misquoted when he is represented as saying that the greatest evil threatening society is divorce. Drink is the supreme evil. Show me one home disrupted by divorce and I will show hundreds destroyed by drink. Show me one life blasted, one soul dammed to the depths of hell, by divorce, and I will show hundreds made demons by drink. The divorce evil is insignificant compared with the supreme destroyer of body and soul.

"Do you, as intelligent citizens, realize the common danger? Do you recognize that you have a share in the common responsibility? Let us show that we are not bound to the rock by the brewers' bonds; let us break these bonds and stand up as free men, for God, for home, and for country."

The Catholic Church has everything ambulance or a hurry-up wagon.':

These words evoked a storm of hand-clapping, an extraordinary procedure in a Catholic church.

"The saloon undermines every decent principle in this city," went on Chancellor Cassidy. You know that where it exists there is assembled the very scum of humanity.

"Where the saloon gets a foothold it furthers the plans and schemes of Satan. It is an unmitigated curse. No Public Schools at Sturgeon Falls

Sturgeon Falls, Dec. 3.—The teachers in the Public schools here, who have only received $30 cash since midsummer, yesterday went on strik midsummer, yesterday went on strike, and the schools are all closed today.

There is no immediate prospect of the teachers getting their salaries, and no other course seemed opened to them. Some talk of consolidating the municipal debt and issuing new debentures has been heard, but it was not tangible enough.

The town, however, still owes the School Board $9,000, besides this year's levies. Against this there is a claim by the Traders' Bank of $6,500, and this week the bank took action to restrain the town from paying any part of this sum to the trustees.

It would appear that the Separate school and the fates have conspired to put the local Public schools out of business.

Gas Distended His Stomach

Caused Palpitation and Prevented Sleep. When Health Was Gone, Cure Followed Use of Nerviline.

"My last wish will be," writes Harry P. Pollard, a well-known boot and shoe traveller of Hartford, "that everyone with a bad stomach may learn as I did, before it's too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in mighty bad shape, my digestion was all wrong and every night I would waken with a start and find my heart jumping like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the travelling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

TESTIMONIAL NO. 4890

For general household use Nerviline has no equal; it will cure the aches and ailments of the entire family—refuse anything but Nerviline, 25c. per bottle, five for $1.00, all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE NOT A HOME-BREAKER.

In regard to recent New York despatches containing statements made by Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy concerning her domestic troubles, Mr. Alfred Farlow, Chairman of the Committee on Publication of the Christian Science Church, has issued the following statement:

A New York despatch referring to the domestic troubles in the home of a well known man, alleges that said domestic troubles were due to a peculiar perversion of Christian Science as taught by a teacher who has recently been deposed.

"Whatever may or may not have been taught in this instance, it is important that the public should understand that Christian Science rightly understood and practised could never breed domestic trouble, but must of necessity contribute toward the peace, harmony and well-being of any family.

"In her text-book Mrs. Eddy teaches (page 56): "Marriage is the legal and moral provision for generation among human kind." Again on page 69 she says: "Marriage should improve the human species, becoming a barrier against vice, a protection to woman, strength to man, and a centre for the affections." Mrs. Eddy also advises against legal separation of husband and wife, declaring (page 59): "Separation never should take place, and it never would if both husband and wife were genuine Christian Scientists."

Local Option Campaign

have seen that there is no hope of improving in any shape or form the liquor traffic. There is nothing now to be done but wipe it our completely."

Father Matthews, whose name has always been associated with temperance reform said

"The question of prohibiting the sale of ardent spirits and the many other intoxicating drinks which are to be found in our unhappy country is not new to me. The principle of prohibition seems to me the only safe and certain remedy for the evils of intemperance. This opinion has been strengthened by the hard labor of more than twenty years in the temperance cause."

NO PEW RENT FROM SALOON KEEPERS.

In returning $10 pew rent to a saloon-keeper, Father Joseph McNamee of Peotone, Ill., wrote to him: "Your name will be retained on the pew free of charge, for the use of your family. * * * The members of this congregation who call frequently at your place, give little or nothing to the church for the good reason that they give it all to you. With temptation removed their faith and natural good qualities would make them pillars of the church.

* * *

The Catholic Church has been conservative and charitable in dealing with those of her children who against her wishes have gone into the liquor business, but her charitable expressions have been used as war cries in behalf of whiskey. On account of some incertain remarks attributed to Cardinal Gibbons, that prelate has been quoted by liquor orators as the champion of the trade. All the money in possession of the beer and whiskey people of this country could not heal the wounds and black eyes inflicted on the church by Catholic names written over beer kegs and dirty pictures. It is now opportune that Catholic saloon-keepers should listen to the advice of the Bishops at the Baltimore Council to choose a more lawful and more honorable means of making a living.

Rev. Father Ryan in writing to the Renfrew Mercury among other things said:

"Is local option at least probably going to weaken these abuses? If we can answer 'yes' to those questions, then what matters it that the liquor traffic pays millions in duties to the government, or in taxes, or in wages, or for tools, or express and freight charges? What a consolation for a man with a drunken son, or woman with a drunken husband, or for children with a drunken father, to know that he is helping to pay these millions?

Vote local option and do not mind any of this talk about millions, or any menace that country or locality will go to the dogs, if the bar-rooms are closed.

"Someone tells us that hotel-keepers do not compel anyone to drink. He thereby takes the same narrow view of the duties of hotel keepers that unfortunately they for the most part take themselves; namely, that they are quite within the bounds of law, human or divine, so long as they give liquor only to those that are able to stand up and ask for it, or even to ask for it with out being able to standup. If they only realized and acted upon their obligation in conscience to refuse liquor to minors, to refuse it to those who already have had enough, to refuse it entirely to habitual topers, and to all who they know will certainly or probably take liquor to excess, if they get any at all; then perhaps there would be no call for local option or any form of prohibition. The conscience of the liquor seller is not clear, when all he can say of his dealings with the drubkard is that he did not compel him to drink nor force the liquor down his throat.

"The temperance 'fanatics' do not expect hotelmen to furnish accommodation free of charge. Let them charge for what they give, but not make the misery created by, and in the bar room pay and over-pay, for the supposedly free accommodation given in other places. Local option people have no grudge or ill-will against hotelkeepers, as such; they desire not to close the hotel, but that particular, drunkard-breeding corner of the hotel known as the bar room.

I sincerely hope that the people will vote solidly local option.

"Yours sincerely,
"P. T. RYAN, P.P."

ARCHBISHOP KEANE.

"In every way and under every form, the bishops of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore have found this same fearful agency of intoxicating drink ever ready to do the devil's work, to deform and degrade humanity, and insult our Creator. Is it any wonder that, for the love of God and love of humanity they raised their voice and anathematized it? and if any man praise it, if any man countenance and encourage it, does he not prove himself an enemy of God and humanity, and does he not deserve to share in the anathema? The bishops cursed no man; but well they knew what curses deep and bitter went up from thousands of anguished and broken hearts against those who supplied to their husbands and their sons the vile stuff that overwhelmed them with hopeless misery."

Since he has become archbishop of Dubuque, Iowa, he has said in St. Raphael's church of that city: "As a man and a Christian, I say: Damn the saloons! If I could cause the earth to open and swallow up every saloon in the world. I would feel that I was doing humanity a blessing. The saloon is bad for the home, for the church and the country. It has no redeeming feature."

M. B. Moroney in the current number of the Quarterly "Catholic and Prohibition" published in East Aurora, by the Rev. Father Zurcher, has these appropriate lines:

TO POPE PIUS X.

Holy Father, greeting and salutation
We place before you for consideration
A question that is vexing every nation.
And sending souls by millions to damnation!
It is the Liquor dope abomination
That ruins the noblest of God's creation.
And spreads a pall of sin and desolation.

The following letter signed by the President of the Taxi-Service Company explains the purposes of the Company:—

J. Walsh & Company, 1 Madison av., New York:—

The Taxi-Service Company was organized under the laws of New Jersey, in February, 1909, to take over the business of William H. Scaich Company, which operated taxicabs and horse drawn vehicles at the Waldorf-Astoria, Holland House, Hotel Walcott, Seville and Manhattan Hotels. The William H. Scaich Company had been operated for over 40 years as a high grade livery business.

In April, 1909, this company took over the Harter Taxameter Cab Company, which operate taxicabs at the Grand Hotel, Ballet aire, Healy's Restaurant (Corner 66th street and Columbus avenue) and the Marseilles.

The company has:—

60 Sultan Taxicabs.
30 American Locomotive Taxicabs.
2 American Locomotive Touring Cars.
75 Horses.
200 Horse drawn Vehicles

of different styles, suitable to operation of this business.

The company leases from Mr. W. H. Scaich one of the finest garages and livery stables in the city of New York. It is located at 142 East 51st street. It is a six story and basement, brick, iron and cement building, thoroughly equipped for the care and repair of both motor and horse drawn vehicles.

I enclose you herewith a statement showing the capitalization, dividends, gross earnings and expenses of the company for eight and one-half months of its operation, from February 15 to October 1, 1909. I also enclose you a list of the stands at which we are now operating.

The company has paid since its organization dividends at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, or 1¾ per cent. quarterly, on its preferred stock, which is cumulative and preferred both as to assets and dividends.

The Company has paid on its common stock 4 per cent. per annum, or 1 per cent. quarterly since the organization, payable February 15, May 15, August 15 and November 15. The depreciation which we have charged to operating expenses is sufficiently large to replace all of the cabs within four years from the date of their purchase. The Company has not as yet had the benefit of the best part of the year's business, owing to the fact that the summer months are always dull in this line of business, due to the absence from the city of a great number of people who ordinarily use cabs. Also the better weather which prevails during the summer decreases the business to a certain extent.

The Company has not yet received the benefit of its full equipment, as a considerable amount has not as yet been delivered. I conservatively estimate that the operation of this additional equipment will add 40 to 50 per cent to the net earnings.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) HARLAN W. WHIPPLE, President.

The following report, rendered by William Dillon & Company, Certified Public Accountants, of 30 Congress St., Boston, Mass., shows the condition of the Company on November 15, 1909.

Mr. H. W. Whipple, President,
Taxi-Service Company,
234 Fifth Avenue, City.

Dear Sir:—

I have compiled the following statement of the Taxi-Service Company of New Jersey and certify the same as correct:—

ASSETS.

EQUIPMENT, consisting of taxicabs, touring cars, horses, carriages, harnesses.	$1,825,422.58
CAPITAL STOCK TAXI-SERVICE COMPANY OF NEW YORK at par	10,000.00
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE (GOOD) and CASH	68,306.35

CAPITAL STOCK COMMON, outstanding and entitled to dividends	1,140,189.00

The company has received in net profits from operating $68,828.42 since the commencement of business, February 15, 1909, to October 31, 1909.

It has paid two dividends out of earnings, the first being $19,425.00, which was at the rate of 7 per cent. on Preferred and 4 per cent on Common, and the second was $21,667.00, being at the same rates.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) WM. DILLON,
Certified Public Accountants.

From the above report it will be seen that this Company, which has been in operation only eight and one-half months, has made a very remarkable showing, and with approximately only one-half of its equipment in operation. Get Well First

Don't risk even a penny—until health first returns.

And I mean just exactly that.
I am the only physician who says to the sick "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you health."
And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's medicines are being handed out and recommended by druggists who stand behind them in America. They are positively known and in every community, round every village. Then why pay the cash, and get your risk for other unreturnable and unreliable medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative. When the Stomach nerves, or the Heart nerves fail, these pitiful cases know how quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatsoever. They know that when Dr. Shoop pays the druggist for that bottle of Restorative, a full 30 day treatment is freely granted. Then write me first for an order.

Then

This will save delay and disappointment.
All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy. Both or all are not necessary to give the 30 day test. By drugs may I hear please—for I have nevertheless an unbreakable desire to help every sick, ailing man and woman to know the truth. You health will surely open up if you will heed my advice. To those who are not well, I sincerely urge you to consult my home physician. My advice and the book I love to present—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will show my sincere interest. I have found successful prescription of my private practice. My book of truths upon simple now, while you have it handy in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

WORDS AND MUSIC OF A FRANK DANIELS SONG HIT.

The "Belles of Brittany" at Daly's Theatre is the big musical hit of the Christmas season. Frank Daniels is in the leading role, and the very best song in this big show is "The Ingle Nook," a love ballad. The words and music of this catchy melody will be given free with next Sunday's New York World, by arrangement with Francis Day & Hunter, publishers of the score.

TOLD OF GRETNA GREEN

MEMORIES OF SCOTLAND'S GREAT MARRYING GROUND.

Coming Case in Courts Where Alex. Bosville of Yorkshire Challenges Title of Lord Macdonald, Hinges on a Gretna Green Wedding and Revives Old Stories — How Earl of Westmorland Married an Heiress.

Memories of Gretna Green will be revived by a most remarkable peerage claim that will be heard shortly in the Scottish courts. Staid lawyers will have to recount one of the most romantic marriages ever celebrated in that little hamlet on the borders of England and Scotland, and rival legal luminaries will vie with each another in recalling a famous love-story to piece and putting it together again.

The claimant is Mr. Alexander Bosville of Yorkshire, and he challenges the right of the present Lord Macdonald, who is also known as the "Lord of the Isles," to his peerage and estates. The origin of the dispute goes back far more than a hundred years, for the nineteenth century was very young when the third Lord Macdonald eloped with the daughter of the Duke of Gloucester. They fled to Gretna Green, and were married.

Subsequently, the lady gave birth to a son and a daughter. The daughter eventually became Countess of Hopetoun, and was the great-grandmother of the present Marquis of Linlithgow. A few years passed, and Lady Macdonald became very religious. She looked upon her marriage at Gretna Green with suspicions, and her husband, to please her, agreed to have the ceremony performed again—this time in a recognised church.

The second marriage, however, was said to have rendered the first one illegal; and, consequently, it was a son who was born after the second ceremony who succeeded to the title and estates. In turn, he was succeeded by his son. A brother of the latter is the present holder of the title. Meanwhile, the first son of Lady Macdonald succeeded to large estates in Yorkshire, and took the name of Bosville. He had a son, too, and the claimant to the peerage is the grandson of the disinherited Alexander Macdonald, or Bosville.

What the Scottish Courts have to decide is whether the second marriage made the first one null and void. All the available records of Gretna Green are certain to be dragged into the light of day, and many famous stories of aristocratic couples who preferred to be united by the eccentric priests who officiated in the little hamlet rather than risk an open ceremony amidst friends and enemies will be heard.

That truth is stranger than fiction these records prove. For instance, the story of how the Westmorland family became united with the famous London banking firm, the Childs, reads more like fiction than fact. The head of the firm in those days was an immensely wealthy man, with one daughter, a girl of remarkable beauty.

The Earl of Westmorland fell in love with her, proposed, and was accepted. All seemed well with the young couple, because the earl never thought for a moment that he would be disapproved of by her father, and his amazement was great when, on putting his case before the banker, he received the answer, "Your blood, my lord, is good, but money is better."

But the earl was not to be baulked, and he arranged an elopement. At midnight the pair stepped into a chaise drawn by four horses, and they began to race to Gretna Green, the nobleman having arranged for relays of horses on the way.

At Shap he engaged all the horses available, so that nobody else could secure them. Mr. Child, however, was soon on their track; and, so powerful was his money, that he caught them up while they were changing horses at Hesketh, a place in a forest, between Carlisle and Penrith. In a passion, the banker jumped out, and shot one of the leading horses of the earl's carriage.

Meanwhile, one of the latter's servants ran behind Mr. Child's carriage, and cut the leather which attached the body of the carriage to the springs on which it was dependent. The earl drove on with his three horses, leaving the injured one to its fate; and Mr. Child had not gone far before the body of the carriage fell on the frame, and he was compelled to wait for another chaise. Of course, the eloping pair got married at Gretna Green long before the infuriated banker caught them up again.

It was an extraordinary coincidence that the very last marriage of social importance celebrated at Gretna Green should have had for one of its principals a granddaughter of the Earl and Countess of Westmorland referred to above. This was Lady Adela Villiers, daughter of an Earl of Jersey, who was united to Colonel Ibbetson in 1868. The officer survived until 1895.

In the forthcoming legal battle the surviving registers of the famous old hamlet will be produced; but the most interesting records were destroyed years ago by the daughter of the officiating person of that day.

In a fit of madness, she set the room which held them on fire, and herself perished in the flames along with the first and greatest register Gretna knew.

Hamlet's Politics.

Lord Esher had an amusing experience on one occasion while speaking for a young politician, fresh from college, in the South of England. The unfortunate's speech, perhaps, was more than judiciously besprinkled with quotations from "Hamlet." After a fine peroration, containing huge chunks of the play, he announced that Lord Esher was prepared to answer any questions. A man stood up. "I can't quite make it out," he remarked "whether he is a tariff reformer or a free trader." "Who?" asked Lord Esher. "The man this speech is about." Puzzled, he again inquired what man he meant. "Hamlet," was the reply.

DECORATIVE SPINACH.

Several New Ways of Serving the Ever Popular Vegetable.

The family dish of spinach can be dressed in more than one original way, which will delight the little people of the household and will give when need be quite a company air to the home table.

One such plan is to mold it quickly on a hot platter into the form of a bird's nest and in the center place three or four hard boiled eggs, which make perhaps the best accompaniment of all.

Or use the nest and fill up with small, whole buttered beets. The red and green combine delightfully, and the flavor of the two vegetables is extremely good in combination. This will not increase the trouble of serving.

Sometimes, too, it can be molded on a square platter into a green bank, from which the scarlet beets, cut across to simulate the petals of I know not what flower, peep out most effectively.

Again, for a guest luncheon select the smallest eggs from the egg basket or ask the grocer to pick out half a dozen tiny ones for you. When these have been hard boiled slice to represent water lilies or daisies (the two blooms are very closely allied in this class of botany) and arrange these floating on a low sea of spinach or growing out from a high hill of the same.

Another way in which it is most delicious is when formed into a round hollow nest or mound, the center of which is filled with a creamy sauce which is eaten with the wholesome herbs, adding much to their suavity. The dressing can, if preferred, be tinted green with a little of the spinach stock or juice.

Longfellow's Granddaughter a Nurse.

It is interesting to know that the granddaughter of the poet Longfellow has announced her intention to renounce society life and devote her time to nursing.

She is Miss Della F. Dana, the daughter of Richard H. Dana and a debutante of this year in Boston society.

Miss Dana attributes her resolve to give up everything and take up this work for others to a chance meeting with Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador explorer and missionary. She met him with friends on the train going from New York to Boston and at that time made her resolve to abandon a purely social life. She will enter the Boston Children's hospital, where she can be of service to the poor and suffering, especially among the little children.

"The quality of mercy is not strained,'" began the speaker at the meeting of the village branch of the National Hygienic society, whereupon Sister Hankson interrupted with, "Well, then, it ain't sanitary, and we don't want nuthin' t' do with it."—Puck.

Dainties For the King.

King Edward has recently enjoyed the delights of a lamprey-pie, which is what very few people have the opportunity of doing.

No one knows when the custom started, but for many, many years Gloucester has annually contributed a lamprey-pie to His Majesty's table. The custom was temporarily dropped in 1835, when the old corporation was abolished, but it was revived by permission of Queen Victoria in 1855.

Another epicurean dainty which the King enjoys are the first plovers' eggs of the season. There is keen competition among all searchers to be the first to send these eggs for the King's table.

If His Majesty is in London they are sent to Buckingham Palace; but at times they have been sent by special messenger to Biarritz when he was staying there. At the beginning of the season plovers' eggs fetch three shillings or four shillings apiece.

THE QUEST OF KATE.

The Result of the Search In Which Rena Assisted.

By MARIAN W. WILDMAN.

He stooped and picked it up—a lace edged cobweb handkerchief, elusively fragrant and marked with a daintily embroidered "Kate."

Harper watched the couples gliding by him. "Jane—Gladys—Anne," he murmured—"Dorothy—Isabel—Ruth. Now, which of the hundred I don't know is Kate? Kate!" he repeated musingly.

The music stopped with a crash, and the young lawyer mingled with the promenading throng, a frowning, preoccupied expression in his eyes.

"Look at that coat of Ted Harper's, Miss Cavanaugh," drawled a gilded youth to his companion. "He cares as little for clothes that fit as I"—

"For anything else, Reggie," she completed. "He's too good looking to need to care. He's like the lilies—not that he doesn't toil and spin," she added quickly. "He's worth a dozen of you lazy society boys—is Theodore Harper!"

Her voice was low, but the passing owner of the name turned suddenly and came back with outstretched hand.

"Rena! I was afraid you hadn't come. Can't I have this dance?"

"I saved it for you, Ted. And we'll talk—I know you'd rather."

"Good girl!" he replied gratefully as he escorted her to the moonlit piazza. There, with the music softened by distance, he was content. He even forgot the mystery of Kate while he and Rena laughed and chatted.

"Now that you are getting rich and famous, Teddy, you ought to marry. You're plenty old enough. I know your age to a minute."

"And I yours, my dear. I haven't forgotten being dragged to see you when you were three weeks old nor how I cried when our mothers made me kiss you."

"Poor boy! It has been a long friendship, Ted. It would have broken my heart if you had taken whittled fingers and love affairs to any other girl."

"Oh, by Jove, that reminds me—I'm in love again, Rena!"

Rena's silvery laugh was anything but credulous.

"I am honestly. Aren't you interested this time?"

"Profoundly! Who is the happy lady?"

"Her name is Kate."

"Kate what?"

"I don't know."

"Well, really, Teddy, what do you know about her?"

"This!" said Harper, laying something in her soft hand. Rena held the handkerchief up to the moonlight.

"You always were susceptible, Ted, but to fall in love with a bit of linen and lace!"

"I haven't. It's the suggestion, the atmosphere, the—the"—

"The violet perfume?" suggested Rena helpfully. "We all use it, you know."

"Rena, you're heartless! I'd counted on your help."

"Teddy, what is it you want me to do?"

"To tell me all the Kates who may possibly have been in this jam tonight. Then I'll devote myself between briefs to narrowing the inquiry."

"Kate Simpson, Kate Ray, Kate"—

"Hold on, Rena! One at a time, please."

"Very well. Kate Simpson you ought to know. You went to dancing school with her. She has dimples."

"She's not the Kate I'm after. I remember her now. Dimples in a baby are all right, but how about Kate Ray?"

"Engaged to Reggy Van Dyke. You know that, of course."

"Of course I didn't. Who next?"

"Kate Delemater, a new girl in town, handsome, tall, black eyes, awfully clever. Shall I take you in and introduce you?"

"Thanks; I can wait. I'll have some one of the fellows get permission to take me around for a call. If she doesn't prove to be the real Kate I'll come to you, say, Friday for more clews."

"You might come in any case. I shall be wild to know. Yes, really," in reply to his protest as she arose, "I must go in now."

Harper offered a reluctant arm, and they passed from the freshness of the June night to the glare and gayety within.

* * * * * * *

The October evening was cool, and Harper found Rena by a fire of snapping hickory.

"I'm too delightfully weary to rise," she said. "I've been in the country all day. "Look," with a comprehensive wave of her hand. The library was aglow with lavish masses of color—the orange and scarlet of maple, the crimson of sumac, the purple and russet of oak and beech. "This is my October carnival. I always celebrate when the autumn gets into my blood. Oh, the glory of the woods today, Teddy!" She leaned forward to lay a fagot on the coals. The seasoned wood burst into a whirl of blue and yellow flame. Harper watched her face curiously as she talked. "All summer these leaves have been quiet, contented little dreamers. Today they are new creatures, glorious. It's the transfiguration of their lives—what they have been waiting for all these tranquil weeks."

"The autumn has gone into your blood, Rena. I hardly know you tonight."

Her thoughtfulness vanished.

"What of Kate?" she laughed.

"Oh—Kate! I'm tired of this foolish about Kate."

"Ungrateful—when I've spent my whole summer finding you Kates!"

"You have been very good. The fault is in the Kates." He took a notebook from his pocket and laid it open in her lap, leaning against the back of her chair to look over her shoulder as she ran her finger down the neat list.

"Katie Simpson—dimples; Kate Ray [illegible] to Reggie Van Dyke; Kate Delemater—I hardly dare mention her, Teddy!"

"You have reason to blush. You know how I abominate the bohemian girl who smokes cigarettes and is always stepping on the verge."

"Didn't you find her clever and handsome?"

"Oh, very! Who next?"

"Kate Randall. Mother suggested her. You did like her a bit, I remember."

"I liked her a great deal. She's a sensible, modest, well behaved young woman. But she's not Kate."

Rena sighed patiently.

"What was the matter with Kittie Pomeroy? There isn't a dearer, sweeter, prettier little girl in"—

"I'm not looking for a dear, sweet, pretty little girl."

"What sort of girl are you looking for, Ted?"

Harper mused in smiling silence, his eyes idly watching a trembling silver butterfly in her hair.

"I think she's tall and has dark eyes. She's well bred, but not conventional. She's honest and kind. She has brains and a sense of humor. She"— He broke off suddenly. "I have it, Rena! Find me a Kate just like you, and I surrender the handkerchief."

"And your heart?"

The light words had an unfamiliar tremor in them, like that of the butterfly's filigree wings. Something sweet and sudden and unforeseen swept over Harper's heart. He was looking down at the leaves in her lap, and fragments of what she had said of them came back to him—"All summer contented dreamers—today new creatures—the transfiguration of their lives—what they have been waiting for all these tranquil weeks."

"Rena," he whispered, bending lower over the silver butterfly, and then as she looked up into his face with startled eyes, "I believe it is you I love!" he added simply.

"And Kate?" Her eyes smiled, though her lashes were still wet.

"Kate was an airy nothing."

"Dear, stupid boy!" Rising, she crossed the room and brought back a great Bible, which she laid on his knee. Perching on the arm of his chair, she opened the volume at the pages of family record and laid a finger on one of the names.

"Katherine, daughter of James and Katherine Cavanaugh, born June —,"

"Rena, is it you?"

"Who else? But Rena I've been from my cradle save to one person."

"And he?" jealously.

"And she"—reassuringly—"is a college friend who dislikes my poor nickname. I can show you dozens of letters from her addressed to Miss Kate Cavanaugh. The only other proof I could have offered—her gift to me last Christmas—I unfortunately lost."

"At a ball?"

"At a charity ball last June."

"I don't believe you're my Kate, after all. I told you my Kate was honest and kind."

"And had a sense of humor. Teddy, do you regret the prosaic end of your romance?"

"Prosaic?"

"Do you?" she insisted.

"I should be an ungrateful fool if I did."

"Then forgive your Cinderella and give back her glass slipper, dear prince!"

From the pocket nearest his heart Theodore drew a crumpled bit of linen and lace still faintly fragrant. He laid it in her hand, and his own fingers closed over it.

A Modern Proposal.

"It's like this, Miss Belle," said the Honorable Algy, stifling a yawn. "Our people seem to think we ought to get married, you know, and I don't like to disappoint 'em, and all that sort of thing. I'm not a clever chap, but there must be something in me, for I owe about £16,000. I'm a younger son, and the bit of money the mater left me isn't enough to pay for my cigarettes. I can't help my extravagant tastes. I inherited 'em. You've got money and can put me on my feet, eh—what? I've got enough blue blood for the two of us, and if your pater did make his money packing pork into tins it can't be helped. I'm prepared to waive that, don'cherknow. You're a smart sort of girl and can behave yourself very nicely, considering everything. I don't like the way your father drops his aspirates or his eating peas with a knife, but he's quite a respectable old soul in his way, and he'll improve, I dare say, after I've shown him what's what a bit. Come, what d'ye say, Miss Belle? Is it a deal? Eh—what?"

And the Honorable Algernon seemed greatly astonished when Miss Belle declined the honor of the proposal.—London Pictorial.

Resigned Pleasure.

"What," asked Mrs. Hammersley, "is your opinion of a woman who will pay a million dollars for the purpose of becoming the wife of a foreigner with a title?"

"I think," replied Mrs. Oldham, "she is very foolish. After one goes abroad to live one never can have the pleasure of going to Europe every summer and smuggling things in when one comes back home."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Out of Practice.

Well, I've got a job at last. It begins tomorrow morning, and it's in a factory where there are a lot of girls. I'm more than half afraid to tackle it."

"Afraid of the girls?"

"Naw—of the work."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Consistent.

"At least, the scenery at the pole, from Dr. Cook's description, must be consistent if not picturesque."

"What do you mean?"

"Didn't you remark that he said all you could see with the naked eye was a bare expanse?"—Baltimore American.

The old fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys if one controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and real Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

ARAB FASHIONS.

Clothes the Natives Wear and the Tailors Who Make Them.

Conservative in all matters, the Arab is especially averse to change in the matter of clothes. Not only do the fashions of the Arabs never change, writes Graham Petrie in "Tunis, Kairouan and Carthage," but they are very restricted. Although every Arab wears a gandoura more or less richly embroidered, it is always worked in one of three accepted patterns, from which no deviation nor any combination is permitted.

The only matter in which personal taste is allowed to show itself is in the choice of color. In this respect entire freedom is permitted and taken full advantage of, although it is curious to note that the more delicate shades of pink, yellow and mauve are generally worn by elderly men, while rich red and brown are in favor with their juniors.

The souk-el-trouk is the souk of the tailors in Tunis, and here in numerous little shops the sartorial needs of the Arab population are fashioned and temptingly displayed. I call them shops for want of a better word, but they are as unlike the European shop as anything one can imagine. They are really recesses separated from each other by coupled columns painted with stripes of red and green, which support a continuous cornice, richly carved and colored. There are no windows or doors, and the shop is raised some four feet above the ground. To this elevation the tailor nimbly vaults, for there are no steps to assist him. Sitting cross-legged in orthodox fashion, he there cuts out, pieces together and embellishes the gay silk waistcoats, gandouras and other garments beloved of the Arab.

MAINE SPOOKS.

Bowdoinham boasts a veritable ghost house where it is said the chairs refuse to stay quietly in their places, but in the middle of the night walk out and draw together in groups just as if guided by visible hands. Then there is a spirit cane that goes walking all by itself just at midnight, tapping its way along from room to room and finally taking up its abode in the chamber where a member of the family sleeps. That this statement is true is affirmed by those who have seen the phenomena and who are not at all afraid of ghosts.

At another house in the village is a phantom light that shines each night no matter whether it be moonlight or darkness just above the closet door in the upper chamber. For years this light has disturbed the people who at different times have occupied the room, and some have been much afraid of the flickering gleam. From time to time different explanations have been offered, but none has proved satisfactory. The light continues to shine, and no one can account for the mystery.

Down at Lazy O camp is a spook woodchuck which every evening, just at the sunset hour, comes out of an old family tomb, halfway between the camp and the home farm. There on the tomb he sits quietly, watching the sunset lights on the waters of Merrymeeting. Just as the sun sinks below the horizon he disappears. The tomb swallows him up, and he is seen no more until the sunset hour comes round again.—Kennebec Journal.

Arab Buttermaking.

Among the Arabs an interesting department of woman's duty is dairy work. This, like all other operations, is carried out on an old fashioned and patriarchal plan. To make butter, for instance, a small sheepskin is filled with milk and tied to a ring in the wall. The woman then sits flat on the floor and rocks it to and fro till little balls of butter begin to form within. These grow larger and larger and accumulate and are finally brought out as one big lump. The remaining milk is then boiled on the fire with bits of meat. The male members of the family now come together. A large dish of cooked rice is placed before them and the boiled milk poured over it. Then, making balls of the mixture with his hands, each member quickly swallows his share and rises to wash his hands. This done, the girls and mother sit down and eat what the men are pleased to leave.

Hats and Old Age.

In opening the services one Sunday recently the pastor of one of the fashionable churches said: "For three Sundays I have asked the women in this church to remove their hats during service. My appeal has been unheeded, and now I see wherein I was wrong. I was inconsiderate of the comforts of the aged and infirm, so I have made a new rule. Hereafter all women of forty years of age or over will be permitted to wear their hats during the service."

Within twenty seconds every woman in the church was bareheaded.—Ladies' Home Journal.

His Last Place.

"But," said the merchant to the applicant, "you don't furnish any reference from your last place."

"You needn't worry about that," replied the man with the close cropped head and strange pallor; "I wouldn't be here now if it hadn't been for my good behavior in my last place."—Catholic Standard and Times.

NORTHERN ONTARIO MINE.

Tee Arr 189 are Offering Limited Number of Shares for 45c.

The Tee Arr Mining Company, whose mines are situated in the Montreal River District, Northern Ontario, are offering through Messrs. E. C. Short and F. P. Buchanan of Montreal, a limited amount of stock for sale at 45c. per share, the par value being $1.00. This mining property is said by capable engineers to be the best in the Montreal River District. Assays of ore taken out show up to 12,000 ounces of silver per ton and already $100,000 worth of ore have been blocked out. Active operations were begun by this company on May last, and it will not be very long before ore will be shipped and dividends will be paid. There are many good mining propositions in Northern Ontario but there are none which can excell the Tee Arr. The work already done shows great quantities of valuable ore. So confident are those interested in the property that twelve of the best known business men of Montreal have taken 15,000 shares or more each.

The development work so far consists of surface trenching, some open pit work, two shafts and about 20 feet of drifting from No. 1 shaft at a depth of 61 feet from the cellar. Silver has been found in most of the veins foundon the property. The silver shown in veins 1 and 2 alone warrant the thorough development of the property.

Arthur E. Cole, a mining engineer with a great reputation says, "I consider that 'T.R. 189' is an excellent prospect and that your chances of locating pay ore in workable quantities on development are good."

For full particulars see the big advertisement on another page of this issue.

CAPITAL STOCK (Authorized $1,000,000—1,000,000 SHARES OF $1.00 EACH.
700,000 SHARES ISSUED—300,000 IN TREASURY.

Claim "T. R. 189" is stated by competent mining engineers to be undoubtedly the best property in the Montreal River District. It contains 40 acres, mostly hilly, of diabase formation, and is within 2½ miles of transportation.

Active development was begun by the present owners in May last. The necessary buildings for men, horses, tools, powder and stores have been erected. About two miles of surface trenching have been done in the south-east quarter of the property, 14 veins have been uncovered, 8 of them showing silver at or near the surface.

Assays of surface ore have run as high as 12,000 ounces to the ton.

Two shafts have been sunk, No. 1 to a depth of 63 feet, and No. 2 to 62 feet.

Shaft No. 2 opens up a vein from 5 to 14 inches thick, which is improving with depth, and which shows plates and leaves of pure metallic silver embedded in the calcite.

Shaft No. 1 also shows greatly increasing values with depth. At 60 feet the ore is very rich. There are two veins, 8 inches and 2 inches thick, separated by 20 to 26 inches of silver-bearing aplite. At 63 feet a level has been driven along the vein for 20 feet.

The ore taken from this level has been of exceptional richness, running from 8,000 to 17,000 ounces to the ton.

Such large values, obtained so near the surface, are very promising, particularly as at 3 other points along the same vein masses of pure metallic silver have been found directly beneath the soil. There is therefore every reason to believe that this vein will show at other points values equally as large as those where the shaft has been sunk.

Already $100,000 worth of ore has been blocked out.

The large number of veins that have been stripped in the section trenched promises a large tonnage of pay ore when they are developed. Then there is ¾ of the claim not yet trenched which should show equally satisfactory values.

An idea of the excellent returns which Claim "T. R. 189" promises on money invested, can be gained from the fact that, among others, the following gentlemen are each owners of 15,000 shares or more—

THE SWAY OF GOLIATH.

"What! am I to go out and fight this modern Goliath! What help do I get from those around me? Men tell me that total abstinence is an impossibility. Others tell me that prohibition is a farce. Others tell me no-license is no good. In my desperation I cry out, what in God's name is good? Must I stand by and be silent while the evil grows apace? Must I leave it to the efforts of others while from the turbulent waters are stretched the arms of women and children calling out for life and succor? Is that good?

THE BISHOP OF ARDAGH.

In his Pastoral letter for the Lent of 1905, the Bishop of Ardagh said: "Drunkenness is at the root of all the material, spiritual and eternal misery known to Irishmen. If only this misery was removed we should have happy homes and bright and joyful faces, and but little emigration." Remove the misery by voting for Prohibition.

Archbishop Ireland says:

"The greatest cause of social crime is drink; the great cause of poverty is drink. When I hear of a family broken up and asked the cause—drink If I go to the gallows and ask its victim the cause, the answer—drink. Then I ask myself is perfect wonderment, why do not men put a stop to this thing."

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium. Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless hang-healing mountainsnow shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough, and to soothe, and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for safety's sake above, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

STEALING CHILDREN.

Women Who For Various Reasons Carry Off Little Ones.

Perhaps the most amazing feature of the kidnapping cases which have engaged the attention of the police in England recently is that, in a number of instances where women were the the culprits, the real cause of the offence has been traced, not to any desire on the part of the kidnapper to injure the stolen child, gain money, or seek revenge on the parents, but merely to the fact that they had been so attracted by the youngster as to be unable to resist the temptation of taking it away.

The theory has been advanced that it was such feelings which prompted the woman kidnapper in the recent South end baby theft; but that, becoming alarmed on account of the sensation she had caused, she abandoned the child in order to escape the consequences of her act. It certainly seems a feasible explanation in the light of other cases.

One day two years ago a poor woman, seated with her child, a pretty girl of two years of age, on one of the seats in Hyde Park, was accosted by a young woman, whose manners and dress stamped her as rich and well born. The lady spoke of her admiration of the child, gave her sweets, and asked the mother to meet her next day at the same spot, and she would bring the girl a pretty frock. The appointment was kept, and it was the first of several meetings between the poor woman and the society lady, who seemed enraptured with the child.

Eventually the lady asked the mother to let her take the child to her home, giving [illegible]. The mother was reluctant to part with the child at first, but ultimately gave way, and agreed to call the next day at the address given for the youngster. She did so, but judge of her amazement and grief when she found that the address was that of an empty house. The police were communicated with, and two weeks later traced the lady and the child to an hotel at Brighton.

The child was perfectly well, and seemed happy with the many beautiful things the lady had bought for her, but she recognised her mother instantly when the two were brought face to face through the medium of the hotel proprietor, whose suspicions had been aroused by seeing a description and photograph of the missing child in the newspapers. On account of the high position of the lady, who kidnapped this child simply because of her affection for it, the matter was hushed up as much as possible.

A Titled Innkeeper.

Lord Townshend, the wild and dissolute viscount—who signalized himself once by hanging his pack of foxhounds with him into the Council Chamber in Dublin Castle—while on a progress to the West was compelled by the breaking down of his equipage to spend the night in Kilbeggan.

Much to his surprise and gratification he was served with an excellent meal and with claret of most choice bouquet and flavor, for in those days most innkeepers, even of the smaller country inns, had a store of good wine laid by for special occasions. Lord Townshend, according to his wont, did full justice to the vintage, and flushed with what he had drunk insisted on summoning the landlord into his presence. He compelled the worthy man to kneel down before him, and despite the remonstrances of the more sober among his suite he struck him with his sword, exclaiming, "Rise up, Sir Thomas Cuffe, prince of innkeepers!"

The next morning, on being reminded of his exploit, of which he was himself totally oblivious, he felt some dismay, and called for the newly-made knight. "We were guilty of some follies last night," he said to him, "but I trust you understand that what passed was a joke and nothing more."

"For my part, my lord, I do not care," returned mine host, "but I must consult my wife on the matter."

Her reply was, "I never looked to find myself a lady, but since fortune has made me one, such I'll remain." And Sir Thomas and Lady Cuffe they were all the days of their lives, though by no means above attending to the duties of their calling.

Nature's Silence Preferred.

To the pathfinder on the frontier line in the West the habit of speech becomes almost a lost art. Whether it is the vastness and the loneliness, or perhaps the close contact with nature's wonders of plain and mountain unsullied by the works of man, the cowboy and the prospector are noted for extreme taciturnity. To illustrate which, R. E. Young, of the Department of the Interior, tells this story: Two Alberta cowboys, turned prospectors, as so many of their fellows did during the mining excitement of '98, had been working for some months as partners in the hills of Southern Kootenay. At noon one day, one of them was sipping his tea meditatively. "Tea's too durned strong," he said. The other silently passed him the hot water kettle. After a moment's consideration of the effect of the dilution — "Fire's too durned hot—tea's boiled!" he said. The meal was concluded in the usual profound silence. Next morning the silent partner was up first and was silently packing his blankets. "What's up?" asked the other. "Goin' t'light out! Too much talk around here f'me. . . ."

Kept Him Busy.

Sir Arthur Fanshawe, who has held so many high appointments in India, recently related an amusing story of a Mohammedan servant who, when asked his religion, replied: "Beg pardon, sar, I'm a heathen." His master then asked him what he meant by a heathen, and the man answered: "Beg pardon, sar, a worshipper of stocks and stones." "Confound it," remarked the master, "I can't keep a man like that in my service." To which came the immediate rejoinder: "Beg pardon, sar, in your highness' service no time to worship anything."

Another Expense.

The new act requires that all sewage emptying into navigable waters must be relieved of its impurities before being emptied into the saidwater. This will mean a large expenditure for the city. Has the council considered the question? It may be a factor in determining who will stand for councillors in January This may be an expensive business for the city.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. 13

SALE OF WORK

At Dr. Barnardo's Home Thursday, December 9th.

For some months past the girls residing at the "Margaret Cox Home, and many of those placed out in situations in various parts of Ontario, have been busy in their spare time with their needles, hoping that the dainty tray clothes, center pieces cushions, wool slippers, tea cosies, knitted lace, and the many attractive novelties their hands have fashioned, will when sold bring in a sufficient sum to buy the new organ for their assembly hall which has been talked of so long. The girls greatly enjoy the singing at their daily services and on Sundays, but of late this has had to be without aninstrument.

His worship the mayor, has kindly consented to open the sale at three p.m., on Thursday afternoon and all friends who can spare time to come up will be very welcome. 3 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Get Contract for Electric Wiring in New Library.

F. R. J. MacPherson & Co., were awarded the contract for electric wiring in the new public library. Their tender was the lowest and when the committee took time to investigate the quality of material they intended to use it was found perfectly satisfactory. The Property Committee met yesterday afternoon and awarded the contract.

The committee also decided to recommend that the City Trust Commission look after the insurance on the municipal buildings and thus save the council a lot of bother and extra labor, which is unnecessary. The commission is a permanent body and can look after such matters much more satisfactorily than can the council which is changing each year.

SECRET WORKER.

The Plan Upon Which Coffee Operates.

Coffee is such a secret worker that it is not suspected as the cause of sickness or disease, but there is a very sure way to find out the truth.

A lady in Memphis gives an interesting experience her husband had with coffee. It seems that he had been using it for some time and was an invalid.

The physician in charge shrewdly suspected that coffee was the "Worm at the root of the tree," and ordered it discontinued, with instructions to use Postum regularly in its place.

The wife says: "We found that was the true remedy for his stomach and heart trouble and we would have gladly paid a hundred times the amount of the doctor's charge when we found how wise his judgment was.

"The use of Postum instead of coffee was begun about a year ago, and it has made my husband a strong, well man. He has gained thirty-five pounds in that time and his stomach and heart trouble have all disappeared.

"The first time I prepared it I did not boil it long enough and he said there was something wrong with it. Sure enough it did taste very flat, but the next morning I followed directions carefully, boiling it for fifteen minutes, and he remarked 'this is better than any of the old coffee.'

"We use Postum regularly and never tire of telling our friends of the benefit we have received from leaving off coffee."

Look for the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

FARMER TELLS INTERESTING STORY

Whether Sick or Well, in Good Weather or In Stormy, He is Obliged to Work Always.

Market people complain about prices they have to pay for farm produce. They forget that rain or shine, warm or cold, the farmer must keep at it or else the narrow profit, his bare living, will be lost to him.

A well-known Haldimand farmer, Mr. J. P. Pelletier, writes: "For nearly three years I was in poor health. A drenching storm caught me in the fields and wet me to the skin. I got home only to find I was threatened with inflammation of the bowels I never got over it and felt weak and heavy and my system never worked quite right. But a farmer has to work—and I found myself going down hill with stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Failure seemed t follow everything. I remained wretched and sick until advised to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. It is not easy to describe the sort of feeling a sick man gets when he strikes a medicine that he can see is doing him a lot of good. I was overjoyed—Hamilton's Pills put new life into me and everything worked right. Since cured with Dr. Hamilton's Pills I haven't had a single symptom of stomach, liver or kidney trouble. I am free from headaches, languor and weakness, as strong, robust as a man could be." No better medicine for general family use than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are mild, healthful and certain to cure. Sold in yellow 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. ...

New School Inspector

sion. From a standpoint of convenience to work this is about the best division he could figure out. There are objections to this and there are objections to any division that could be suggested, although he was open to any other suggestion. Peterborough he said was singularly well situated on account of the Normal School here. The staff of that school are all at the service of school boards and teachers. Mr. Duncan Walker the principal, is there every Saturday morning for the purpose of consultation and he is consulted by teachers and inspectors.

Now what is this combined arrangement going to cost. The government pays one half. The new inspector will receive $1,500, the government pays $750 and the counties pay $750. Peterborough have 32 schools will pay 32-91sts or about $250 and Victoria with 59 schools will pay the balance. As to engaging a man he suggested that a nominating committee be appointed consisting of the reeves of the townships affected. The matter has already been taken up in Victoria county council. This plan is a fair one as the men whose schools are to be affected are the ones to decide. Victoria county has the largest number of schools and pays the largest portion of the salary, so they are entitled to a larger number on the committee. But then both counties stand to gain as a good inspector for Victoria will be a good man for Peterborough.

First discuss "Are we favorable to a union of these counties for inspection of schools."

Second—How to work this out.

Third—Action upon the committees decision.

In conclusion Dr. Merchant said that Peterborough was particularly will situated here and should certainly benefit by the location of the Normal School here. The teachers are trained right here and this county should particularly agree to the request of the minister of education.

Dr. Merchant then took occasion to pay his tribute to Mr. J. Coyle Brown, the retiring inspector for this county. That gentleman has been teaching in this county since the year 1848. Now we are sometimes not so free to acknowledge the great work that has been done by these men who in the early days organized the school sections in the county. Mr. Brown has done a great work and Dr. Merchant wanted to add his personal tribute with that of the County Council to Mr. Brown.

Moved by councillor Shaw and Councillor Hales that this matter be referred to the committee of the whole council and that Dr. Merchant be asked to remain.

Warden Scott said that as warden he was indeed pleased to welcome the delegates from Victoria and he would be glad to have them set a time and go with this council for a a drive about the city and visit the schools and other sights of interest.

Warden Jordan of Victoria on behalf of himself and colleagues stated that it had afforded them great pleasure to come down to discuss this important matter with Peterborough county and after business is over he would be pleased to accept Warden Scott's kind invitation to a drive about the city.

The council then adjourned and went into Committee of the Whole to discuss the school question.

The members of the deputation from Victoria county were: Warden G. A. Jordan, Lindsay; B. L. McLean first deputy reeve, Lindsay, Wm. Jordan, second deputy reeve Lindsay; Jos G. Beatty, reeve of Verulum, J. G. Bing, reeve of Bobcaygeon, R. H. Callan, reeve of Somerville, J. R. Boat, reeve of Emily.

On motion of Mr. Knox and Mr. Brown that the council agree upon the school inspectorate of Victoria and Peterborough counties as outlined by Dr. Merchant.

Moved by Mr. Moher and Mr. Perdue that this council approve of an agreement being made that the proportion of salary and travelling and other expenses of the inspector shall be determined, borne and paid for by the counties interested, on the basis of the number of teachers in each county respectively in such inspectorate.

Moved by Mr. Russell and Mr. Kidd that the reeves of Smith, Emily Harvey and Galway and Cavendish and the deputy reeve of Smith be a sub-committee to confer with a committee the County Council of Victoria to nominate an inspector and to determine any other necessary matters in connection with the proposed arrangement.

The sub-committee was then appointed to meet with the Victoria representatives and after due deliberation they reported back to the council recommending that Mr. G. E. Broderick of Lindsay be appointed.

The council then adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning. In the meantime Warden Scott, accompanied by some of the councillors took the visitors for a drive about the city.

Capt. Bernier's Lecture could study the formation of the land.

Captain Bernier told in a very hunorous manner how he had met a millionaire from New York in the north who had boasted to him of how many game he had killed. Captain Bernier, thereupon, as representative of the Canadian Government, demanded fifty dollars for a license, and obtained it. He had also collected fishing dues from Scottish vessels, not, he said, because they had any ill-feeling against the Scotch, but just to show them that they were on our territory.

United States vessels, the speaker continued, were in the habit of coming east from the north of Alaska into Canadian waters, to fish, kill seal, and trade with the Esquimaux. Sometimes, he said, a single vessel would clean up $40,000 in one season. "I think we should make them pay for this privilege until such time as we have a close season for fishing and hunting in the north. Now that we have taken over all this land we must look after it."

CaptainBernier's description of his three voyages to the north, illustrated by limelight views made an extremely favorable impression on a fair-sized audience. The genial captain remarked at the outset that he would take his friends to the far north and back in perfect safety. The perquisites of an Arctic explorer, he said, were faith, hope and charity, "hope to fulfill our mission, faith in our undertaking, and a great deal of charity for the poor sailors. Excellent views of every part of the three voyages were shown, and wherever possible Captain Bernier made an appeal for the Eskimo, whose lot has been made the harder by the advent of his more civilized American brother.

Hotel Keepers Styled Assistant Tax Collector

Crowded House Heard Rev. Sam Small Speak in Favor of Local Option

Another big crowd filled the Grand Opera House last night when Rev. Sam Small, a world-famed evangelistic and lecturer, was the speaker. The reverend gentleman's reputation as an eloquent and forceful speaker, had preceeded him, and had the opera house been twice the size it would have been filled. The first half hour was spent in song led by Mr. Downey.

The chair was taken by Mr. H. P. Kennedy, who opened with the statement that as a business man he would support local option and he gave his reason.

Rev. Sam Small introduced himself by stating that once he was a captive of the liquor trade and had sunk as low as the lowest but by the grace of God he had been saved and ever since he had been battling against the traffic.

Ever since the time of Edward II. of England, the liquor business has been recognized as a licensed evil and it is such today. It is not a legitimate business. It is licensed and under control of the people. You people vote these men a privilege to sell liquor for 12 months at a time and they enter the business with that understanding and they are prepared to take all the risk. You people are at liberty to cut off their license at any time and with no recompense to the hotelkeeper. The liquor people pay $5000 a year into the city treasury, or in other words they are municipal officers in the employ of the city to act as assistanttaxpayers to collect taxes over the bar from the men and boys who have no property and some of them not even a collar box, but who have money to buy booze with.

It was at this point that Mr. Bernard Laster chipped in and created a disturbance so that the manager of the opera house requested Chief Roszel to put him out, although the lecturer asked that he be left inside and he would educate him before midnight.

Taking up the $5000 matter again the speaker showed that it represented a little less than 3o cents per head of population and every man who voted against local option sold himself, wife and family for 30 cents each to the liquor dealers.

Rev. Sam Small is a very forceful speaker and he holds his audience throughout. On all sides could be heard such expressions as "I could listen to him for another hour or more."

An Address Presented to the Retiring Warden

One of the pleasant features of the concluding hours of the County Council's session Saturday was an address read by Mr. Frank Moher, of Douro, and signed and by all the members of the council to Warden Scott. It was a complete surprise and was the more fectitious on account of the genuine cordiality and sincerity with which it was supported. The warden was asked to vacate the chair and Reeve Knox of Havelock, took his place. Mr. Moher then read the following address:

Mr. R. N. Scott, Warden of Peterbor ough County and Reeve of Smith

Dear Sir,—Today marks the close of the last session of the County Council of Peterborough for 1909. Only a few days will elapse before you will retire from the honored position of Warden of the County, and as you have announced from the arena of municipal politics. It is with regret that we view these things and with pleasure that we review thw work of the past year. Under your able leadership harmony has prevailed in the council. We desire to place on record our appreciation of the unfailing courtesy with which you have treated each one of us during the year and of the painstaking manner in which you have looked after the work entrusted to your care. You have rendered the county excellent service during the past year and also during other years in which you have been a member of the County Council. We can assure you sir, that the good work you have done while a member of the municipal council of the township of Smith and of the County Council of Peterborough is appreciated by the ratepayers who have so often placed trust in you.

spared to enjoy the best in the land and hope that in the near future we may see you occupying higher offices than those you have so ably filled in the past.

WARDEN'S REPLY.

Warden Scott made an appropriate reply, thanking the members for the kindness that prompted the address and for the sentiment it expressed. He spoke of the pleasure it had given him to preside in the chair and regretted the fact that the year's work was concluded so harmonious had everything been. The Warden dwelt briefly upon Council affairs and of the circumstances that will be remembered longest.

Pierpont Morgan Gets Grip on the Trusts

New York, Dec. 3.—The purchase of the majority of the stock of the Equitable Life Insurance Company by J. Morgan—a move of vast importance to the financial world because involving control of nearly half a billion dollars of assets and the domination of two large trust companies—is believed in Wall Street today to foreshadow a still more important move, the mutualization of the Equitable.

Judge Morgan O'Brien, one of the Equitable trustees, declared that the present system whereby the stockholders joined in the election of directors, was not desirable, as the responsibility of control could not be fixed on either the stock-holders or policy holders,

"I am sure that a mutualization of the company would be to its interest," he said.

William H. Hotchkiss, State Supt. of Insurance, said today that the complete mutualization of the Equitable has been the subject of consideration for some months.

FIRE ALARMS.

The fire brigade had two runs during the week end. One on Saturday night was a fake alarm from box 41 at the corner of Park and London streets. On Sunday night Mr. Harper of the Matthews Packing factory, noticed smoke in the new Lundy Block on George street and telephoned to the fire chief who discovered that the draft of the furnace had become blocked and filled the building with smoke.

CHRISTMAS TREE.

In Fire Hall on Dec. 22, for the Firemen's Children.

The fire department has decided upon Wednesday, Dec. 22nd, as the day for their annual Christmas tree. The festivities will be held in the big room upstairs and will be especially for the firemen, their wives and families. Nearly all the firemen have several small children and as the dad dies have to be on duty Christmas eve they cannot play Santa Clause, and this Christmas tree is to take the place of Christmas eve at home. Already a number of citizens have signified their intention to send a turkey, a goose or fruit and no doubt many others who approve of the idea and who are possessed of the true Christmas spirit, viz., to spread good will and happiness among the children, will send something to hang on the Christmas tree.

REV. DR. SAM SMALL.

Preached Two Fine Sermons in St. Andrew's Church.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel W. Small preached to two large congregations in St. Andrew's church yesterday. Dr. Small is of Scotch-Irish parentage, and stated that he had been brought up on the Shorter Catechism. His morning sermon was a glowing description of the progress and glory of Christianity down through the years and a fine tribute to the spread of the gospel throughout the world. His discourse was based upon the text Matt. 6-33, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

In the evening the most profiund attention was given the preaching throughout his masterly and uplifting sermon. His text was found in Revelation 22.14, "Blessed are they that do His commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Attended in a Body St. Andrew's Church to Hear Sam Small.

As a mark of respect to one of their highest officials Marathon Lodge Knights of Phythias attended St. Andrew's church in a body yesterday morning and heard that gentleman give an eloquent sermon on "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." There were about thirty-five Knights at the service, which is the larger portion of their membership, and they were all delighted with the service. At the close of his sermon the speaker dwelt for a few minutes on the local option campaign which is in full progress here. He referred to the fact that a hotel man or any one else directly connected with the liquor business were debarred from membership in the Knights of Pythias. Only temperate and sober men were admitted to that order as well as most, if not all, other benevolent societies. He said that one of the chief arguments against local option was that the bar room was on of the chief resorts for the honest working man, and if it was closed he would have no place to go. He drew a picture of a bar room which was full of horror and vice and said that that was a nice place for an honest working man to go. Close up the bar rooms and there will be scores of places for honest, decent working men to go. They were always welcome to the Y.M.C.A., and to the church and other such institutions where they were surrounded by the most elevating influences and afforded the best of entertainment. He appealed to the K. P.'s to support local option in this campaign.

NEW UNIFORMS.

Chief Howard and his force of ten brave men are now sporting their brand new uniforms and caps. Messrs. Hickey & Snyder, who were given the contract, completed their work and delivered the goods on Saturday. There is a new suit and man and each has a new cap. That an extra pair of trousers for each man and each has a new cap. That afternoon they all got dressed up and were inspected by the chief and in the evening by the Fire, Water & Light Committee. The clothes look smart and nifty and they fit well. The men will keep them nice and fresh for the Christmas tree celebration.

Varsity Undisputed Rugby Champions of Dominion of Canada

Rosedale, Dec. 4.—Varsity won the title of Canadian Rugby champions by defeating Parkdale O.R.F.U. champions by 26 to 6 at Rosedale Saturday afternoon. While there were only about 2500 spectators when the game began, the reserved seats filled rapidly later, and the official estimate of the attendance was 3800, with cash receipts of $2700.

The score by quarters—First, Varsity 6, Parkdale 0; second, Varsity 0, Parkdale 5; third, Varsity 10, Parkdale 0.

It was distinctly an off day for Varsity in the first half, and half way score of 6 to 5 was one of the biggest surprises of the season.

Varsity seemed to lack life, but the talk given them by Coach Griffiths had a good effect. The weather was ideal and there was practically no wind.

Sergeant Armstrong and his fifty men had an easy time handling the crowd.

VARSITY NOT UP TO FORM.

Varsity did not play the team that defeated the Rough Riders a week ago. That team made no mistakes and played football all the time. Lawson was several miles away from his form at the Ottawa game and Barber, Parkdale's fast outside, gave him little chance in the early part of the game. Barber, in addition to being a blood relative of greased lightning is three storeys high, and thus was able to "collar" the big Varsity plunger before he could get away. But Lawson made a garrison finish just at the close, when he plowed right through the whole Parkdale tribe for a try. In this game Newton, Varsity's captain did his usual yeoman service and displayed the generalship for which he is justly famed.

Gage, Varsity's outside wing, came to the front as a wonder at tackling which shone with particular brilliance by reason of his speed in following up. The Parkdale's backs fumbled badly at first but tightened up later.

Perhaps the surprise of the game was Parkdale's ability to tackle and their knowledge of the game. It looked to be this way. Parkdale were out to stop a smothering defeat. Varsity expected a walk-over. Parkdale made a showing by reason of their own good and Varsity's loose play. Even Gall of the sure hands fumbled occasionally, and this gave Dixon, bunty full back, an opportunity to show that he is some little man with mighty sure hands. Varsity tightened up, and the last half of the game showed the teams in their respective forms.

Salvation Army Temple Dedicated Yesterday

The dedication of the new Salvation Army temple was marked by very large gatherings Saturday night and at all the services on Sunday. The very handsome edifice was crowded to the doors on all occasions and the greatest success marked the opening. The old barracks had been enlarged considerably and affords a much larger seating accommodation, while the Sunday school department will occupy practically the whole of the basement: The interior work has been exceptionally well done and reflects great credit upon the officers and corps of Army in Peterborough. The new temple is attractive and comfortable and the pleasure of attending the Army meetings will thus be increased.

Duringall the services the utmost enthusiasm and interest was manifested. The collections were very liberal and ineluded several substantial cheques from prominent citizens many of whom were present.

On Saturday night Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., occupied the chair, and on the platform with him were Col. Gaskin, Brigadier Hargrave, Judge Huycke and Chief Howard.

On Sunday afternoon Mayor Rush occupied the chair and he was accompanied on the platform by Aldermen Morgan, Gillespie, Duncan, Morrow and Metheral. Col. Gaskin, Brigadier Hargrave, Sheriff Hall, Chief Roszel and Chief Howard.

The speeches an all occasions were complimentary to the officers and corps who had assumed the responsibility of remodelling the barracks and making it a beautiful and modern temple. They referred to the splendid work being accomplished in the city and Dominion by the Salvation Army, and all hoped them every successin the future.

Col. Gaskin of Toronto, is an exceptionally fine speaker.

At the close of yesterday afternoon's service Chief Howard moved a vote of thanks to Col. Gaskin for coming to the city to assist in the dedication of the new temple and to Mrs. Gaskin. Chief Roszel seconded the motion, and it was carried with enthusiasm.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE."

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure the Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

How Many Aldermen will Resign from Council to Run for Mayoralty?

A lot has been said and written about the mayoralty contest but to-night should bring forth some real interesting news. Ald. H. W. Morgan has been in the field for several weeks past and he has already got a pretty good idea of how matters stand. No doubt he will hand in his resignation into the city clerk before tonight's meeting as there is not likely to be another session before the end of the year. If his resignation is not in it will look very much as though the member for Ashburnham had decided not to enter the fight. To make a real good contest Ald. Morgan should declare himself tonight so that he will have a few weeks clear to get busy and allow his friends to get out and hustle for him.

Ald. W. G. Morrow, who has also been very commonly spoken of as a candidate will also have his resignation ready for tonight unless he intends to remain an alderman for another year, or unless he has not fully decided whether to stand or not.

The candidate who first gets into the field will undoubtedly have a big advantage as the city cannot be covered in a week, and the man who will be mayor next year will be the man who hustles for votes. The vote this January will be a record breaker on account of the local option campaign and on account of the lengthened time for the polls to be open. For this reason the general supposition is that the aldermen who intend entering the contest will declare themselves at tonight's meeting.

British Election Contest will be One of the Hardest Ever Fought

All the Great Questions, and Side Issue too, will be Thoroughly Threshed Out before the People

London, Dec. 4.—Evidence is accumulating that the election contest now in full swing will be one of the hardest ever fought in Great Britain.

The leaders of both big parties, and of the Laborites and the Nationalists, have planned programs which make it certain that people in every part of the country will hear the questions of the House of Lords, tariff reform, free trade, socialism, and other side issues discussed from every point of view.

Premier Asquith will take an active part in the conflict.

WOMEN PREVENT BALLOTING.

London, Dec. 4. — Mrs. Despard, head of the Women's Freedom League,, in a speech here yesterday said that women are no longer going to work to obtain suffrage by quiet methods.

London, Dec. 3.—On the order of King Edward Parliament was prorogued this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The prorogation, which is a necessary preliminary to the coming general election, was conducted with the usual formalities. The Commons and Lords met separately, the Commons subsequently visiting the Lord's chamber to hear the reading of the royal edict by the lord chancellor, who presides over the House of Lords.

While formal in character, today's prorogation was accompanied by scenes of intense interest, due to the momentous conflict that the prorogation and coming election will precipitate.

"UNAVAILING LIBERALITY."

The prorogation speech thanked the House of Commons for the liberal financial allowances it made for the national needs, but expressed regret that "this liberality had been unavailing," which was the nearest the speech came to expressing open disapproval of the Lord's action. Inasmuch as prorogation speeches usually thank both houses, today's omission of the Lords must be considered significant. The remainder of the speech was of a perfunctory order.

It made the usual references to the visits of foreign sovereigns, the friendly relations with foreign powers, and the legislation passed during the session. On the matter of foreign relations the speech continued: "The difficulties which unfortunately arose in South-Eastern Europe in the autumn a year ago, have resulted happily in a practical solution for the maintenance of peace, while the constitutional regime in Turkey continues to make satisfactory progress.

"Subject to certain reservbtions made by my plenipotentiaries at the time of signature, I have to ratify the conventions which resulted from the conference held at the Hague in 1907. Agreements with Germany, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, and Portugal have been renewed for a further term of five years, and other agreements about to expire are in the process of renewal."

A GRIM SILENCE.

At the conclusion of the speech the session speedily broke up. There was complete absence of the gaiety that formerly marked the prorogation of Parliament. Both the lords and commons preserved a grim silence that showed they realized the seriousness of the situation.

The cabinet will continue until its successors qualify under the next Parliament.

CAMPAIGN IS ON.

Freed of legislative duties, commoners and many peers began their own political campaigns in their constituencies today. Comparatively few remained in London today for the formalities connected with the ceremony of proroguing Parliament.

David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, whose budget was the initial cause of the crisis, was given the opportubity of firing the first shot in the struggle as the guest of National Liberal Club at luncheon. The function was one of the most elaborate of the kind ever held in this city, and being timed with the prorogation of Parliament, afforded an occasion of which the chancellor took advantage to deliver a speech which will be the cue of the Radicals throughout the country.

Winston Spencer Churchill started the campaign in Lancashire, while on the other side, Lord Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition in the House of Lords, and J. Austen Chamberlain, who was chancellor of the exchequer in the Balfour Ministry, have gone to Plymouth, to discuss the issues of the day.

Horrifying Charges in War on Human Vivisection

New York, Dec. 4.—In its war upon living medical men who experiment upon living creatures to "promote science," the New York Anti-Vivisection Society has just brought out a pamphlet which is having general circulation and which makes sensational charges.

The pamphlet is labelled "Human Vivisection." This, it is stated, "is the practice of subjecting human beings, men, women and children, a great proportion of whom are patients in hospitals or asylums, to experiments involving pain, mutilation, disease or death, for no object connected with individual benefit, but entirely for scientific purposes.

This remarkable document then goes on to detail a number of instances. The charge is made that a paper from the Wm. Pepper Clinical Laboratory, University of Pennsylvania, was read, May 13, 1908, before the Association of American Physicians at Washington, telling of inoculations of tuberculin into children under eight years of age, all but 26 of them being from St. Vincent's home for fondlings, orphans and destitute children at Philadelphia, many of the injections being made into the eye. More than half the cases reached (which means that they were infected with tuberculosis in a modified form), and some suffered very serious complications, even threatening blindness.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

The pamphlet contains what is said to be a quotation from the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, as follows: "Dr. A. H. Wentworth, senior assistant physician to the Infants' Hospital, Boston, made 45 vivisections, tapping the spinal canal of children, many of whom died.

Saying that the information was gained from various medical journals, from papers read by scientists and responsible newspapers, the anti vivisectionists made the following charges;

"Dr. Sidney Ringer, physician to the University College Hospital of London, tested the poisonous effects of various drugs on boys under his care, not for their benefit, but as he would try it on one of the lower animals. Our first set of experiments was made upon a lad of 10. In case 11, after the poisoning, various symptoms are recorded—vomiting, dulness, deafness, quickening pulse, etc. His symptoms frightened the doctor. 'We must confess we felt a little relief when the toxic (poisonous) symptoms which became far more marked than we had expected, abated.'"

INOCULATED A BOY.

A French physician named Gailleton was condemned in the courts for his treatment of an orphan boy, belonging to one of the charitable institutions. He inoculated the boy with a certain horrible disease which the boy took and died. On trial Dr. Gailleton defended his conduct on the ground that what he had done was for the advancement of science.

In Germany a Dr. Schimmelsbuch "inoculated two boys with the virus from a boil, and both died from a pustular disease."

Dr. K. Menge of the University Hospital for Women in Leipsic is quoted as follows: "My experiments on new born babies (girls) disprove the correctness of the professor's deductions. Unfortunately I could only get three babies to experiment on. These I took immediately after birth. They were not bathed, but at once wrapped up in sterile linen and carried to my laboratory. I inculated these subjects with very considerable quantities of disease producing germs."

A doctor in Norway, is charged with feeding his infant son for 16 months on milk from tuberculosis cows to learn whether the disease could thus be communicated to a human being. The child developed a tuberculosis infection in consequence.

In Austria 80 cases are cited of children being inoculated with disease germs, and it is alleged the same thing was done in maternity cases, so that infants were born suffering from loathsome diseases. It it is said these victims number into the hundreds.

Dr. Epstein, professor of children's diseanses at Prague, is alleged to have infected five children with round worms" just for the sake of experiment.

THE GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES PLAN.

According to the first official report upon the Annuities post office scheme, put forth by the Dominion Government last session, the public is not embracing the scheme with any great avidity. During its first seven months' existence, 288 contracts were issued, the amounts contracted for aggregating $65,022.60, at an initial purchase rate of $206,410. The entrance of the Postal Department upon the business of the life underwriters, is avowedly in the interests of the poorer classes to whom an annuity of $250, after the age of 55 years has been reached, is of vital importance. No doubt if the Department could launch its scheme with anything like success, it would assist in the promotion of thrift, where that is most desirable. It might also help to settle down our factory, and other workpeople, who, to tell the truth, are rather given to saving at the present time. The surprising extent of the operations of the ill-managed and to business men unpromising York County Loan and Savings Co., which is still in process of enforced liquidation, shows the readiness of the working class to invest part of its earnings. Possibly the commission of a third of one per cent upon moneys forwarded, is not sufficiently high to convert local postal officials into good canvassers for the Government scheme. Surely, it cannot be that the toilers do not trust the Government.

ADVENTURES IN CLOUDS

COUNT ZEPPELIN DESCRIBES HIS WORK IN THE AIR.

Great German Inventor Who Has Perfected the Dirigible Balloon Has Spent His Last Penny In His Fight to Fly—He Has Had Many Narrow Escapes From Death—Countess Has Helped Him.

If there is one thing which the world and his wife admire more than another, it is pluck and perseverance. For that reason it is not difficult to understand the enthusiasm aroused on the continent by the flying feats of Count Zeppelin. For fifty years he has been striving to solve aerial navigation. He has beggared himself, spent his whole fortune of $150,000, borne the gibes and ridicule poured upon him by sceptics, risked his life time after time, and yet never abandoned faith in his ideas.

In the following words he described his aims to an interviewer a short time ago:

"I intend to build a vessel which will be able to travel to places which cannot be approached—or only with great difficulty — by other means of transport; to undiscovered coasts or interiors; in a straight line across land or water where ships are to be sought for; from one fleet station or army to another, carrying persons and despatches; for observation of the movements of hostile fleets or armies —not for active participation in actual warfare.

"My balloon must be able to travel several days without renewing provisions, fuel, or gas. It must travel quickly enough to reach a certain goal in a given number of days, and must possess sufficient rigidity and non-inflammability to ascend, travel, and descend under ordinary conditions."

And the count has succeeded to the extent of being able to remain in the air for many hours and travel hundreds of miles.

"But I am not satisfied," he remarked. "The German Government want an airship which will fulfil the following conditions: First, it must be able to manoeuvre in the air for twenty-four hours; secondly, it must be able to land without injury to itself either on water or earth; and in the last place must be able to ascend to such a height that it cannot be injured by bullet-fire. Stringent conditions? Yes, but very necessary if the navigable balloon is to prove of real service. Do I think I can manage to fulfil these conditions? That, of course, is impossible to say, but I am going to try."

And this wonderful master of the air spoke with that quiet earnestness which almost convinced one that he would succeed, in spite of the fact that he is over seventy years of age. He is a man who speaks little of the past. From others one learns of how at one time he became so poor that he had to live in a little cottage on an allowance made to him by his friends. When, at thirty years of age, the count married a lady belonging to one of the German aristocratic families, his friends and relatives, who had regarded him almost as a lunatic on account of his devotion to the task of inventing aerial machines, thought that his wife would wean him from his eccentric ways. But in this respect they were disappointed.

The marriage itself and the ensuing honeymoon interrupted for a time Count Zeppelin's devotion to his research work, but within a year of the wedding day he was again hard at work on the solution of the problem, aided and encouraged by his young wife. Year by year passed, and still the aristocratic mechanic continued to construct all sorts of flying contrivances that for the most part refused to fly. He and his wife, however, were fully agreed that he should devote his whole life to the task of teaching mankind how to fly.

The countess has followed with unwearying interest and self-sacrifice the scientific researches which involved the expenditure of their entire fortune, and Count Zeppelin is the first to admit how much he owes to the encouragement of his wife.

For over thirty years the count devoted himself to the construction of flying machines, "but," he remarked, "the risks were too great and the successes were too small to warrant the continuation of such experiments. On one occasion I fell from a height of forty feet, but happened to alight on some bushes, which broke my fall and saved my life, although I received a number of painful wounds. On another occasion I fell from a considerable height, but again had the good fortune to alight on soft earth without sustaining more than a broken leg. These were but two of a number of accidents which led me to finally abandon the flying machine for the navigable airship."

"But even they have their perils, count?"

"Yes; I suppose one of the narrowest escapes I had was when last year I fell asleep in the cabin of my airship. By some lucky chance I did not sleep for long, and only a few minutes after I awoke the airship was in flames. Had I remained asleep I should certainly have been burned to death."

The adventures of Count Zeppelin, however, would almost fill a volume, for, apart from his exciting experiences in connection with flying machines and balloons, he has had innumerable escapes. He fought in the Franco-German War, and is said to have been the first German soldier to cross the frontier into France.

Boiled Water In Ancient Times.

Now that the use of boiled drinking water has become common it is interesting to be reminded that a similar method of guarding against disease was practiced in ancient times. Herodotus tells how Cyrus had his drinking water boiled and carried in silver vessels, and Pliny the elder relates that Nero had water boiled and afterward cooled for drinking by placing it in glass flasks surrounded with snow.

Gone Into Business.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.P.P., has sold his big dry goods and clothing business, and leased the building for five years, to Messrs. G. R. Browning of Peterborough, and A. O. Sawyer of Lindsay, two gentlemen of large mercantile experience and sound business ability. Mr. Browning has been on the staff of the Robt. Fair Co., Peterborough, for years, and Mr. Sawyer was formerly employed for a long time with Sutcliffe & Sons, of the electric city. They will take possession on Feb. 1 next.—Havelock Standard.

The following letter signed by the President of the Taxi-Service Company explains the purpose of the Company:—

J. O. Walsh & Company, 1 Madison av., New York:—

The Taxi-Service Company was organized under the laws of New Jersey, in February, 1909, to take over the business of William H. Seaich Company, which operated taxicabs and horse drawn vehicles at the Waldorf-Astoria, Holland House, Hotel Walcott, Seville and Manhattan Hotels. The William H. Seaich Company had been operated for over 60 years as a high grade livery business.

In April, 1909, this company took over the Hexter Taxameter Cab Company, which operate taxicabs at the Grand Hotel, Ballet aire, Healy's Restaurant (Corner 66th street and Columbus avenue) and the Marseille.

The company had:—

50 Sultan Taxicabs.
20 American Locomotive Taxicabs.
2 American Locomotive Touring Cars.
75 Horses.
200 Horse drawn Vehicles

of different styles, suitable to operation of this business.

The company leases from Mr. W. H. Seaich one of the finest garages and livery stables in the city of New York. It is located at 142 East 31st street. It is a six story and basement, brick, iron and cement building, thoroughly equipped for the care and repair of both motor and horse drawn vehicles.

I enclose you herewith a statement showing the capitalization, dividends, gross earnings and expenses of the company for eight and one-half months of its operation, from February 15 to October 1, 1909. I also enclose you a list of the stands at which we are now operating.

The company has paid since its organization dividends at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, or 1¾ per cent. quarterly, on its preferred stock, which is cumulative and preferred both as to assets and dividends.

The Company has paid on its common stock 4 per cent. per annum, or 1 per cent. quarterly since its organization, payable February 15, May 15, August 15 and November 15. The depreciation which we have charged to operating expenses is sufficiently large to replace all of the cabs within four years from the date of their purchase. The Company has not as yet had the benefit of the best part of the year's business, owing to the fact that the summer months are always dull in this line of business, due to the absence from the city of a great number of people who ordinarily use cabs. Also the better weather which prevails during the summer decreases the business to a certain extent.

The Company has not yet received the benefit of its full equipment, as a considerable amount has not as yet been delivered. I conservatively estimate that the operation of this additional equipment will add 40 to 50 per cent to the net earnings.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) HARLAN W. WHIPPLE, President.

The following report, rendered by William Dillon & Company, Certified Public Accountants, of 50 Congress St., Boston, Mass., shows the condition of the Company on November 10, 1909.

Mr. H. W. Whipple, President.
Taxi-Service Company,
234 Fifth Avenue, City.

Dear Sir:—

I have compiled the following statement of the Taxi-Service Company of New Jersey and certify the same as correct:—

ASSETS.

EQUIPMENT, consisting of taxicabs, touring cars, horses, carriages, harnesses.. $1,925,422.58
CAPITAL STOCK TAXI-SERVICE COMPANY OF NEW YORK at par..... 10,000.00
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE (GOOD) and CASH..... 68,269.35
Total..... $1,995,691.93

LIABILITIES.

MORTGAGE BONDS, item on a part of the equipment..... $61,000.00
ACCOUNTS PAYABLE..... 416.70
CAPITAL STOCK PREFERRED, outstanding and entitled to dividends 750,000.00
CAPITAL STOCK COMMON, outstanding and entitled to dividends..... 1,169,160.00
SURPLUS..... 15,112.23
Total..... $1,995,688.93

The company has received in net profits from operating $68,836.42 since the commencement of business, February 15, 1909, to October 31, 1909.

It has paid two dividends out of earnings, the first being $19,656.99, which was at the rate of 7 per cent. on Preferred and 4 per cent on Common, and the second was $21,067.99, being at the same rates.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) WM. DILLON,
Certified Public Accountants.

From the above report it will be seen that this Company, which has been in operation only eight and one-half months, has made a very remarkable showing, and with approximately only one-half of its equipment in operation. The Company operates Taxicabs from the best stands in New York city, which are as follows:—

Executive Offices,	234 5th. Ave.	Station	Colony Club.
Station	Waldorf-Asteria.	"	Belleclaire Hotel.
"	Holland House.	"	Marseille Hotel.
"	Hotel Seville.	"	Leonori Hotel.
"	Healy's Restaurant.	"	Hermitage Hotel.
"	Walcott Hotel.	"	New Grand Hotel.
"	Park Avenue Hotel.
"	Stratford Hotel.	Garage.	142 East 31st st.

We offer, subject to prior sale, $250,000 of the preferred stock of this Company at par. This will yield 7 per cent. on the investment, and the preferred stock is a first lien upon the assets as well as the earnings of the Company.

THE RIGHT IS GIVEN TO PURCHASE ¼ SHARE OF COMMON (which pays 4 per cent) AT $45.00 PER SHARE, with each share of preferred; in other words, 25 per cent of the common is allotted with the preferred at the above price.

By careful perusal of this statement you will observe that this proposition offers an exceptional opportunity for investment. We have investigated the Company and its officers, and recommend the purchase of this stock.

Canadian Northern to Inaugurate a New Service.

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 4.—Arrangements have been completed for the inauguration tomorrow of the new direct day and night train service between Ottawa and Quebec. Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?
Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought those nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the source of these ailments—the failing, faltering, feeble or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some curious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 13, Racine, Wis.

Out of Practice.

"Well, I've got a job at last. It begins tomorrow morning, and it's in a factory where there are a lot of girls. I'm more than half afraid to tackle it."

"Afraid of the girls?"

"Naw—of the work."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Consistent.

"At least, the scenery at the pole, from Dr. Cook's description, must be consistent if not picturesque."

"What do you mean?"

"Didn't you remark that he said all you could see with the naked eye was a bare expanse?"—Baltimore American.

Dainties For the King.

King Edward has recently enjoyed the delights of a lamprey-pie, which is what very few people have the opportunity of doing.

No one knows when the custom started, but for many, many years Gloucester has annually contributed a lamprey-pie to His Majesty's table. The custom was temporarily dropped in 1836, when the old corporation was abolished, but it was revived by permission of Queen Victoria in 1863.

Another epicurean dainty which the King enjoys are the first plovers' eggs of the season. There is keen competition among all searchers to be the first to send these eggs for the King's table.

If His Majesty is in London they are sent to Buckingham Palace; but at times they have been sent by special messenger to Biarritz when he was staying there. At the beginning of the season plovers' eggs fetch three shillings or four shillings apiece.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

Flies and Bacteria.

A fly bacteriologically examined has been found to carry something like 100,000 bacteria.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is entirely free from Opium. Chloroform, or any other stupefying drug. The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainuous shrub give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough, and to soothe, and heal the most sensitive bronchial membranes. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it once yourself, and see! Sold by all dealers.

A CURIOUS FLY.

This Wasplike New Zealand Insect Feeds on Spiders.

New Zealand boasts of a fly that feeds on spiders.

This fly is black and wasplike and, like the wasp, lives in a nest of clay built in a crevice, preferably in the upper folds of heavy window curtains. This is one of the great annoyances of the tidy housekeeper in New Zealand. Try as she will, it is almost impossible for her to keep these flies from setting up their homes at the tops of her curtains.

These nests of clay are made up of a series of separate cells, usually from five to eight in number. When the nest is built the fly goes after spiders.

It has no trouble in conquering the spinners of silky webs. They succumb more easily than do the American flies which are so unfortunate as to get tangled in a spider's weaving.

The fly carries the spiders to its home and imprisons each one in a cell. Here the fly lays a single egg, and when the grub hatches out it eats the spider that has been provided for it. When its food is all gone the mother fly goes out and catches another spider, and she keeps this up until the young fly is old enough to catch spiders for itself.—New York Telegram.

Emerson's Courtesy.

When Mrs. Mary A. Livermore was a little girl she was monitor at the Hancock school in Boston, and it was her duty to answer the door. One rainy day the bell rang, and she found at the door a tall, thin man, with a dripping umbrella, who inquired for the principal. She was just at the bashfulish and disrespectful age, but there was something about this visitor which so impressed her that she led him in as politely as if he had been a prince, placed a chair for him by the fire, relieved him of his wet coat and umbrella and after she had started to leave the room came back to draw a fire screen between him and the blaze for fear he would find it too hot. She afterward expressed to her teacher some surprise at the unwonted civilities she had felt impelled to show the stranger. He answered: "Ah, that was Ralph Waldo Emerson, and that is the effect he has upon everybody. He is so courteous himself that it calls out the latent courtesy in all others."

Bandages and Red Tape.

During the South African war Rudyard Kipling discovered at Cape Town a hospital without bandages and in desperate need of them. This, too, was in a city where bandages were for sale in many shops. He told an acquaintance that he was going to meet that want, and the gentleman at once offered to pay for all the bandages that Mr. Kipling would buy and take to the hospital. A cart was quickly loaded, and then the author was informed that under army rules the hospital authorities could not receive supplies from a private individual.

"Well," said he, "I will dump the packages on the pavement before the door and then tell them to come out and clear up the litter. Perhaps they can get them into the building in that way without tearing any red tape."

He drove off with the bandages, and the supplies were somehow smuggled into the hospital.

Just the Same.

"What is your name?" asked the judge of the prisoner.

"Casey, yer honor," answered the prisoner.

"Your full name?" asked the judge.

"Just the same, yer honor," answered the prisoner, "full or sober."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Outcome.

Jack—Where is the pretty girl you were making love to a year ago?

Tom—Oh, she's married long ago.

"Jilted you, eh?"

"No; worse than that. She married me."

The Crisis.

"Now, Tommy, you must go and wash yourself."

"Ma, if you keep on at this washin' business you'll queer me whole vacation."—Century Magazine.

Men's lives are as thoroughly blended with each other as the air they breathe.—Eliot.

Who hunted for the pole,
But another fellow came along
And reached the long sought goal.

And when he found the pole was found,
With all his might and main,
He jumped into his arctic togs
And discovered it again.

Even Up.

"I suppose you heard what Meanley did in church last Sunday when the plate came round to him."

"Dropped a button in it, I suppose."

"Worst than that. He leaned over and whispered: 'I paid the pastor's car fare yesterday. We'll call it square.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Meeting Stormed by Rowdy Suffragettes

London, Dec. 4.—The suffragettes gathered today in force at Southport where Winston Churchill was speaking and getting upon the roof of the hall shouted their battle cry "Votes for women," through the skylight. The police had some difficulty in removing the women.

Other women caused a more serious affray at Leith, where Sir Edward Grey was making a speech. Two of the suffragettes attempted force their way through the police lines, and so secure an entrance to the theater where the meeting was being held. In the midst of their attempt they were joined by a rowdy element, and a violent rush of the entrances to the building followed. The police were compelled to charge the rioters with their sticks, and in the melee several persons were injured.

The first of a series of demonstrations against the action of the House of Lords organized by the National Democratic League was held in Trafalgar Square today. Thousands of workmen came in from all parts of the metropolis carrying banners and singing political songs. The gathering was addressed from six platforms by leading radicals and labor members of the House of Commons. Resolutions were adopted protesting against the rejection of the budget which was characterized as a breach of the constitution; and demanding the abolition of the lords right to veto.

WASHING HOUSE PLANTS.

How to Keep Them Healthy and Free From Insects.

If after taking flowers into the house you discover the troublesome meal bugs, aphis, the torment of chrysanthemum; green flies and tiny red spiders, begin at once to kill them. The overwhelming development of these pests can be stopped only by using some strong solution that will kill the insects and destroy the eggs. If a small camel's hair brush is dipped into alcohol and the haunts of these pests are washed out with the solution, followed with a tobacco suds wash, clean plants will be insured. Do not permit this water to run into the earth, for alcohol will kill some plants. Have a piece of oilcloth, cut a hole in the centre and slit one side to the edge. This can be wrapped around the plant to prevent the water going into the crock. This is also an excellent method when cleaning flowers in the kitchen sink, for the dirt does not overflow when the crock is protected with the oilcloth covering.

The red spider can be killed with pure water, but this process requires that the entire plant be immersed. This is easily done, and the water should be changed a number of times. Do not leave one plant untouched, but clean all at the same time. Just a few insects will increase rapidly in numbers, and the aphis to-day would be a past generation to-morrow, so the accumulation of these little pests should be fought from the time flowers are taken into the house. No flower collects insects more rapidly than ivy. The fragile leaves and stems are alive with them, for which reason ivy should be kept out of the collection of rare plants. Flowers with large leaves should be washed. Buy a small soft brush and keep it for the purpose of washing the flower leaves. It cleans under the leaves and between the stems and stock.

IVY FOR HOME DECORATION.

How to Grow the English and German Varieties With Ease.

For a growing green which is beautifully decorative in the home in winter there is nothing more satisfactory than ivy. There are so many artistic ways of arranging the ivy, and the English variety particularly is so hardy that it cannot fail to grow. Artists have painted it and poets sung of it—the romantic ivy green.

With a pot containing the ivy standing on a table, floor or shelf the creeping branches may be trained in any direction about the room. Have the vine clamber up the window casing, and the green and leafy screen through which you can look out upon a wintry landscape will make it seem less bleak. Stand the jar containing the ivy on a bracket shelf at one end of the mantel and let it wander, with skillful training, up over mantel and walls, stray tendrils drooping gracefully over pictures and the like.

Ivy may be trained over the archway which divides rooms, and no portieres will be needed. There is also the more delicate German ivy, which requires gentler handling. It will grow effectively without soil. I saw one growing in a large bowl of water—the kind of glass bowl used for small aquaria. The ivy grew over the sides of the bowl, festooning itself in tangled masses of vivid green, which gave a living beauty to the whole room.—Suburban Life.

No Influence.

During a municipal election in a town in the west of Scotland a young lady who was canvassing in behalf of one of the candidates called at a house, the door of which was opened by the good wife.

"I have called to solicit your vote on behalf of Mr. ——," said the young lady.

"But it's not me that's got the vote. It's ma man," replied the woman.

"Yes," said the young lady, "but I thought you might perhaps use your influence with him."

"Me influence him?" said the good wife. "I hiv nae influence wi' him. Only this morning I ask't him to wash the floor afore he went out, and he wadna dae it."

Quite.

A little girl was in the habit of telling "stretchers." Her auntie told her she could never believe her and, to warn her, related the tale of the boy who called "Wolf, wolf!" and how the wolf really did come one day and ate up all her sheep.

"Ate the sheep?" asked the child.

"Yes."

"All of them?"

"Yes; all of them," answered her auntie.

"Well," said the little one, "I don't believe you, and you don't believe me. So there!"

Woman's Preparation For the Street.

Nearly every man knows that it takes the average woman two hours to dress for the street, and they seem hurried at that, but few men know just why such preparations take so long. For the enlightenment of the latter is the explanation in boiled down form as given by an authoritative person:

Fitting on dress, forty minutes; buttoning same, ten minutes; arranging hair, twenty-five minutes; touching up face, fifteen minutes; setting hat, twenty minutes; mirror contemplation, ten minutes.

In Doubt.

"Prisoner," said the court, sternly, "are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Now, jedge," answered the defendant confidentially, "we's bof been th'oo dis here kin' o' business befo', an' you knows jes' as well as I does dar ain' no use o' me tryin' to answer dat kin' o' question tell de trial's over an' I finds out whether I's been lucky or not."

She Did.

"Didn't some idiot propose to you before our marriage?"

"Certainly."

"Then you ought to have married him."

"That's just what I did."

Two Little Children Drown in Creek

Treacherous Ice at Black Creek Broke and the Little Ones were Drowned—Tried to Save Brother

Madoc, Ont., Dec. 6.—Sunday after noon at Black Creek, about six miles from Madoc, on the Bridge Water road, Joseph and Bernard aged four and eight years, sons of Richard Kehoe, left home to visit their grandparents, who live on the opposite side of Black Creek.

The younger boy got on his sled and started to push across the narrow stream. When about in the center the sled broke through, and the brother going to his assistance, also broke through, both being drowned.

The scene of the tragedy was at Actynolite, about five miles from Tweed.

Salvation Army Supper Was a Great Success

The supper at the Salvation Army Temple last night to celebrate the dedication of the re-opening of the edifice was a grand success. The large tables were filled three times, the crowd was so great, and yet there wer lots of eastables left over

His Honor Judge Huycke occupied the chair at the entertainment which was given after the supper and he made a very efficient presiding officer. He and Rev. Mr. Riddiford and Col. Gaskin delivered very fine addresses. The program was as follows:

Man Arrested Charged with the Murder of a Collingwood Boy

Waterdown, N.Y., Dec. 6.—George Eddy, wanted in connection with the murder of John Reid, at Pulaski, was arrested here at nine o'clock this morning.

DOVES FOR CHARGERS.

A Unique Display in Local Florist's Window Much Admired.

A Times representative yesterday, happening to see a large body of people standing in front of the George street store of Mr. Frank Mason, naturally, in his reportorial capacity, made investigations. What the people were looking at was a chariot, the outside of which was composed of chrysanthemums and pink roses, whilst the interior of the chariot was lined with silk and lace. Two stuffed white doves occupied the driver's seat, while the suphosed motive power were three teams of similar doves, harnessed by white silk bridal ribbons. The toute ensemble was very beautiful, and whilst The Times man was in the store three parties of ladies entered to remark to Mr. Mason that the floral design in his window was the prettiest ever seen in Peterborough.

BABIES' SORE SKINS

"My baby had a rash something like eczema. It caused the child great pain and made it very restless and ill. The rash spread very quickly, and I was at a loss what to do next, for all the remedies I tried failed to give the little one ease. A friend strongly advised me to try Zam-Buk, and I did. That proved good and gave the baby ease very quickly. I went on with the treatment, and by the time the third box was used, all traces of the rash had gone."

So says Mrs. J. Reesor, of Aurora, and scores of mothers could make practically the same statement. If your child suffers from teething rash, eczema, chafing, or any of the numerous skin troubles to which young children are victims, apply Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk has the great merit of being pure. When you put an ointment on to your child's skin it finally gets into the blood through the pores just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach. So don't you see how important it is the balm should be pure? Zam-Buk is made from pure herbal essences. It contains no animal fat, no mineral coloring, no poisonous, burning antiseptic. It soothes quickly, and heals surely. Send us 1c. stamp and we will mail you trial box free.

Zam-Buk has cured eczema, chafing, bleeding hemorrhoids, ulcers, scalp sores, abscesses, and many other troubles. Whenever you take to bruising or cutting yourself, Zam-Buk will be found a friend indeed. Rubbed on the injured part, it soothes the pain, and its healing powers are far greater than those of any ordinary ointment. 50c. box, or 3 for $1.25.

Thos. McGrath was Advocated as the Permanent Assessor

Alderman McIntyre Introduced a Motion at Last Night's Meeting to Make Appointment.

Many Favored Ald. McIntyre's Motion

The Council Decided to Refer the Matter to a Special Committee to Take Matter Up.

At the last meeting of a dying council Ald. McIntyre introduced a motion to appoint Mr. Thos. McGrath, city assessor permanently. There was a great deal of discussion on the matter and finally it was left to a special committee to work out the details and report back to the council.

A petition was received from Mr. Thos. McGrath, assessor, asking that his position be made permanent instead of having him apply every year as in the past 20 years.

Ald. McIntyre supported the application and said his position should certainly be made permanent.

Ald. McIntyre oved that Thos. McGrath be appointed assessor at a permanent salary and that a bylaw be prepared for that ourpose.

Ald. Duffus also strongly supported the application and seconded the motion.

Ald. Morgan said that he has not supported Mr. McGrath in the past but he said that Mr. McGrath certainly knew the city and he would just as surely be appointed again if he applied.

Ald. Hicks said that just as the motion read it did not appeal to him. He was in favor of a permanent assessor, and had always supported Mr. McGrath, but he suggested that a little different arrangement should be made in reference to whether one or two assessors be appointed. He would support Mr. McGrath for a permanent appointment.

Ald. Gillespie suggested that the matter be referred to a committee to arrange salary, etc.

Ald. Morrow thought Ald. McIntyre's motion should be a notice of motion.

Ald. Duncan agreed with Ald. Gillespie's idea.

Ald. Morrow said he certainly thought the matter should go to a committee where the details could be threshed out.

The matter was then referred to a special committee as follows:—Aldermen McIntyre, Gillespie, Bradburn and Duffus.

Ald. Bradburn said he would be frank and he would oppose the appointment of a permanent official at the last moment. He thought the new council should have something to say in the matter. He had no doubt but that Mr. McGrath would be a good official as he had been in the past. He was, however opposed to last minute appointments.

Ald. Phelan said he was in favor of settling this matter at once. He could see no reason why the appointment should not be made.

Ald. Metheral favored a permanent assessor but he did not feel that he was justified in supporting the appointment in the dying days. If it was earlier he would support it, but not at this time.

Ald. Bradburn asked to be left off the special committee and his place was filled by Ald. Hicks.

The final decision of the council was that the matter be left to the special committee.

On account of the very heavy work at the municipal elections and on account of the long hours the council decided to make the officers' fees in the polling divisions a dollar more all round, as follows:—

Ald. Metheral moved that the deputy returning officers' pay be increased from $4 to $6 and the clerks from $2 to $4 and that the policemen get $2.

Moved by Aldermen Morrow and Bradburn that the prices be $5, $3 and $2.

Moved by Ald. Morgan that the prices be $3, $5 and $2. He got no seconder.

Ald. Morrow's motion carried.

A short session of the Committee of the Whole Council was held last night before the council met and several little matters were dealt with. One matter was that of Dr. McPherson's bill for $1000 and it was referred to the Finance Committee with power to act.

Mr. R. E. Wood interviewed the council in regard to a deed for the old boat house property on the water front which several years ago was granted by the council in lieu of the city getting the patents from the government.

City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall stated that there was nothing for the city to do but pass a bylaw requesting the City Trust Commissioners to make over the deed in favor of Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Rogers bought the old boat house property in front of her property and therefore she is to get a deed for the land right out to the water edge. The bylaw was passed in 1890.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Morrow the matter was referred to the property Committee.

DR. McPHERSON'S BILL.

The question of Dr. McPherson's bill for attendance at the smallpox tents for about four months last summer was brought up. The doctor put in a bill for $1000, and that bill was passed by the Board of Health and the council recommended the payment of it.

The aldermen were given a small-sized shock when the bill was presented to them. They thought it too much.

Ald. Hicks and Ald. Morgan moved that the bill be sent back to the Finances Committee with power to act.—Carried.

Ald. H. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, brought Mr. S. Clegg's application for a short sewer on Antrim street.

The city engineer reported that it would probably be best to go ahead with that sewer and build it for Mr. Clegg for the present.

Moved by Ald. Buller, secondehf by Ald. Duffus that the sewer be built for Mr. Clegg.—Carried.

Stock Guaranteed by Gold Bonds

In the history of gold mining and silver mining there probably was never an offer made which could equal the proposition now being placed before the people by the Treasury Gold Mines of Fairview, Nevada. That company has placed upon the market 200,000 shares of its treasury stock at 20c. per share. This is the first and will positively be the last allotment to be sold at such a remarkably low price and with such a guarantee. The guarantee is this:—The Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank of San Francisco, one of the strongest financial institutions in the United States, will issue its own gold bonds for the full amount of the money paid in by every subscriber. These gold bonds are payable in gold and negotiable everywhere. This arrangement with the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank was made after the bank satisfied itself that the Treasury Gold Mines were good and that the gold and silver values were there in such quantities that they would be justified in taking up the stock.

The Treasury Gold Mines are situated quite close to and on the same veins as the rich Mispath Mine of Fairview, Nevada. One of the richest producing mines in that wealthy district. The Treasury Mines have forty acres to the north-east of the Mispath and one 100 acres south-west of the Mispath, and the main Mispath vein runs at least 1000 feet north-east and 1500 feet south-west through these properties.

The proceeds from the 200,000 shares to be sold now will be devoted to the installation of a standard modern mill, to reduce the ores to bullion and save the haulage charges to Salt Lake City. Also to sink a capacious double compartment shaft into the permanent ore bodies opened up for the mill and to aid in determining the proper treatment, so that the mill may be built adapted to the character of the ore. As soon as this work is completed operations will begin and shipping started. At that moment the shares will be trade on the New York and Boston exchanges.

The main features of this proposition are that the ore is there and in quantities, and that every dollar invested is guaranteed by the gold bonds of the Metropolis Trust and Savings Bank of San Francisco.

This company is now seeking bonanzas ore on the 100 level west drift, preparing their first shipment to go forward in a short time.

Any day the company may raise the price of their Treasury shares to 40c. or 50c. or possibly withdraw the sale altogether.
